College Bookstore Hours Are Extended

Regular hours of the College Bookstore as established by the business office are from 7:45 am to 2 pm. However when the demand warrants longer hours the bookstore remains open after the usual 2 o'clock closing. During registration the bookstore remains open until 4:30 pm and after that period business hours are returned to the regular schedule.

New committee and Board Chairmen must be chosen this semester. Applications and further information can be had at the Student Body Office. Applications must be returned by Tuesday, May 26.

Goleta Open House To Be This Week

A Goleta Open House has been planned for Wednesday and Thursday, May 20 and 21 by the Social Committee under the direction of Ray Muhlethaler, chairman.

Cars will leave from the parking lot area at 2:00 both days. The caravan will enter the gates at the Goleta campus at 2:30. Ray urges all students who can to drive their cars and give others a ride to the new campus.

Included in the program will be a tour of the new home economics building and the speech department. Both are furnished with modern equipment. Also on the tour is the proposed site for Greek housing. No construction has been started on these buildings as yet. Construction of the permanent library and science buildings will be viewed also.

Refreshments will be served from 4 to 4:30 pm.

Assembly Planned For Presenting Awards

The annual Associated Students Award Assembly will be held on May 28, 1953 at 8:00 pm in the Riviera Auditorium. At this time awards will be presented to outstanding graduating seniors, the AMS and AWS. La Cumbre and El Gaucho awards will also be presented.

The new ASB president and the new Council will be introduced to the student body at this time. For entertainment Bill Mitchell has planned the program.

The Dean of Women has extended hours to 12:00 for freshman and sophomore women. Priscilla Simms, awards chairman, and Jean Newham, assembly chairman, have worked together to make this the best awards assembly ever. Joe Costantino will emcee the evening's show.

Browning Featured In Faculty Recital

Pianist Lloyd Browning will be heard in a Santa Barbara College faculty recital on May 19 at 8:30 pm in the Riviera Campus Auditorium, it was announced this week by the College music department.

This will be a free public concert, provided as a public service cultural activity by Santa Barbara College. Browning is an assistant professor of music and has been heard in scores of concerts locally during his residence of more than 15 years in Santa Barbara.

He has selected for his program music of the 19th century and will perform works of Brahms, Schumann and Chopin.

This is the second faculty recital presented this spring. Last month John E. Gillespie, pianist, with Clayton Wilson and Stefan Krayk, played selections from the 18th and 20th century music.

From Brahms, Browning will perform four short piano pieces written during the last decade of the great composer's life. Schumann's greatest work in large form for piano solo, Phantasie, will be included in the concert.

The last of the four Ballades by Chopin will conclude the concert. This is considered the most beautiful of the four and was long in attaining the popularity enjoyed by its forerunners.

Browning's appearances in Santa Barbara have varied from full solo concerts to chamber music presentations and occasionally as accompanist for outstanding touring vocalists and instrumentalists.

'Sing Out Sweet Land' Opens Thursday For Three Day Run in Riviera Auditorium

The long awaited singing out of "Sing Out, Sweet Land", will take place Thursday, Friday, and Saturday under the direction of Dr. Edwin Schoell in the Riviera Auditorium at 8:30 pm.

This musical revue by Walter Kerr which received such favorable comments from New York papers upon its opening in 1944 as "just wonderful", and "richly rewarding", presents the highlights of American history and recaptures the spirit of the ballad giving the audience a chance to reexperience the many favorite folk songs and dances that are so much a part of the American tradition.

In this musical biography, the elements of music, dance, and drama are combined and skillfully interwoven. At the conclusion, the audience will be aware that it has relived some of the most colorful periods of American history and has been reacquainted with the songs and dances that are a part of the American heritage.

