CHILDHOOD

CHILDHOOD STARS WHO WOUND UP WITH HORRIBLE LIVES, IN JAIL, DEAD OR ALL THREE

Teen and childhood stars who at an early age are adored by millions find themselves the butt of many jokes, rejected by the public and the producers who formerly clamored after them. Most of their problems can be attributed to the fact that what made them cute as youngsters turns out to be mutant ugliness as adults, combined with a lack of talent which their cute factor hides. The result is washed out at 17 and in the rehab at 18. One can only look at stars such as Corey Feldman and pray he has a strong will.

1. Todd Bridges: The one-time teen star of Diff'rent Strokes has been one of the most determined of the self-destructive teen stars. Bridges is really bitter because in his heyday he was second banana to Gary Coleman. Why he couldn't take the Porsche and been happy, we civilians will never understand. Looks like two years in county for his alleged dabbings with crack-dealing Crips.

2. Gary Coleman For about a week in summer, Coleman made the talk show circuit claiming he was gearing up for a comeback (Diff'rent Strokes: the Next Generation?). This was followed by a failed attempt at rap music and suing his parents for embezzling his childhood earnings. This kid is BITTER. And who wouldn't be, if the reason for your popularity was your odd looks caused by liver disease? In a recent interview, Coleman claims he spends his days sleeping till noon and watching TV (searching for reruns of Webster most likely, and throwing things at the likeness of Emmanuel Lewis).

3. Drew Barrymore: Drew, who played the "cute little girl" in E.T., has certainly grown up fast. Late last year she entered a detox center for alcohol and drug abuse.

4. Danny Bonaduce: The former Danny Partridge couldn't be considered a total waste case. His most recent gig was maitre de at Sushi on Sunset in Hollywood, where people would continually say, "Hey, were you really Danny on the Partridge Family?" Danny, a black belt in karate, would occasionally beat the  $\frac{1}{2} \times \% $$  out of the guy if they followed up with, "You're still ugly." Which is true.

5. Buffy: No one remembers her real name, but she epitomizes the self-destructive teen star killing herself with a heroin overdose. Maybe she couldn't find Mrs. Beasley. By the way, Mr. French is dead now, too.

6. Elizabeth Taylor: Although she remains a star till this day, Taylor seems to be still scarred from the trauma of trying to make the jump from child to adult acting. Her many divorces, junk food addiction and lust for a stiff drink could be attributed to an arrested adolescence.

7. Adam Rich: Nicholas on Eight is Enough is still a nerd. But after several times of being in and out of rehab, he claims two months of being sober. How do we know he's clean? He's got a "wedge" haircut, of course!

2. Something Wile E. Coyote: Melanie Griffith, Wile E. Coyote ... suuuper social-outcasts-on-a-lost-weekend. I like the way that rolls out.
3. Magilla Gorilla in the Mist: Sigourney Weaver, Magilla Gorilla. He's out there, somewhere, and she's determined to find him before exploitative 'toon hunters do.
4. Uncle Scrooged: The lovable Disney ducks — Uncle Scrooge, Donald and the nephews — teach Bill Murray the true meaning of Christmas ... capitalism, pie-throwing and walking around without any pants, in that order.
5. Doctor Heckle and Mister Jeckle: Everyone's favorite pair of talking magpies team up with Lon Chaney III for a remake of this classic horror film.
6. Who Framed Roger Mudd?: This long-awaited version of the far-too-popular 60 Minutes news magazine features Roger Rabbit's debut as an investigative journalist, teaming up with veteran Roger Mudd on some tough interviews. Pleeeeeze tell our viewers, Ollie — didja do it or didntcha? Vreeeept! Hey, Ollie! Whadja go and run my ears through the shredder for?
7. Kiss of the Spiderman: The famed wall-crawling superhero explores the meaning of life from behind the walls of a South American jail.
8. She's Having a Muppet Baby: Elizabeth McGovern gives birth to horrifying, blood-crazed, goggle-eyed mutants Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy. Tobe Hooper directs.

