Firm Receives Supes' Approval To Appeal Case

By JAY DONATO
Nexus Staff Writer

In a 3-1-1 vote Monday, the Board of Supervisors allowed an appeal of a proposal to develop a housing project in Ellwood by the private development firm Financial Properties Ltd. to be heard by the County Planning Commission.

The firm was appealing the commission's earlier 5-0 vote against their proposed development of a 200 unit condominium project in the Ellwood area, on the north side of Hollister Ave. at the intersection of Santa Barbara Shores Dr.

Last year's commission meetings on the issue included input from opposing public groups at the open hearings.

The approved procedure allows the firm to go back before the commission without a public hearing. The firm is appealing the commission's previous decision.

"They (the developers) were within their rights today, I just don't think the process is very good and if the board wanted to get into this issue, they (the board) should've just continued this for a week and had a public hearing on whether or not they should sponsor it (the appeal)," Bill Wallace, supervisor of the affected third district and against the appeal, said.

After the commission completes their hearings, the issue will be presented to the board for a final decision on Nov. 14, Wallace said.

"It looks like the handwriting...is on the wall," Wallace said predicting that the measure will eventually pass. "This particular developer and this particular location seem to have everything wired. They (the developers) are really looking to make a major profit. They really didn't pay much for the land."

Voting in favor of sending the proposal back to the commission for further review, were supervisors Robert Kallman, DeWayne Holmdahl and David Yeager.

Kallman, not stating a position on the project, does support the question of changing the zoning from 12.3 housing units an acre to 20 housing units an acre. The only way this issue could be dealt with was to have the board send the appeal back to the commission.

"The staff has encouraged the 20 housing unit per acre zoning. This is one way of looking into it," Kallman said. The higher density of housing an acre was one way of trying to provide more affordable housing in the south coast area, he explained.

The project was turned down earlier partly because of lack of information on land use and the availability of water; these issues remain unresolved, according to the commission's report.

"The land use issues are just a disaster and the Goleta Water District has come up with a statement saying that there 'ain't no more water out there,'" Wallace said.

According to board policy, nothing may be approved under the general plan if the water basin is fully committed, Wallace explained.

Eventually, the final decision will rest with the board. If approved plan, the Goleta Water District could sue to stop the development, according to Wallace.

Alcohol Limited In On-Campus Residence Halls

By TRACY DUNIGAN
Nexus Reporter

Beginning this fall, UCSB students living in on-campus residence halls will have to comply with a modified alcohol policy restricting drinking in residence halls to the individual student's room.

"We've always had an alcohol policy," Director of Housing and Residential Services Butch Kirkelie said. After reviewing the policy for well over a year, modifications were made limiting alcohol consumption in residential halls to the students' rooms, he explained.

Previously, alcohol was frequently consumed and permitted in the halls and semi-public areas such as the lounges, T.V. rooms and study rooms of the residence halls, Kirkelie said.

The modified policy resulted from the work of the task force, which compiled suggestions on how to minimize the risks the university incurs by turning its head at under-aged students drinking on campus, Kirkelie said.

Stating that "alcohol is a private matter," Kirkelie expressed hope that limiting alcohol to the students' rooms would lead to less abuse of alcohol without depriving students of their right to privacy.

Difficulties with the previous policy arose when large parties formed and students drank in community areas, he said. Kirkelie explained the issue as a matter of the "privacy of their rooms vs. public and community areas."

"Most U.C. campuses are more conservative," Kirkelie said, adding that 65 percent of the students living on campus are freshmen and sophomores and therefore generally fall below the legal drinking age in California.

The Santa Ynez university-owned apartments are not affected by this particular policy since 80-90 percent of the students living there are upper-classmen or graduate students and are legally of age to drink alcohol. "There are two different communities to address," Kirkelie said.

Kirkelie also pointed out three issues last spring's committee considered important as being the "student's right to sleep, study and socialize."

"We are not telling the students they cannot drink, but what they do in their own rooms is their own business," Dierdre Anderson, Resident Assistant at Anacapa Hall said. The students have been warned that the halls, main lounge and recreation rooms are off limits, she added.

Students violating the new policy by allowing parties where alcohol is being served to drift into the hall will be written up and the situation documented by their R.A., she explained.

"It'll probably take writing up a few people to let others know that we're serious," Anderson commented.

She said that such action was an effort to "promote responsible drinking," as well as protect the university which could theoretically be held liable if any accidents were incurred by under-age students drinking on campus.

"Now what they're basically saying is that the university cannot afford to be liable because it can be

Health Care No Longer Free

By DENISE WILLIAMS
Nexus Staff Writer

UCSB students who are eligible for student health services on campus can no longer receive free care or discounts from Planned Parenthood in Santa Barbara.

Budget cutbacks at the state level have forced the Office of Family Planning to write a new set of standards and guidelines, Debbie Zeluff, Planned Parenthood member explained. The Planned Parenthood office in Santa Barbara lost approximately $150,000 due to the new standards and guidelines, she said.

One new regulation was the elimination of all funds available for persons who can receive financial assistance from other programs whether they are provided by Student Health Services, Medi-Cal, the Armed Services, or other forms of insurance.

Zeluff explained that UCSB students can still seek services at Planned Parenthood, but they will now have to pay regular fees.

Planned Parenthood member Carrie Stanler said the new guidelines will effect approximately 1,500 UCSB students who use Planned Parenthood's facilities.

She was unsure as to how many students would be able to pay the required fees for services, but said, "I know that it is going to be hard for some UCSB students to continue." She added, "If these people can't pay, I don't know if UCSB can handle it."

Students from UCSB choose to go to Planned Parenthood in Santa Barbara rather than use the facilities available on campus, Zeluff said, because some students believe there would be more privacy off campus. She added that some students living in Santa Barbara probably found it more convenient to go to the office closest to their home rather than Student Health Services on campus.

Despite Zeluff's regret that students could no longer receive funding at Planned Parenthood, she was very supportive of the program at Student Health Services. She said the campus provided students with good gynecological care.

In response to the uncertain demands that will be put upon her UCSB department, Celia Breyfogle from the gynecology clinic at Student Health Services said, "We do believe we will be able to accommodate people without too much of a problem." She explained that all examinations are funded by registration fees, though students have to pay a minimal fee for contraceptives.