Cast in the part of Barnaby Goodchild, the man who carries the spirit of the folk song from Puritan New England to the speak-easys of the pre-depression years, is Carl Zytowski, voice instructor at Santa Barbara College. Supporting Mr. Zytowski will be Peter Kane as Parson Killjoy, Gerry Cox as Priscilla, Joanne Reynolds as Aunt Charity, Dave Watson as Fiddler, Rolf Linn as Big Bear, Frank Rowley as the Corporal, George Meinke as the Lieutenant, Minor Rootes as the Villain, Mary Otten as Daisy, Frank Dumoulin as the Policeman, Shirley Kent and Betty Joyce as the Secretary and as the Stenographer and Claire Arnold as Maxie.

Of special interest will be the Mississippi Gambler scene, played by Gary Hess, Robert Hambleton, Connie Killgore and George Meinke. In this scene the song "Frankie and Johnny" will be sung by Marilyn Child and will be danced by Arlan Welsh, Jackie Jackson and Connie Killgore.

Soloists in the show include Mickie Silverman, Patricia Fowler, Dave Watson, Jackie Jackson and Claire Arnold. Chorus parts will be sung by Barbara Swain, Marilyn Ringel, Carolyn Cox, Patricia Williams, Tova Duncan, Beverly Cain, Elitta Shaffer, Nancy Stiles, David Pearson, Pete Dekker, Robert Boettcher, Ron Ward and Robert Vogelsang.

Others in the cast include Mary Jane Flanagan, Barbara Wynken, Ray Cooper, Judith Mills, and members of the Women's physical education dance classes and the Men's Glee Club. Mr. Zytowski is musical director and Jean Bellinger is in charge of choreography. Maurice Faulkner will direct the orchestra.

The play is sponsored by the Speech and Music departments of the College, and is to be presented by the Associated Students. Tickets are available at the Santa Barbara Music Company and at the Graduate Manager's Office.

Library Committee To Stop Excess Noise

Crown and Scepter, senior women's honorary, and the Library Committee are working on a plan to improve library conditions. The excess noise in the library seems to be of concern as it is making study conditions very difficult.

The committee pointed out that in the past the library has too often been used for social rather than study purposes. The suggestion box outside the library may be used for student suggestions or criticism concerning the committee's work.

Legislative Council Defeats Resolution Censuring Congressional Investigators

(Editor's Note—Because of the controversy over this article, it is printed exactly as it was in the News-Press. Furthermore, it is the Editor's belief that this article presents an accurate and reasonably unbiased account of the discussion.)

A resolution designed to censure the Congressional investigations of colleges and universities was defeated last Tuesday night by a vote of 8 to 7 by the legislative council of the Associated Students of Santa Barbara College.

The legislative council thus failed to seize an opportunity to become the first group of students in the United States officially to go on record against the investigations. The resolution named the Senate's Jenner committee and the House's Velde committee as being the creators of "an atmosphere of fear, suspicion and distrust" in the educational institutions of America.

Senior Class President Gordon Hardey who had been one of the staunchest opponents of the resolution when it was first introduced two weeks ago, said intensive research on his part had revealed nothing good about the investigations or the investigators. This proved to be somewhat of a surprise to the assemblage, since he had been expected to offer the major vocal opposition.

But the opponents were not long without a spokesman.

Joe Costantino offered a lengthy attack on the proposal. Some of his major points were:

1. The students have no right to be concerned with the welfare of the faculty.

2. Academic freedom has a relative meaning and "freedom" implies a duty to conform.

3. The state of fear is much exaggerated.

4. The Legislative Council has no right to censure a group which is representative of the American public.

5. The Legislative Council, a representative group of students, has no right to act without the express consent of the electorate.

Costantino offered support to his stand by quoting from Elmer Davis, nationally known newsman and commentator who has been one of the bitterest foes of the Jenner and Velde committees.

Bill Hoisington and Pauline Byard spoke in rebuttal to Costantino's arguments, pointing out that the Legislative Council has as much right to act independently of the electorate as do the investigating committees. Miss Byard, who introduced the resolution, pointed out that the very basis for representative government is the assumption that elected officials are assumed to be a cross section of the group they represent.

Costantino expressed his fear of the consequence should the students pass such a resolution, pointing out that present circumstances indicate that such action might result in bad publicity.

Hoisington countered with the suggestion that it was just such a state of unreasoning fear that the resolution was designed to combat.

