Italian Food? The Chase Uptown Has Your Answer

By Thor Garcia

A nutty, bearded, apparently salty old chap peers out from cover of The Chase Uptown's menu. He looks to be some sort of crusty fisherman, what with a mean-looking net over one shoulder and a stuffed bag o' pescado slung under the other. His brow is quite furrowed. But it's the man's gnarled face that holds the most fascination. With an intense look of concentration, our man seems to be catching a whiff of something quite satisfactory. Maybe like fresh fish and chicken, accompanied by generous helpings of pasta smothered in thick, savory sauces and zesty cheeses, wafting from a nearby restaurant.

He's probably sniffing out Chase Uptown, the essence of Santa Barbara's italo cuisine. Recently selected as having the best Italian food in Santa Barbara in a reader's poll sponsored by the friendly, local Independent weekly newspaper, Chase Uptown is a delightful experience in casual dining, one highly recommended for first time daters looking for moderately priced excellence.

Completely unpretentious with its remodeled pizza parlor decor, soothing New Age background music and tasteful lighting, The Chase offers discriminating diners large portions of tender fish and chicken, scrumptuous veals and steaks, and of course, impeccably boiled pastas. And the portions are large — perhaps too generous for some, especially considering the pre-meal soup or salad and bread.

The menu is indeed plump, brimming with all variety of Italian delights. Diners, however, are also recommended to sample the daily special, as well as the succulent "Uptown Combos" — Jumbo Shrimp and Chicken Piccata (with side of Fettucine Alfredo) for $13.95, and the classic Surf and Turf (New York Steak and Medallion of Lobster Piccata, with Side of Spaghetti or Potatoes) for $19.95. And hey — let's not forget that fine selection of wines and beers.

As the sister restaurant of the lower State Street staple Chase Downtown, Chase Uptown (located at 3614 State St. in low-key Upper State) is an ideal fun-spot for collegians seeking a respite from the dreary gaggle of Isla Vista/Goleta beer-food-meat market nightspots. Beyond its downtown sister, The Chase Uptown features fish — and lots of it. And if the Uptown spot is too crowded, don't forget Downtown — both restaurants share the same chief chef, so the freshness (and quality) stays locked in.

The Chase is aggressively courting the UCSB market. With a new outdoor patio, which will feature in future weeks heat-releasing umbrellas coverings for those cool afternoons and evenings, the restaurant now has a delectable happy hour from 4-7 p.m. Monday through Friday. But here's the lucky catch: In addition to 99 cent beers, happy hourers can feast on a free pasta/pizza bar — delicatessen sure to enliven marathon beer-swilling, opposite-sex catching afternoons.

According to owner Bob Popp, The Chase is also entering the lucrative Monday Night Football and weekend dancing-live music markets. On Mondays, says Popp, ex-Raider All-Pro linebacker Brad Van Pelt will be keeping bar, and other pro footballers are destined to drop by and talk shop. Weekend partiers can groove to lively pop tunes until 1:30 a.m.

The Chase Uptown is located at 3614 State Street in Santa Barbara. For reservations call 682-8218.

This crusty, salty old chap seems to be sniffing his way to The Chase Uptown. Join him.

Egghead: For Those Early Mornings

By Charles Gomer Scott

For some reason, whenever I eat at The Egghead in Isla Vista I get the feeling of being at a diner. Although the waitresses aren't wearing silly pink dresses embossed with their name in long, fluid, cursive script, and there's no blue plate special on the menu, you still always know what to expect when you eat there.

Many consider The Egghead an I.V. institution, as they've been providing students with a consistently good place to have a huge breakfast, at a reasonable price, for longer than most can remember. I humbly agree with this assessment and feel privileged to introduce this landmark omelette point to those of you not familiar with it.

Just mentioned omelettes, and the reason for that is simple — there isn't a better one made in I.V. The last time I Egged it, my roommate and I arrived just before the morning rush, which seems to start anytime after 10 a.m. We both had omelettes, mine a #7 with tomato, bacon, onion and cheese, ($4.50) his a #3, the simpler sausage and cheese ($4.50).

The conversation was lively, but it really doesn't have to be: boring people can very easily sit in front of the picture window looking out on Pardall Road, taking in the spacious view of I.V. at its morning best, when half of the world does not seem to be out and about riding bikes on the wrong side of the street!

Ah, the Egghead. When the mornings are oh so early, and the head is pounding so dang hard, The Egghead will give you both emotional, spiritual and physical power.

While the short order cook stoked up our food on the grill directly across the counter from us, (maybe this is the touch that makes me think diner whenever I'm there), we drank coffee and did a little TM ... ok, you caught me — no TM, just coffee.

By the time our food arrived we were both feeling quite hungry, but no appetite could have prepared us for the mountain of food placed before us by a smiling, Egghead-t-shirted UCSB student/waitress. Meals come with a choice of two of the following: toast, English muffins, bagels or blueberry muffins, fresh fruit, cottage cheese, homefries or tortillas and beans. And if this isn't enough for you there are a variety of side orders as well.

While our omelette selections were fairly conventional, some of the other offerings were far from ordinary. Of the seventeen omelettes served the most popular is probably the Denver omelette, consisting of ham, onions, and cheddar cheese, topped with pineapple, ($4.50), although many people also return regularly for the #13, a combination of ham, mushrooms, cheddar cheese, and green onions topped with avocado, ($4.75).

For any non-conformists out there — you know who you are, the single person who refuses to eat what everyone else is having — fret not. The Egghead has other breakfasts besides their 17 omelettes. A stack of pancakes starts at $2.25 and goes up in price depending on what you have with it, and the french toast, rumored to be very thick and fluffy, served with maple syrup, starts at $2.75.

After we finished breakfast we slowly descended down the stairs, not looking forward at all to the long day of work and studies ahead. Perhaps a sign of just how good the breakfast was were my roommate's last words as we parted on our separate ways: "I feel like going to sleep!"

The Egghead is open for breakfast and lunch from 7:00 a.m.-2 p.m. weekdays and 7:30-2 on the weekend. They are located upstairs at the corner of Pardall and 900 Embarcadero del Mar.