Students' privacy at Health Services is well protected, Breyfogle said, in regard to students' fears of privacy. She explained that students go to the GYN clinic for many reasons, not just those related to birth control. She stated that no one, including the student's parents and the administration, can get information from student charts unless the patient signs a written release. Because of these and other reasons, Breyfogle said she did not think that students felt concern for their privacy.

Because of the cutbacks in funding, Planned Parenthood's

Academic Senate Sets Goals

By MARY DOLL
Nexus Staff Writer

The Academic Senate at UCSB plans to focus on the reformation of the general education requirements, budget allocation, fiscal policy, and maintaining the academic quality of the university during the year, Academic Senate Chair W. Elliot Brownlee said.

The primary function of the Academic Senate, according to Brownlee, is to permit the faculty to carry out their constitutional responsibility for the course curriculum at the university.

In addition, the Academic Senate deals with other aspects of the university. "We are also concerned with the quality of academic programs, faculty peer review, the university's budget, and affirmative action," Brownlee said.

The general education requirements will again be a major topic of discussion, as they were last year when the foreign language requirement was changed by the senate, Brownlee said.

"We have a proposed package that will undergo an expeditious review by the senate. We plan to reach a firm decision this year," he said.

Brownlee feels that the undergraduate curriculum can be enhanced with new requirements, and he said he hopes to emphasize the senate's responsibility in the area of educational programming. The faculty members are almost completely responsible for the university's curriculum, he explained.

Brownlee hopes to promote the expansion of the senate's responsibility in the fiscal policy of the university. However, he feels students, faculty and administrators must all work together to maintain a quality institution.

We must increase funds in order to resist tuition, maintain the quality of our academic programs, and continue to educate people as to the high standard of education that the university offers, Brownlee said. "We must convince the people of California that the U.C. system is worthy of support and expansion," he added.

Brownlee also said the state legislature must decide how it wants the university to operate in the 1990's. "Without an increase in funding we will see a significant decline in the system's standard of education," he said.

Currently U.C. salaries fall far behind the national average for the comparable institutions across the nation. According to Brownlee, faculty salaries must be maintained in order to maintain the system. "The university is currently undergoing a crisis," he said.

The Academic Senate is comprised of approximately 700 faculty members, according to Academic Senate Assistant Chair Peggy Rhoads. The majority of the senate's work is completed through various committees, whose members are elected or appointed according to statewide guidelines, she said.

The Faculty Legislature is the core group of the senate. It is composed of professors who are concerned with the well-being of the university. Because of this concern, Brownlee feels that the Academic Senate has a high level of autonomy.

World Snipers In Lebanon

The Lebanese army battled snipers in the central mountains and Beirut suburbs Monday despite a cease-fire in the three-week-old renewal of the civil war. Two more Lebanese soldiers were reported killed.

Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a Sunni Moslem, and his 10-man Cabinet bowed to the demands of the Syrians and Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and resigned to pave the way for a national unity government.

President Amin Gemayel, a Christian, said he asked the 58-year-old prime minister to stay on "until the features of the new era crystallize, and arrangements to usher it in are completed."

Soviet officials gave a U.S.-Japanese delegation five crates of fuel-soaked clothes and other debris but no bodies from the downed South Korean jetliner Monday, leaving the visitors disappointed and suspicious.

"I was not surprised by the meagerness. I tended to think it would be like that," said one of the Americans, characterizing the 76 items returned in the four-hour meeting. The Soviets claimed they surrendered all they had found.

A Soviet jet fighter shot down Korean Air Lines flight 007 on Sept. 1 over Sakhalin island, killing all 269 people aboard including 61 Americans.

Declaring "a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought," President Reagan offered Monday to make new proposals to limit medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe, and challenged the Soviet Union to make similar concessions.

Reagan told the U.N. General Assembly that if the Soviets make concessions of their own, the United States will consider a new ceiling on the number of U.S. missiles in Europe, reductions in planned deployment of the new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles and companion curbs on numbers of aircraft.

Nation Weapons Build-up Planned

The government plans to build 17,000 new nuclear weapons and retire only 6,000 old ones over the next 10 years, and nothing President Reagan proposed in his United Nations speech will reduce those figures, the Center for Defense Information said Monday.

In a study on the U.S. nuclear stockpile, the center, a pro-disarmament organization headed by four retired military officers, called the projected increase "excessive," especially in view of U.S. policy to use weapons only to deter the Soviets from attacking.

President Reagan's problems with female voters have little to do with so-called women's issues, but instead stem from many women's concern that his policies endanger prosperity and peace, a newspaper poll said.

The Los Angeles Times said responses to its national opinion poll offer the president no clear, short-term solution to the "gender gap" — which shows up in polls as a lower level of support for him among women as compared to men — other than a drastic shift in his fundamental policies.

The Times poll, published Monday, shows that 63 percent of the men questioned and 55 percent of the women queried approve of Reagan's job performance.

The poll found Reagan has the approval of 59 percent of the citizenry of both sexes — a sharp rise of seven percentage points above the last Times poll rating in June.

Continental Airlines announced it will resume service to 25 U.S. cities Tuesday under protection of a federal bankruptcy court, cutting top employees' salaries in half and offering $49 one-way domestic fares this week.

On Saturday Continental President Frank Lorenzo announced the nation's eighth-largest airline had filed for reorganization and temporarily suspended flights to all 78 U.S. cities it served after posting losses of $471.9 million since January 1979.

When Continental returns to service, it will have just 27 percent of the flights it had prior to filing its reorganization petition, Lorenzo said. Domestic service is being slashed by two-thirds and only about 35 percent of the airline's 12,000 employees will be on the job. More will be added as the company grows, he said.

The stock market, responding to hopes for lower interest rates, pushed ahead Monday in an advance that carried the Dow Jones industrial average to a new closing high for the third time in the past week.

The Dow Jones industrials rose 5.18 to 1,260.77, surpassing the record of 1,257.52 established last Thursday.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 86.40 million shares, against 93.18 million Friday.

WEATHER — Low clouds are expected in the late night and mornings, then mostly sunny in the afternoons through Wednesday. Highs in 70s. Lows 55 to 65.

State Chavez Promotes Nonviolence

United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez called on growers Monday to adopt "a code of conduct" to help avoid violence such as the fatal shooting of a dairy worker at a union election.

Chavez said he sent letters to major California growers' groups asking that their leaders meet with him "to ensure that no one — on either side — forfeits his or her life needlessly during a farm labor dispute."