Let Logic Decide The Issue

Legislative Council last week rejected a proposal which would have put the students of Santa Barbara College on record as censuring the Velde and Jenner Committees of Congress for their investigations of colleges and universities.

There might have been varied reasons for rejecting the proposal. Some members of Council may have felt that matters which deal with faculty and administrative problems should not be a concern of the students. Others may have felt that the Congressional investigators are rendering a real service.

Whatever their motives, the fact remains that the rejection of the proposal is tantamount to a tacit acceptance of the aims and methods of the Jenner and Velde Committees. That acceptance means that the Legislative Council believes that the colleges are not able to take care of their own problems and that legislators, members of political parties, are better able to handle the problems for them.

Our constitution separates the government into three branches—the legislative, the judicial and the executive. Nothing in our constitution gives the Senate or the House the privilege of conducting an investigation except for the purpose of enacting legislation. Any other investigation is an infringement upon the duties of the executive and the judicial branches.

No one, not even Jenner or Velde, has suggested legislation in connection with their investigations of the colleges.

But the most significant aspect of these investigations is the methods used and the results attained. Hardly anyone who reads the newspapers with care can fail to admit that the inquisitorial tenor of the investigating is reprehensible. A witness, unless he is favorable to the committees, is seldom given the opportunity to offer a full rebuttal to the charges.

But the greatest harm is to our American tradition of a fair trial. The accusations are made public and the majority of Americans are so concerned with the problem of Communism, so wary of subversion, so susceptible to fear that the accused is literally tried and convicted before the facts are presented.

One citizen has termed the investigations an "unemployment committee", because even if the accused is cleared he is left with an aura of suspicion surrounding him.

It is unfortunate that the major opponent of the proposition which was before the Legislative Council resorted to the same tactics which have characterized the investigations themselves. He was not content to have the case decided on its merits, not content to let logic decide the issue. Instead he resorted to innuendo, implication and vague allegation and insinuation.

It is a favorite trick of the professional witch hunters to quote out of context. The spokesman for the opposition resorted to just that strategy when he read an excerpt from a book by Elmer Davis. Davis happens to be one of the most vigorous foes of the investigations and has said, "The best reason I know for investigating the colleges is that Mr. Velde is a college graduate himself." Yet a quotation from Davis was used in such a way that it appeared that he endorsed the investigations.

It is also unfortunate that the spokesman for the opposition to the proposition reverted to the supposed authority of Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul in suggesting that the investigations were acceptable to the University of California. The student said, "What's good enough for Bobby Sproul is good enough for me."

The implication that Dr. Sproul approves the investigations is completely false.

A statement by the Association of American Universities, endorsed by the University of California, says in part—

"Unless a faculty member violates a law . . . his discipline or discharge is a university responsibility and should not be assumed by political authority. Discipline on the basis of irresponsible accusations or suspicion can never be condoned. The university is competent to establish a tribunal to determine the facts and fairly judge the nature and degree of any trespass upon academic integrity . . . To insist upon complete conformity to current beliefs and practices would do infinite harm to the principle of freedom, which is the greatest, the central, American doctrine."

Dr. Sproul was even more specific in a Charter Day speech in Los Angeles earlier this year. He said—

"A university, in the public interest as well as its own, must be hospitable to an almost infinite variety of opinions and theories, not all of which will be immediately popular, and some of which many of us will look upon as absurd and dangerous. Yet, a university must support its professors at times in the study and discussions of such ideas, relying upon constant critical evaluation of wild ideas by the overwhelming majority of sane scholars, and upon the invincibility of truth in competition with error . . . There is clearly a communist threat that must be faced, and communist infiltration and subversion that must be destroyed, but there is also a clear and present peril that we may lose our liberties by the very means we employ to defend them."

It must be a source of considerable consternation to those Americans who fought fascism in the last World War to see fascistic and totalitarian philosophy so readily assimilated by a supposedly democratic society.

The attempt to channel, to mould, to subvert free thought is the greatest danger to our country today. The colleges have always been able to solve their own problems and there is no reason to believe that they can't do so today—without the aid of short-sighted, self-appointed inquisitors.