10. Droopy Dancing: That manic-depressive dog-oid proves that he can really cut a rug in this musical, danceable, get-up-and-go feature set at a family resort in New York's Catskill Mountains. Her prudish parents try to get rid of the canine cartoon Casanova, but he keeps reappearing! It's like there's fifty million of him! But you know what, folks? I'm happy.
11. The Killing Garfields: The tubby tabby goes wild on a POW rescue mission in Vietnam. Sylvester Stallone directs.

12. Daffy Does Dallas: The first 'toon/live action porno flick features Daffy Duck as a randy young bachelor looking to get his beak blown off in the Texas metropolis. If this one starts a trend in 'toon porn, look for other titles such as The Tazmanian Devil in Miss Jones.

ALL-TIME FAVORITE
DINNER GUESTS FROM HISTORY

In order to make a dinner really special, I believe you need the right mix of people. That's why, for my list of all-time dinner guests, I chose people who I thought would be conducive to stimulating conversation, enlightening ideas, and potential hand-to-hand combat over hor d'oeuvres and apertifs.

1. The Prophet Mohammed and Author Salman Rushdie: These two cats would be the talk of the town on a Saturday night. I simply know they'd have oodles to talk about. And at my dinner parties, they'd be the biggest thing since sliced bread. We could rap, get to know each others' space, get intimate and get down to the nitty-gritty on the real issues — like did Moe really get these Koran books directly from God, or did he have a literary agent? And what's up with God these days? If there is only one God and Mohammed is his prophet, then who's His tailor? Who cleans His pool? Questions for Rushdie: Will you be able to make your next deadline? How come men like you don't go bald gracefully and stop combing what little you have all across your head? When will you learn to type with more than two fingers? You do this for a living dammit, and you may someday find yourself in a situation where you're holed up by the Islamic Jihad and you simply have to type with all 10 fingers in order to send out an S.O.S. as fast as possible. Then what will you do?

2. Debbie Gibson and Tiffany: I envision a sort of double-date with me as the spiritual apex. We would hit shopping malls, of course, where the young ladies could try on hats and exchange makeup tips. Then on to Carl's Jr. for some Western Bacon Cheeseburgers as me and my two teen cherubs sing campfire songs at the all-you-can-drink beverage bar. Weee-hoooo! What a dream date for the most eligible bachelor in Isla Vista!

3. Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and dead pianist Liberace: I'd love to get together with these two madmen and sing a hour-long medley from Guys and Dolls. Think of the inspirational implications for world peace: "Can do, can do, this guy says the horse can do...."

4. Former president Ronald Reagan and Any Really Good Las Vegas Hypnotist: Not only to figure out what's really happened with all those things the Gipper lied about during his eight years in the can, but to find out what makes this guy tick. Is he just as slow as the media made him out to be, or is he harboring some parasite, like a tapeworm-on-the-brain?

PEOPLE WHO PRETENDED TO DIE TO INCREASE THEIR POPULARITY BUT ARE STILL LIVING

1. Elvis: No kidding. Now living in a condominium in Aspen.
2. Jim Morrison: If he hung around he would have been exposed as the bad teenage angst poet that he is. His "death" has made him a rock god. Now living in a condominium in Aspen.
3. Bruce Lee: His best moment came when he fought Kareem Abdul Jabbar — a career peak. How could he top a karate battle with the 7'2" master of the sky hook? Death has made him a legend. Now living in a condominium in Aspen.
4. Andy Kaufman: Faking death hasn't panned out so well for the would-be comedian; probably because he wasn't that funny when he was alive. Now living in a condominium in Aspen, but his roommates Jim, Elvis and Bruce are annoyed with his antics.