The letter called on growers' groups to "institute a code of conduct that your members will follow that will avoid the senseless violence that brings no honor to any class or community."

Marathon talks conducted through a federal mediator attempted to reach an agreement and avoid a threatened strike Tuesday night against San Francisco's two major daily newspapers.

Eight newspaper unions representing 2,800 editorial and other employees have been in talks with the San Francisco Newspaper Agency since November. The agency jointly operates advertising, printing and distribution of the San Francisco Chronicle and the Examiner. The papers maintain separate editorial departments.

"We've got the San Jose Mercury people and the San Francisco people all meeting. We are continuing to discuss the issues and 'I'm still guardedly optimistic. That's about it,'" William Sabatino, the mediator holding the talks at the Holiday Inn Union Square said Monday.

Labor contracts between the agency and the unions expired December 31.

A Superior Court judge Monday ordered the release of 1963 "Onion Field" police killer Gregory Powell, ruling that the state parole board made numerous errors when it cancelled his scheduled parole last year.

Judge Ellis Randall of Solano County said the board had relied on improper evidence of an unproven act of sexual misconduct and apparently had relied on public outcry, despite denials that it was a factor.

He ordered Powell released from prison within 10 days.

Deputy Attorney General Dane Gillette said he would ask a state appeals court in San Francisco to reverse the ruling and to block Powell's release in the meantime.

Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy says he is upset about the "unbecoming anger and bitterness that exists" between Gov. Deukmejian and the legislature.

McCarthy, a Democrat who was state Assembly speaker for six years, said the Republican governor must learn to compromise with majority Democrats in the legislature.

McCarthy was interviewed by the editorial board of the Stockton Record and his remarks were printed in the newspaper's Saturday editions.

He was asked what his feelings were about the recently concluded 1983 session of the legislature.

"Anger. Anger. Anger. Anger. Anger. Anger," he replied.

"In my 14 years in Sacramento, I have not seen greater distance between a legislature and a governor than I saw this year, including the unbecoming anger, that bitterness that exists."

Muriel Davidson, a prolific writer whose articles about Hollywood celebrities and organized crime appeared in some of the nation's most-read magazines, was shot to death in her fashionable hillside home, police said Monday.

Lt. Ron Lewis said the body of the television executive and murder mystery writer was discovered about 1:45 a.m. Monday in the house she and her husband, Bill shared in Benedict Canyon, an exclusive residential area in the hills overlooking Los Angeles.

An autopsy planned Tuesday should determine when she died, Lewis said.

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Becomes Active

By DINA KYRIAKIDOU
Assistant County Editor
Revival and recognition are the goals of the UCSB chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha, a predominantly black fraternity which is becoming active this year, the fraternity's leaders said.

"We're a distinguished organization and I would hate for it to go unrecognized on campus," Mark Lockett, the fraternity's vice president said. "We're back on this campus and we do have certain goals."

"To build black unity as demonstrated by our fraternal bond and to promote the love of all mankind is after all the whole idea behind Alpha Phi Alpha," Pickett said.

For the last couple of years Alpha Phi Alpha has been an inactive fraternity on campus. The membership decreased and in 1981 there was only one member.

"It's the quality that matters not the quantity. This is proven by the fact that one member, Chester Wilson Jr., managed to bring new life to the fraternity. Due to his efforts this chapter has been reactivated," Lockett said.

The UCSB chapter was founded in 1976 and for the first five years it was quite active in community services and social functions while also emphasizing scholastic achievement, Lockett said.

"We have to rebuild, we're the entire chapter. I think we can do it," Tony Pickett, Alpha Phi Alpha president, said.

"We're in the planning stages right now," Lockett said. "We're trying to stay oriented with the reasons the fraternity was founded. We try to stay away from the stereotypes that go along with other fraternities."

The fraternity's activities include helping the local chapters of the National Urban League, the National Association for Advancement of Colored People and the Afro-American group of Santa Barbara, according to Lockett.

"The black population on campus is small and we will provide activities for this group specifically," Fraternity President Leon Walker said. "Since the fraternity was founded on academic scholarship we will go on helping younger students."

Alpha Phi Alpha was founded in 1906 at Cornell University at a time when higher education for black people was hard to obtain, Lockett said. A group of black men decided to stick together, and the fraternity has developed ever since until now there are 500 chapters nationwide, he added.

Some of its members are Martin Luther King, Jessie Owens, Andrew Young and Hubert Humphrey, according to Lockett. "It's predominantly a black fraternity but it's not completely closed to other races," he said.

"I think we'll be very successful even between the four of us," Pickett said. "We will make a difference because we will be looked at and noticed for our positive things."

"We're part of the Interfraternity Council and we're looking forward to working with them this year," Lockett said. The fraternity had rush this quarter and Lockett explained that they might have a pledge class next quarter. "A few people participated in rush but more can come to us if they're interested."

The Santa Barbara Zoo is accepting applications for the 1983 Fall Docent Training Session. A docent is a trained volunteer who assists with educational programs. Docent duties include school group tours, demonstrations, shows and programs, animal interpretation and a variety of special projects.

The free training classes begin Thursday, October 13 from 9 a.m. — 12 noon. They will meet every Thursday morning (except Thanksgiving) through December 8. After graduation docents begin earning credit toward a Zoo membership and other benefits.

To obtain an application and fact sheet call the Zoo at 966-2863 or stop by the office.

Cease-Fire

In Lebanon a welcome silence has replaced the sound of constant gunfire following yesterday's early announcement of a cease-fire. Considering, however, the extremely poor success rate of Lebanon's former attempts to halt fire — as evidenced in both the Israeli/Palestinian outbreak, as well as the 1975-76 civil war — even the most optimistic believer must view this effort with some degree of skepticism.

The call for the cease-fire among the warring factions occurred at 6 a.m. Monday morning after three weeks of intense negotiations, aided by special U.S. Envoy Robert C. McFarlane. The immediate effect was to halt any further fighting between the Lebanese army and Syrian-supported Druse forces.

The cease-fire also arrives as a welcome relief to the 1,600 man U.S. Marine "peace-keeping" force which has continually, over the past weeks, been drawn farther into combative action. Just prior to the settlement, American troops found themselves forced into using ground and naval power to back the Lebanese army in holding the strategically important village of Souq il Gharb which overlooks Beirut.