UP ON THE HILL . . . by Joe Costantino

In this issue of UP ON THE HILL I should like to suggest that you turn first to page one and read the reprint of an article from the May 6th edition of the News-Press.

I address this article as an open letter to the Legislative Council of the Associated Students:

Dear Members:

Recently you heard the greater part of your meeting devoted to debate on the resolution concerning Congressional Investigations. After hearing the debate, and reading the article the News-Press carried, you can now see how easily ideas, and quotes can be changed to fit a situation, or can be slanted. The article was not written by a News-Press reporter, but was authored right here on campus. It was written by a person who is a supporter of the resolution you considered. I'm not objecting to what has been done with the article—that is legal within our own concepts of free press. The fact that I am allowed to write this article is further proof of our free press.

I only desire to point out that this is what can happen in cases where a student body, or its elected representatives are asked to make a decision on a current controversial topic. I am not condemning personal views or opinions, as some may warn you. In my debate I tried to most strongly urge that Student Council investigate fully, not just on hearsay, and that they carefully consider the implications before making a statement on such a topic.

The Congressional Investigating Committees are one of our most controversial topics today. Many intelligent, well-informed experts all over the nation, and in Europe are considering the committees. Do not be misled into believing that any majority group has made up its mind on the question yet. The truth of the matter will not be known for many months, or maybe years. Everyone seems to have his own slant on the topic. Your own vote in student council of 8-7 against the resolution indicates how your own group is divided.

Back in the early part of the fall semester everyone was talking about the presidential race. Since it was such a discussed political question, the whole student body had the opportunity to express its preference of Mr. Eisenhower or Mr. Stevenson. They indicated their choice, and had an opportunity to express themselves as a group on the question.

If the resolution had not been defeated in your council you would have endorsed something equally controversial without referring it to the voters that you represent. How many of you were contacted by students? How many of you knew accurately their opinions? How much investigation into the subject had you conducted? I think it is to your credit that you voted the proposal down, because I do not think these points had been considered before the meeting.

Contrary to what the News-Press article may imply, I am not personally upholding either Mr. Jenner, or Mr. Velde. I do not mean to imply that Legislative Council is not representative of the student body. I do not believe I was accurately quoted when the News-

Press reported that a major point of my attack was "The students have no right to be concerned with the welfare of the faculty". Anyone may contact either the Provost or the Dean of Men, for they know my views on the relationship of student to faculty; and I have no fear of any investigation of my ideas on the matter.

As student council members you heard my arguments. You have now read the article. I think you can see how easily a resolution might be slanted. This is why I think that no college group of representatives should become involved in political debates using the name of the University, and the Student Body without consulting them.

The News-Press article started off by stating that our student council failed to seize the opportunity to become the first group of students in the United States officially to go on record as against the investigations. I would like our council to be first in many things; I would not like them to be first in this type of political issue.

Council members, check further into this question. It is a big one. Find out what elements and persons are behind the resolution. Ask them why they don't want the investigations here, and listen carefully to their arguments. You owe it to the student body.

Don't let anyone use fear to sway you in your decision. The people upholding this resolution say they are for this resolution because they are against fear.

In that same issue of the News-Press check Dorothy Thompson's column on the editorial page. She quotes a distinguished British writer Rebecca West. Read what she has to say about this question. It is very enlightening.

Sincerely,

Joseph P. Costantino, Jr.

Works of Art in the Santa Barbara Mission Topic of Lecture Today by Dr. Donald Baer

Dr. D. Mackenzie Brown's lecture was cancelled last week due to illness. It will be given May 20 instead.

Dr. Kurt Baer, associate professor of art will speak on "The Santa Barbara Mission as a Museum of Spanish Colonial Art" at the All-College lecture today at 4 pm in PH 100. This is an unusual opportunity for the Mission is both a monastery and seminary as well as a parish church and many of the works of art to be discussed are in rooms inaccessible to the public. Dr. Baer has been conducting special research on the Mission collection for some years and has taken many colored slides himself which he will use to illustrate the lecture.