PEOPLE WHO ARE STLL LIVING WHO SHOULD HAVE DIED

1. Emilio Estevez: If the young "I wish I was Charlie" Sheen had died right after the release of Repo Man, he would have achieved immediate cult status. Instead, he lingers on, torturing us with his toad-like face, giving his best performance in Maximum Overdrive.
2. Molly Ringwald: An aura of tragic beauty would have surrounded Ringwald if she had died right after the release of The Breakfast Club, but it would have required something pseudo-tragic like a drug overdose or being an early victim of AIDS to give her demise an Edie Sedgwick charm.
3. Mr. T: He would have achieved a tough-guy immortality if he had died from a sucker punch right after the release of Rocky III, thus sparing us a single episode of T 'n T.
4. Bono: The would-be king of the rock poets should have died in a plane crash on the way to Live Aid, thus placing him up with Giants such as Jim Morrison. Instead, we get Rattle and Hum.
Elvis: His actual demise would have spared us the whole 'Elvis Lives' stuff. We would have preferred spontaneous combustion during the Blue Hawaii show.

PEOPLE WHO ARE ACTUALLY DEAD BUT APPEAR TO BE ALIVE

1. Ronald Wilson Reagan: He really died from the assassin's bullet in 1981. Since then his likeness has been played by a clever Sid and Marty Kroft puppet with voice by Frank Oz.
2. Hugh Cronyn and Jessica Tandy: Spielberg and Lucas technology has animated their lifeless corpses since Cocoon. After the recent box office failure of Cocoon 2, expect a "retirement" of America's favorite oldsters.
3. Michael Jackson: In an odd multi-million-dollar deal, Disneycorp had Walt Disney's frozen brain inserted into the pop star's body. Jackson's brain is in the automated body of Abraham Lincoln at the "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln" exhibit.

IDIOTIC SPORTS BABBLETALKCLICHEDRIVEL

1. "He's a real competitor."
2. "They really need to win this game."
3. "That had to hurt."
4. "They reached down deep and pulled out some really big wins."
5. "It's up...it's in...it's out...it's NO GOOD!"
6. "They gave it all they had ... but it just wasn't enough."
7. "They won because they wanted it more."
8. "It's not over till it's over."
9. "You gotta be proud of these kids."
10. "And the crowd goes wild."

MOST BELOVED 20th CENTURY ADVERTISING ICONS

1. Pop Larsen: Builders Emporium's godlike, omniscient handyman
2. The Pillsbury Doughboy: primordial claymation figure
3. (Here comes) Kool-Aid: gigantic walking beverage jug
4. Mr. Clean: androgynous djinni
5. Hamburglar: the dark side of McDonaldland
6. Dig 'Em: retired amphibian, victim of anti-sugar advertising movement
7. The Michelin Man: second cousin to Doughboy.
8. The Bubble Yum Fiend: Remember him? He was the lovable, furry puppet spokesman for Bubble Yum between the time when it was the greatest thing since meatloaf and the time when it was taken off the market for a few months to work the carcinogens out of the original recipe. Where is he, now that we need him?
9. He-Man: the ultimate embodiment of sexism, violence and crass commercialism of the Reagan era — and can he act! "I Have the Power!"
10. Chef Boy-ar-Dee: dead Italian chef, master of the multi-course microwavable starch portion.
11. Sugar Bear: unlike Dig 'Em, above, a rugged survivor of the anti-sugar movement. Sure, they can change the name of his cereal to satisfy those Madison Avenue advertising weasels, but he has some things they can never take away — character, charm, coolness, eight tablespoons of sugar per serving, and a hip blue sweater that he never takes off. Certainly, the icon to model your life after.

The University Center/Recreation Center

The University Center/Recreation Center Expansion ballot measure will be on the Spring General Election, April 25-26. If you are interested in submitting a pro or con statement regarding this measure for inclusion in a voter pamphlet, this must be turned in to the Activities Planning Center or Dean of Students by 5 p.m., FRIDAY, MARCH 17.

Recreation Center/University Center Fact Sheet Student Fee Referendum - Spring 1989

Student input received through campus surveys and from the collection of approximately 7,000 signatures resulted in a recommendation that a proposal for expanded student service facilities (the RECen/UCen project) be brought before the campus via a special student fee election. State funds are not used to pay for student facilities.

On April 25th and 26th, students will have the opportunity to decide if new facilities will be built at UCSB.