With the military fighting now on hold, Lebanon President Amin Gemayel, as head of the newly created reconciliation council, can begin the slow process of reshaping a working political future with the many disgruntled factions. While yesterday's cease-fire may not be the permanent beginning to a peaceful end, the agreement to begin a national dialogue is certainly the first step toward healing the war-torn country.

Alcohol

In recent years many alcohol awareness programs have been educating citizens about the dangers of alcohol abuse, thereby creating a better public awareness of the potential misuse of this drug. Until recently, society has been unable to effectively aid in combatting the problems caused by the abusive drinker, who often finds himself/herself behind the driving wheel as a threat to innocent citizens.

Each year roughly 25,000 people die on American highways at the hands of drunk drivers. In order to improve this situation, programs have been initiated across the country wherein individual citizens report sightings of drunk drivers to local police. These programs have had tremendous success in 18 states.

Citizen reporting of drunk drivers can significantly aid in combatting irresponsible attitudes toward alcohol abuse. These same attitudes toward drinking are a major problem within the UCSB community. Similar to citizen reporting groups across the country, UCSB strives to make students more aware of alcohol problems existing around them. Such groups as the Team to Educate and Question Undergraduates and Increase Liquor Awareness (TEQUILA), Greeks for Responsible use of Alcohol Participant Effort (GRAPE) and the Health Center's Alcohol Awareness Program directed by Dr. Peter Claydon all contribute to educate students concerning alcohol use.

In order to begin to eradicate alcohol abuse, an educated and motivated citizenry is needed. People must be willing to become involved in steps aimed at protecting and educating people with alcohol problems.

LETTERS

Bike Reg.

Editor, Daily Nexus;
This letter is concerning my dismay at seeing a full page ad in the Monday the 26th issue in which A.S. asks student to not register their bikes.

A couple of weeks ago I got my class listing and enclosed was a small message from the bike committee, BEST, notifying me of the new policies and regulations for bike riding on campus. At first I was a little pissed off that a couple of people who are not students could force new rules and regulations on the student body, but before making a hasty judgement I decided to really look at the situation. Upon riding on the bike paths on the first day of classes after being gone all summer, I was pleased to find some well done repairs to the pavement and a lot of reorganization and expansion of the bike parking lots. I found that I really could not criticize a single thing that the committee had accomplished and as a matter of fact I congratulate them for remedying a few problems that have been brewing for years like the bike parking situation in front of the UCen. They have done an excellent job of separating bikes from pedestrians while at the same time leaving open access for emergency vehicles. All of this and still there are more than enough parking spaces. With all of the good that has been done, who could complain?

The answer to that question is that our beloved leaders of A.S. are glad to complain about anything they can get their hands on. Instead of offering some constructive advice to help correct whatever they feel is wrong with the bike committee's actions, they instead decide to show their overwhelming decision-making powers by asking us, the students, to disobey the regulations set forth by BEST. I can just picture it now, total anarchy once again on the bike paths and a lot of work done by the bike committee gone down the drain. Is that what the leaders of our student government would like to see?

My honest opinion of the A.S. elected officers is that they make up an ineffective governing body incapable of initiating any constructive actions on campus. I am truly embarrassed to have any portion of my money, however small, go to pay for a full page ad in my campus newspaper telling me to disobey rules and therefore risk having my bike impounded.

Impounding

Editor, Daily Nexus:
In our registration materials, there was a little orange card which demands that we all register our bikes (at a cost of $6 each bike!) or suffer a $12 impound charge! I would like to know who initiated this little rule, why the student body was not consulted beforehand, and WHO exactly is going to get this $6 per bike registration fee (multiplied by 15,000 + bikes comes to a grand total of $90,000 + !). Also, will the impounding only occur on campus?

I (and many other students) want to know what

Immature

Editor, Daily Nexus:
I found the A.S. ad in the Nexus (9/26) asking students not to register their bicycles incredibly immature, uninformed and unconstructive. To my knowledge not one bicycle has been ticketed or impounded this year because of non-registration. Has anyone on A.S. even bothered to call B.E.S.T., C.S.O., or the police department to discuss how the registration policy is going to be enforced? Bike registration is a positive policy, a bike that is registered stands a much better chance of being recovered if it is stolen.

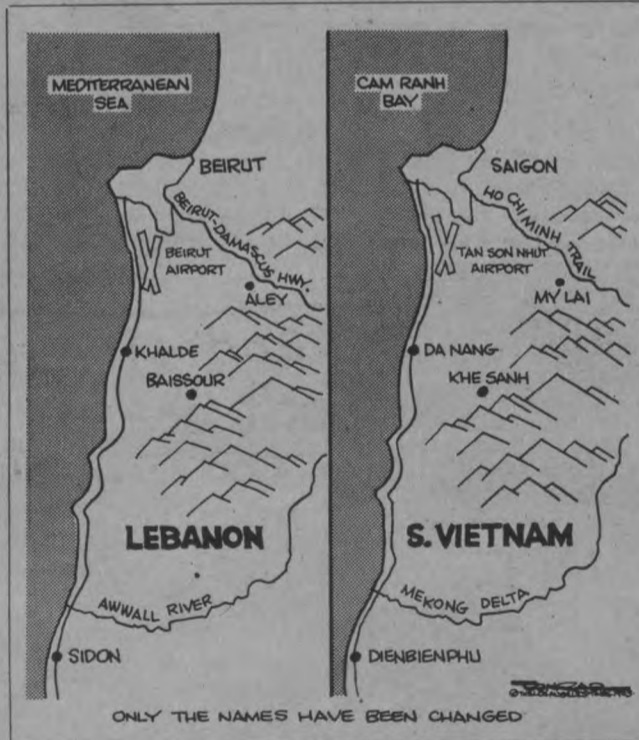

To solve the bike problem on campus we need a meaningful dialogue on the issues, not juvenile carping by student government. Student interests would be better served if A.S. thought about an issue before wasting student money on a full page ad in the Nexus.

A Continuing Commitment

The suggestion that the United States wants to shut down the United Nations — even though unauthorized and provoked — comes at a peculiarly dangerous moment. For despite manifold weaknesses, the U.N. offers this country the best available forum for dealing with both the Lebanese problem and the Korean airliner incident. So Ronald Reagan, when he speaks to the General Assembly this Monday, will reaffirm this country's commitment to the world body.

Questions about that commitment arose during a U.N. meeting on the responsibilities of the U.S. as host nation. A Soviet diplomat, Igor Yaklavlev, took up the restrictions on civil aviation invoked after the airline incident, which Russia cited as reason for canceling Andrei Gromyko's projected visit to the General Assembly. Yaklavlev said the restrictions proved the U.S. was unfit to be the host country.

