consumption, Q's is home to over a dozen billiard tables, several spacious inches of dance floor, four sparkling bathrooms, three floors for mingling, two regularly functioning bars and a partridge in a smoking balcony.

WHERE Conveniently located at 409 State St. in downtown Santa Barbara. From UCSB or Isla Vista, head southbound on the 101 Freeway. Exit Castillo and make a left, but stay in the middle lane because a right turn onto Haley will be necessary directly following the razzle-dazzle evenings. Between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., patrons can enjoy the benefits of happy hour with half off drinks and appetizers, and 20 percent off sushi. For those who know how to start the week off right, Q's offers Brazilian Night on Monday evenings.

WHY As if you had to ask ... Shit, you did. Well, there is the mouthwatering sushi prepared by master chef Hiro Homma, or perhaps the cocktails mixed by bartenders who actually know what an "Adios, Mother-

HOW Q's Sushi a Go-Go began as a billiards club (hence, the name Q's as in the cue ball) in two other locations in West L.A. and Pasadena; our own Santa Barbara version is the first to offer sushi. The building that charitably hosts this absolutely fabulous bar is not without its own points of interest: Constructed in 1889, the building has been both a theater and another bar. In the early half of the century, it was a successful brothel until two of the prostitutes were murdered.

Paradise Cafe

PARADISE FOUND!

Its neon lights and simple architecture may not take the average passerby's breath away, but anyone who has eaten at Paradise Cafe knows that it's all about the taste.

Shrouded with palm trees and tropical flowers at the corner of Anacapa and Ortega in downtown Santa Barbara, Paradise Cafe has the seafood and pasta it takes to turn the average restaurant into a local's favorite. Putting the service and food to the test, I was able to take a classy out-of-town husband and wife pair to the establishment for a Friday night dinner.

Because the cafe does not take reservations, there was an initial wait, despite our party of three already being on the waiting list 20 minutes prior to our arrival. But that was OK ... the bar beckoned. After an anchor steam and a few vodka martinis, it was time for our dining experience to begin.

par • a • dise \n: a place or state of bliss, felicity, or delight.

ning experience to begin.

Seated upstairs in a quaint dining room overlooking Anacapa Street, our waitress provided us with menus and freshly baked garlic bread to tease our empty stomachs.

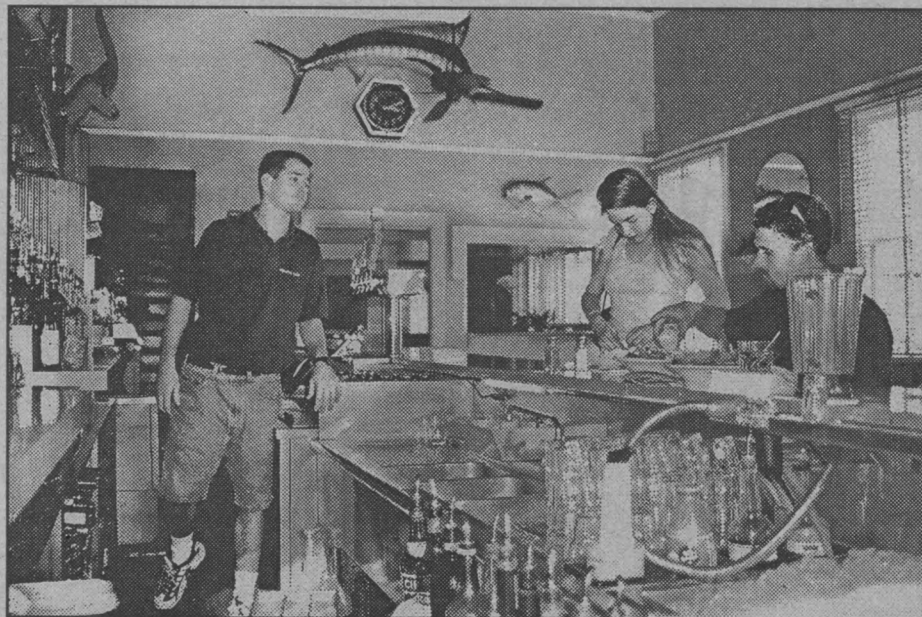

The waitress quickly realized she was being tested when the husband told her to pick out our wine ... her tip hanging in the balance.

In addition, she was ordered to cut a fresh swordfish fillet thin in order to cook it to the wife's desired flavor.

With flying colors she passed the first part of the trial, picking out a delectable and mild Santa Barbara chardonnay, which, I must add, went exceptionally well with the batch of steamers we had for an appetizer.

Part two of the test posed itself as no ordeal to the chefs: A thinly sliced cut of fresh swordfish found its way onto our table, tantalizing the wife's taste buds. Along with the swordfish, two orders of rock shrimp lemon and cream linguine gave me an understanding of what real pasta should taste like.

The food itself was enough for me to recommend Paradise Cafe for a cozy dinner, but service also proved impressive. Our waitress Jennifer said the secret to getting customer approval is in a vibe put out by the staff.

"We treat them well and try to make them feel like anything they want they can get," she said.

It may be a bit pricey, but if you want good food and classy ambience, Paradise Cafe may be a splurge worth making.