Dr. Baer said, it should be understood that these paintings and sculpture were not gathered as a collection but to decorate and enrich the church and for the inspiration of the congregations. Our Mission collection is an example of what amounts to the oldest permanent art collection in the country.

Dr. Baer will discuss the pieces of art in the order of acquisition rather than importance. The oldest single piece is a fine example of polychromed wood sculpture, "St. Anthony of Padua", which was brought from Mexico in 1790. He has done considerable work in tracing down the history and style of these pieces in his continuing research project.

Dr. Baer was formerly director of the Ramona Pageant at Hemet and also author, designer and director of ballet for the Hollywood Bowl. He assisted Max Reinhardt in his school of theater in Hollywood before the war. From 1931 to 1947 he was on the faculty of Occidental College.

He came to Santa Barbara College in 1947 and has been active here in the presentation of cultural radio programs over station KTMS and as a public lecturer on the arts. He is also a regular contributor to the art criticism columns of the News-Press.

Dr. Meshke on Leave Of Absence for Illness

Dr. Edna D. Meshke, chairman of the department of home economics at Santa Barbara College, has been granted a leave of absence for the remainder of the spring semester because of illness. She has departed for the east for medical treatment.

Miss Alice V. Bradley, professor of home economics, was named acting chairman of the department until Dr. Meshke's return, it was announced by Dr. J. Harold Williams, provost.

The History Club held its last formal meeting of the year Thursday night in the AWS room under the sponsorship of Dr. Henry Adams.

Johanna Roettcher gave an interesting talk on the place and organization of the German Youth group in the Hitler regime. She told of her personal experience during the war and the present situation in Germany.

Plans were made for informal gatherings to be held later in the semester and then a discussion of foreign affairs was held.

GAUCHO NINE SPLITS DOUBLEHEADER WITH WAVES

End Season Saturday In Doubleheader at San Diego State

Santa Barbara College's baseball team, whose most ardent fans must admit has been less than consistent this season, put on another exhibition of hot-and-cold baseball last weekend, splitting a doubleheader with Pepperdine's Waves, 19-12 and 3-8.

The Gauchos wind up the season in San Diego this weekend, playing the Marines on Friday and meeting San Diego State in a doubleheader Saturday.

Santa Barbara relied upon some timely hitting to win the wild first game and then fumbled away the nightcap. Jerry McIlvaine went the distance in the opener, benefitting from some lusty support at the plate. He gave up 13 hits, walked 10 and struck out five.

Bob Emirhanian started on the mound for the Gauchos in the seven-inning second game. He was the victim of erratic support, the Waves counting three unearned runs in the third inning. A two-run homer by Bill Davis tied the score in the bottom of the third, but the visitors scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth on a single, a stolen base, a sacrifice and an outfield fly.

Then in the seventh the Waves broke the game wide open when Jim Gregory hit a three-run homer to put the game on ice. That came off Reliefer Duane Mittan.

Dave Gorrie and Davis, playing their last games before Santa Barbara audience (and it was the biggest crowd of the season) punctuated their departure with home runs. Dave got two in the first game, one with the sacks jammed, and Davis collected his in the nightcap.

Sig Taus, Splitters Battle for Top Spot

All semester long two teams have been fighting for first place bowling honors and the three foot trophy that goes to the winner. Going into the final night these two teams are tied for first place and are quite out of the reach of any of the other teams. These two teams, Sigma Tau Gamma and the Splitters are scheduled to play each other tomorrow night in a do-or-die battle. This will be a real test as both teams are equally matched.

Sailing Club Plans Trip to Islands

A weekend sail to the Channel Islands is being planned by the Sailing Club for sometime within the next two weeks. First chance for passage will go to club members and guests, and can be reserved by contacting Chet Ward, Chappy Bortz, Cliff Horn, or Ed Brown.

A meeting will be held on May 21 at 7:30 pm in Pine Hall 101 for the purpose of electing officers and discussing reorganization of the club, since the sailing team, formally incorporated into the club has now been recognized as a college minor sport.