That gratuitous shot maddened Charles Lichenstein, the American who serves as alternate Security Council delegate to Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick. In anger, he retorted:

"If in the Judicious determination of the members of the United Nations they feel they were not welcomed and treated with the hostile consideration that is due, the United States strongly encourages the member states seriously to consider removing themselves and this organization from the soil of the United States."

The White House, and the U.S. mission to the U.N., both quickly emphasized that Lichenstein's comments were "personal," not official. Rightly so. For this country has an enormous stake in the U.N.

Not as a guarantor of American security. The U.S. and its allies can look after that. But there are occasions — more and more occasions, in fact — when world peace is menaced by forces that cannot appropriately be contained by American power. The U.N. exists for those contingencies, and sensitivity to them is an ornament of American diplomacy.

Thus Franklin Roosevelt practically invented the U.N. When threatened by Khrushchev because of its role in the Congo, Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy fought to keep it alive. Were it to be wrecked now, the U.S. would be humiliated. Indeed, if the rest of the world consented to move the U.N. at this juncture, it would mark the decline of this country as a great power.

On top of those general considerations come the immediate issues of Lebanon and the Korean airliner. Maybe the combination of American diplomacy and American naval guns can foster a cease-fire between the Lebanese government and the various dissident factions backed by Syria. But the chances are dim. In the event of failure, American Marines will be in a terrible trap, and this country will eventually want to extricate them.

The best way out is to do what President Eisenhower did after he landed American troops in Lebanon in 1958. That is to call in an observer force from the U.N. to take over. Negotiations to that end were in fact underway at the U.N. last week. They broke down because of intransigence by the Russians and the Syrians. But another effort along the same lines is practically certain.

As to the airliner incident, the exchange of insults serves neither Moscow nor Washington. The Russians only make it harder to develop any kind of constructive relation with the Reagan administration. The U.S. allows other countries to turn away from what they can disparage as a mere quarrel between the superpowers.

It happens, furthermore, that the element of accident looms increasingly large in the tragedy. The Korean plane was way off course. Though much detail remains to be filled out, though an American white paper is probably in order, the evidence so far does not begin to sustain the Soviet claim of an intelligence operation. On the contrary, error seems to be the dominant force.

Conversely, much internal evidence suggests the Russians were genuinely obsessed by spy planes. Particularly on the night of 1 September when a major test of some kind was planned. Warning shots seem to have been fired. Confusion between the Korean airliner and an American spy plane is very possible — particularly on the part of the ground personnel who gave the order.

Everybody has an interest in establishing the facts. For if mistakes can be identified, it will be possible to work out new provisions for warning away aircraft. So an impartial investigation by the technical body attached to the U.N. — the International Civil Air Organization — makes sense. If the Russians refuse, then the world will know what to think — and not against the background of a Big Two polemic.

Only by resolving the airline incident, moreover, can the world move past the present spate of name-calling. President Reagan, while he can live with a period of tension, has no interest in promoting it. On the contrary, he is going to the U.N., on the motion of Ambassador Kirkpatrick, precisely to show this country's continuing commitment to the works of peace.

Hanging Up On Telephone Sex

Official Washington has recently devoted many hours to a matter of untold significance, and resolution may be imminent. Unfortunately, likely action by Congress this week may only complicate a needed, if unseemly, debate on the issue.

That issue is best known as "phone sex." An entertainment form once favored mostly by readers of Hustler, the Village Voice and other "progressive" publications, listening to sexually-suggestive telephonic cooings has become something of a national pastime in the last year, drawing more customers in one day than the Cleveland Indians do in a season.

Secretaries do it. White House aides do it. Not surprisingly, kids do it, too. And that's why an assortment of federal, state and local officials say they want to curb the skin magazine publishers, independent services and telephone companies that are panting all the way to the bank.

Rep. Thomas J. Bliley Jr., of Virginia, is the principled force behind congressional efforts to end America's affair with what he calls "dial-a-porn." A former funeral-home owner and Richmond mayor, who came to Washington on Ronald Reagan's coattails, Bliley first sensed trouble last winter, when a constituent complained that her 10-year-old daughter had dialed into an orgy, in this case courtesy of High Society magazine. After some inquiries around town, the pipe-smoking Bliley says, he was incensed to find that neither the Federal Communications Commission nor Justice Department had the courage to throw cold water on the hot new commodity. Later, he even wrote the president about his concern.

Bliley's remedy, an amendment to the FCC authorization bill pending House action this week, would subject phone sex services to federal obscenity prohibitions. Like similar legislation introduced in the Senate, it would assess phone sex purveyors with a $50,000 fine for every day of operation. One House committee aide, who said that many congressional offices had independently conducted primary research on the issue, predicted that floor discussion of the proposal would be "memorable."

Yet the FCC has only begun its inquiry into the merits of phone sex. Its findings will be ready no earlier than next February. If the hear-no-evils in Congress can't abide by the delay, even time may not overcome the conflict between personal disgust with dirty talk and Supreme Court mandates on obscenity questions.

Phone sex has few antidotes in the Constitution. It's voluntary, for one, and therefore may deserve protection under rights of privacy and free speech. If people gladly subject themselves to groans a la phone, they don't merit federal protections designed for those who are subjected to abusive phone calls involuntarily.

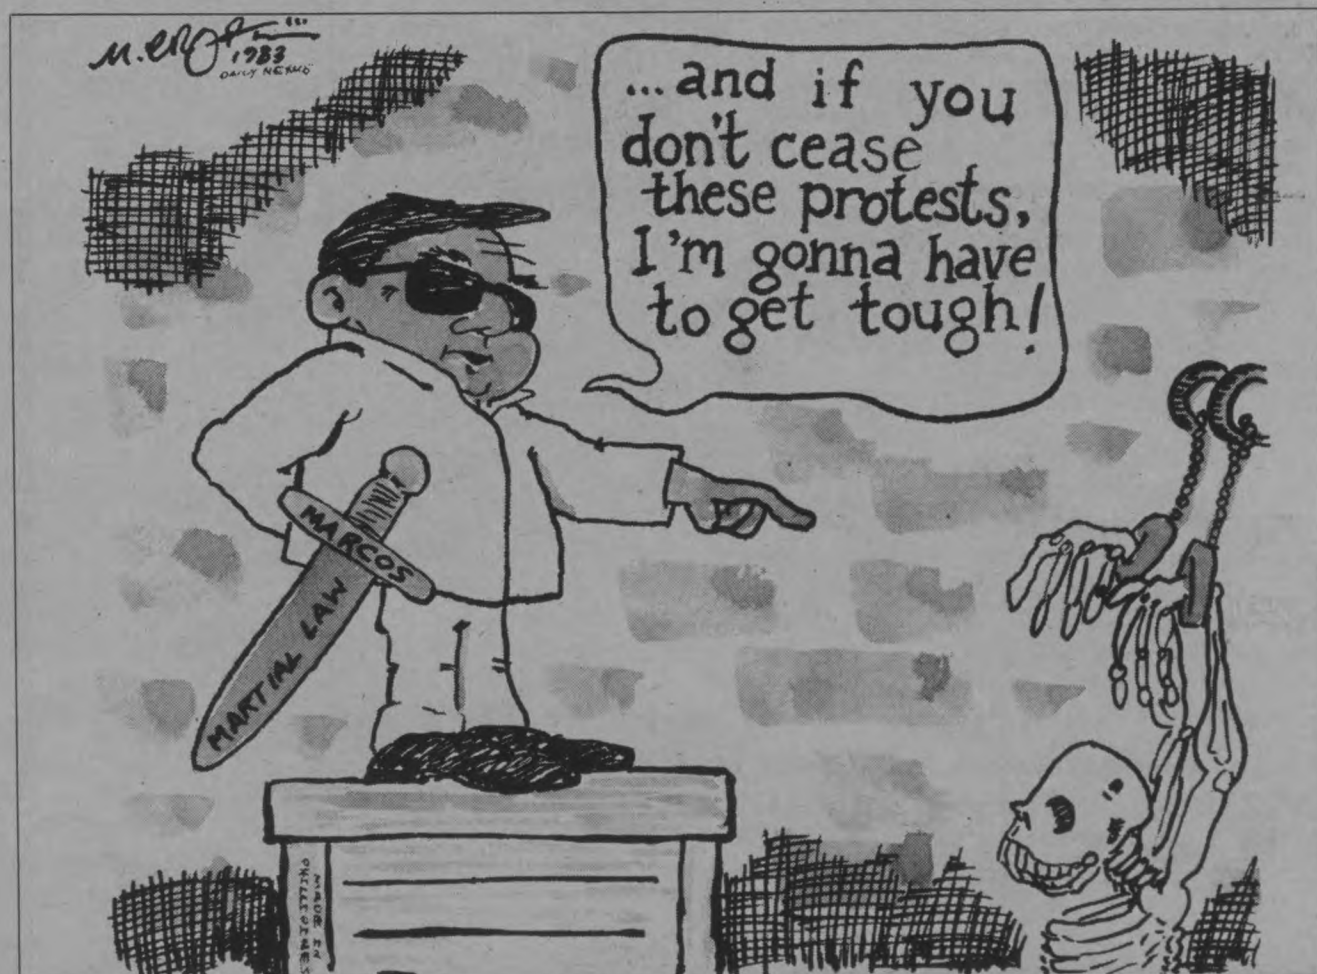

Another hang-up lies in Supreme Court standards for obscenity. The court's Miller decision (1973) recognizes that what plays in New York may not play in Peoria, and therefore should be judged according to local standards. But neither justices nor lawmakers foresaw the case in which a compulsive 13-year-old in Salt Lake City might make 160 calls a month to a New York City number, as Bliley discovered last spring. On the other hand, as FCC lawyer Diane Silberstein points out, nor have they said clearly whether an adult's access to pornography can be reduced under restrictions aimed at children.

Yet common sense may be more instructive here. Just last week, the television networks began a season of programs that hardly resemble "Father Knows Best"; even magazines traditionally suitable for dentists' offices herald the sexual exploits of celebrities. Ours is an over-sexed environment that, though perhaps not to a conservative's liking, makes the telephonic turn-on sound par for the course; to attend to one while ignoring the other seems kind of silly.

Of course, for those who've graduated from "Dial-a-Joke" to "Dial-a-Porn," there could be reward in the event of a crackdown by Washington. For only $35 and collect-call charges, a large number of services will gladly talk a good time to anyone with a credit card number.

But in a country that champions free enterprise, the best remedy may be self-control, or none at all.

ROTC Offers Positions In Variety Of Military Fields

By LAURIE SMEDLEY
Nexus Reporter

Providing the army with college-trained officers and giving students an opportunity for a career in the military are the goals of the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps at UCSB.

"The purpose of the ROTC program is to show students what the military can do," Lieutenant Colonel Alex Woods, the new chair of the Military Science Department, said. As the head of the department, Woods is promoting candor in the relations between army and students. "I've advised the other members of the department to 'tell it like it is,'" Woods said.

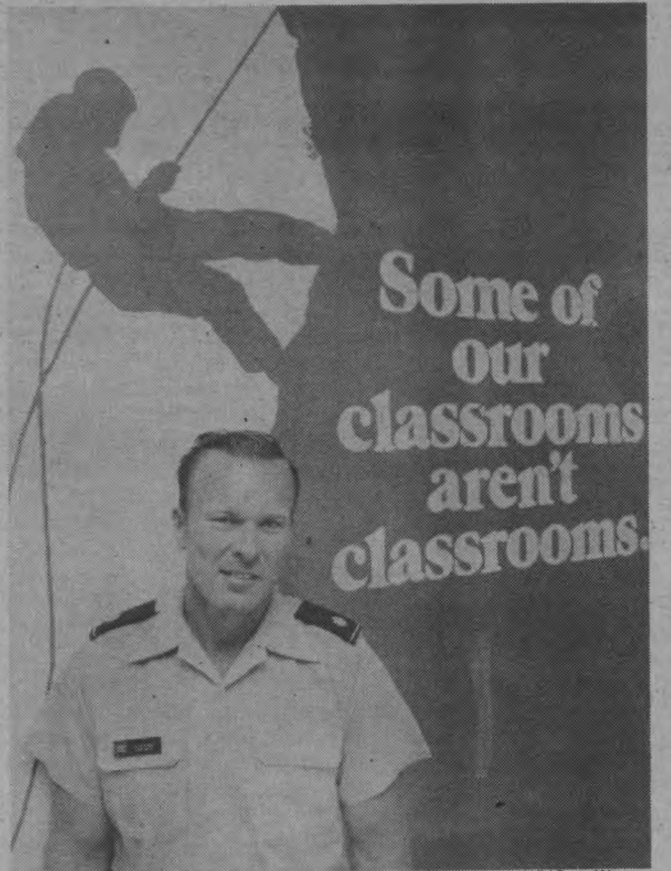

Although the military science courses contribute to all letters and science degrees, they are intended primarily for students who are interested in the military.

"I am going to take a look at the number of students that are taking military science classes that are not enrolled in the ROTC program," Woods said. "Other students are welcome to take the courses, but our first priority is to select candidates for army officers."

"There are two ROTC programs ... a four year program which begins a student's freshman year, and a two-year program which is designed for students who did not take the ROTC required classes during their first two years,"

Captain. Denver Compton advanced course explained.

The cadets are required in the advanced course to enlist in the Army Reserve and to sign a contract committing themselves to military service for a period of six to eight years. Students in the two-year program are required to (Please turn to pg.13, col.1)

Lecturer Predicts Earth-like Planet

By MONTE BROKATE
Nexus Reporter

"We might be witnessing the birth of an Earth-like planet," astronomy author Ernest Underhay predicted during his planetarium program, "The Heat of the Night, Planets for Vega," Sunday at the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History.

Underhay has been accredited by NASA to cover all of their Vandenberg launches and has covered the Columbia and Enterprise test flights, Pioneer programs exploring Venus, Jupiter and Saturn, as well as a number of others. "A huge cloud of dust and debris twice the size of our solar system" which is circling Vega could be a solar system, or could condense to form one, according to Underhay.

Even if a planet that might form near Vega does develop in a fashion similar to Earth, "Vega will die in a billion years or so, taking whatever life (develops) with it," Underhay commented.

Vega is approximately 153 trillion miles from Earth, and is one of the 20 brightest stars as seen from Earth. Located in the Lyra constellation, Vega will be directly overhead from 7-8 p.m. and will be visible in the Santa Barbara sky throughout most of the fall.

The discovery of this possible new solar system was made through the use of the Infra-Red Astronomy Satellite which was launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base in January and was a major topic of Underhay's program.

With a 22 inch diameter telescope, IRAS uses infra-red light to "see" the radioactive heat that planets and even minute cosmic debris emit, Underhay explained. Using its specialized equipment, IRAS will look for a tenth planet in our solar system, which is believed could exist beyond Neptune, the farthest planet from the sun now that Pluto's elliptical orbit has carried it inside Neptune's orbit.

The liquid helium IRAS carries reduces the heat radiation which the satellite itself emits and which would otherwise blind the satellite to the universe, Underhay explained. "It would be like trying to go out in the daylight and look up at the stars," he said. IRAS' liquid helium supply will run out in January. "Much of the information came directly from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, where most of these projects are managed," Underhay said.

Due to his close contact with NASA and JPL, Underhay says he will be updating and adding to his planetarium program as new information comes in.

Underhay calls himself a "lecturer for hire." Between performances he's been the planetarium lecturer at the Museum of Natural History since 1975 and has taught at Santa Barbara City College and at Crane School in Santa Barbara.

Underhay will continue the program, which starts at 1:30 and 4 p.m. on Sundays in the Gladwin Planetarium at the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History.

Community Affairs Board Places Student Volunteers

By DEBBIE MARGOLIAS
Nexus Reporter

As an organization responsible for placing students in volunteer positions in the community, the Community Affairs Board serves "as a catalyst for interested students to gain work experience in the community," Tracy Temp, CAB public relations person, said.

CAB was organized in the 1960's by a group of UCSB students who were given a community service project as part of a class assignment. Since then it has grown into a full scale volunteer placement bureau which is involved with more than 150 human and social services agencies and organizations in the Santa Barbara area.

"CAB is an organization run by volunteers for volunteers," Temp said.

Each of the 14 different projects, such as Special Olympics and the Adopt-A-Grandparent program, is run by one or two project directors.

The project directors, the co-chairs and the faculty advisor are all members of the CAB Coordinating Board which decides CAB's policy and budget.

A variety of volunteer positions are available in health services, legal services, youth services, special education, and senior services.

CAB Co-Chair Kathy Willoughby explained that in addition to long-term projects, there are volunteer positions available to people who would like to contribute a few hours of their time on a one-time-only basis. All training is provided by the organization for which the student is volunteering.

Another program CAB will participate in this year is the placement of students in volunteer positions for 1984 Olympic activities. Willoughby will be serving as the UCSB Representative to the Olympic Committee.

"We are going to be placing student volunteers in pre-olympic and olympic events," Willoughby said. Various positions are available for volunteers for the summer Olympic Games.

In addition to placing UCSB students in a variety of volunteer positions in the community, CAB has some other special events planned for this year, including a Sister's Seminar which will take place on-campus Saturday, Nov. 19.

The seminar will be run by Dr. Dale Atkins, a psychologist who wrote a dissertation on sisters and siblings and has appeared on radio and television in discussions of sibling relationships.

The activities planned for this seminar include a panel of sisters who will discuss issues between sisters, and small group discussions which will be led by highly qualified psychologists, Willoughby said. "The seminar will deal with sisters' issues and not sisters' problems," she added. Applications for the day-long seminar are available in the CAB office.

The CAB office is located in the UCen on the third floor and is open daily from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. For information call CAB at 961-4296.

Breast Cancer In Men

There are about 700 cases of male breast cancer in this country each year. Because this is a form of cancer that primarily strikes women, many men overlook important warning signals: thickening or lump in the chest or under the arm, discharge from the nipple, dimpling or other changes in the skin. Men, regular self examination is up to you. Report any suspicious symptoms to your doctor as soon as possible. And remember, breast cancers found early and treated promptly have excellent chances for cure. Pick up a brochure on

CASE Tries New Learning Approach

By BOB BETTS
Nexus Reporter

The new Center for Academic Skills Enrichment is offering basic academic skill assistance for new and returning students.

CASE writing counselor Carol Hiles said the center has a three-fold purpose: outreaching to campus groups, counseling walk-ins in small groups, and conducting writing support groups.

The center stresses time management, math/science skills, textbook reading, underlining, test preparation, note taking, paper writing, and even how to approach teaching assistants, CASE Director Delores Austin said.

CASE approaches academic skill problems with small group workshops, as opposed to one-to-one counseling, Austin said. Walk-in students are grouped according to their general or specific weaknesses and then scheduled in a workshop. "We can reach more people that way," she said.

CASE will provide campus groups an opportunity to learn together, Austin said. CASE will approach dorms, fraternities, sororities, athletic teams, discussion sections, and other student organized groups about the facilities available to them, she said.

"It offers groups ... a chance to do something about their education together," Assistant Dean of Academic Support Programs David Kohl said.

Kohl is optimistic about the initiation of CASE: "It's another approach to learning. Instead of looking at the symptoms, we look at the strengths and weaknesses of a student." Kohl foresees this kind of help as a means to improve every part of a student's education.

CASE hopes to work with professors and discussion sections to offer class-specific counseling. Austin believes there are different study techniques and approaches to different classes. Knowledge of specific differences could make a big impact on class performance, she added.

Hiles was previously a writing counselor at the old Academic Skills Center (now the tutorial center) for four years. "In the past I would have worked on an individual basis," she said, describing the new emphasis toward small groups.

Hiles sees small groups as a very personal and low-pressure environment for learning writing skills. "They (students) need immediate feedback on their papers, not two or three weeks later when they get them back from their professors," she said.

Austin expects much of CASE's business will be from in-coming freshmen. "Many students who did very well in high school come to college and just don't know how to study," she said.

UCSB Bicycle Regulations

With approximately 12,000 bike drivers on campus every day, and also several thousand pedestrians and motorists, travel around UCSB can get quite "exciting." Last year well over 370 accidents requiring immediate medical attention were reported. There were many more unreported mishaps and hundreds of close calls. Courtesy, common sense, and compliance with the following regulations (21113f of the California Vehicle Code) can ensure a safer, more pleasant biking and walking atmosphere at UCSB.

When driving a bike:

- Travel at a safe speed
- Maintain a reasonable distance between bikes
- Keep to the right
- Please don't walk, rollerskate, or skateboard on any bikepath
- Yield to pedestrians crossing bikepaths
- Drive your bike only on bikepaths and two lane roads — No sidewalks!
- Observe "walk bikes" and "no bikes" zones
- No cars or mopeds may be on bikepaths (mopeds may be pedalled on bikepaths)
- Obey all traffic signals and signs
- Use signals when you turn or change direction or speed in any way
- Please do not drive your bike on four-lane, divided roads
- Ride with a light at night (also a red rear reflector, and wheel reflectors)
- Only one person may be on a bike (unless it is a tandem bike)

When parking a bike:

- All bikes must be parked, stored, or left only in designated bike lots
- Always use a bike rack
- Please do not park in any area designated "no bikes"
- Please do not block any entrance or exit or otherwise impede traffic
- Show consideration for the differently able — do not park near, on, or to a wheelchair ramp
- Please don't leave a bike on any path, bikepath, or sidewalk
- No bikes are allowed in the quad area (patio) of any building
- It is prohibited to lock a bike to any tree, lamppost, or object besides a bike rack
- No bikes are allowed in the lobby, halls, or rooms of any building (unless it is your dorm or assigned office)

Also:

- It is required by law that all bikes on campus must be registered with a valid California Bicycle License.

Bike licenses may be obtained from the Community Service Organization for a fee of six dollars ($6.00) and are valid for up to three years. They are vital in determining ownership, recovering your bike if it were to be stolen, and if it were to be impounded, it could be returned to the rightful owner. The recovery rate for stolen bikes with licenses is over 60% and the bike will have a lower value on the black market.

- Keep your bike in proper mechanical condition. A large percentage of bike accidents are attributed to equipment failures (ex. poor brakes, slipped chains, and no lights or reflectors)
- Be sure to lock your bike with a good lock and chain or cable, and to a rack.

Increased Tax Savings Sought By Local Group

By DEBBIE NESTOR
 Nexus Reporter

The Taxpayers Association of Santa Barbara County, a non-profit, non-partisan organization is devoted to working toward economy and efficiency in local government, Stanley J. Lassere, member of the association's board of directors said.

The association, whose members own over 50 percent of the assessed property value in Santa Barbara County, tries to work with public officials in order to cut down on government spending, Association Secretary George Johnson said. "They have accomplished some significant tax savings over the years," Johnson noted.

Johnson, one of two paid staff members, annually reviews the proposed county budget and compares it with those of other years. He reports his findings to the association's board of directors, who then make recommendations to the County Board of Supervisors, he explained. "Our goal is to work with public officials to overcome difficulties they are facing and help solve problems, not to criticize," Lassere said.

Whether or not the county will act on these recommendations is entirely up to the county, Johnson explained. The association has no real power, he said. "We can only suggest solutions."

Recently, the organization has conflicted with the county over the use of state revenue-sharing funds, Johnson said. The county currently uses such funds to maintain existing programs at their current levels. But this procedure, according to Johnson, gives a false sense of security since the funds are not a steady source of revenue. Revenue-sharing funds are only a one-time gift, he explained.

Another issue the association takes a strong stand on is the right of public employees to strike. "We're adamantly opposed to any public strike," he explained.

As property-owners, the members are concerned with the problem of water in Santa Barbara County, Johnson said. The organization was in favor of the peripheral canal and is still hoping to see the state water program completed, he said. "We think the county should import all its water," Lassere said.

Although the association is not directly involved in any of the major arguments concerning off-shore oil drilling, it would be supportive of an on-shore facility, Johnson said.

This position is not official, but one of the association's general goals is to encourage business and industry in Santa Barbara County, Johnson said. More business broadens the tax base and relieves part of the burden on property tax payers, he said.

Johnson also noted that the oil industry creates jobs, another indicator of a healthy economy.

Last spring, the organization funded a study comparing the costs of salaries and benefits for county employees in various departments against the total amount of money in the county budget each year. The organization discovered that some salaries had risen much faster than others. In addition, Johnson noted that the total funds allocated for salaries and benefits had increased out of proportion with the budget.

The Taxpayers Association's report recommended that a standard, more consistent procedure be adopted by all the county departments in salary negotiations, in order to use the taxpayers money more efficiently and economically.

The association has directors from all parts of the county. The board elects a president and three vice presidents. They meet monthly or roughly ten times a year, Johnson said.

attend basic camp between their sophomore and junior years. They then enter the advanced course and follow the same routine as the cadets in the four year program.
Between their junior and senior years, all cadets attend an advanced summer camp. Expenses associated with the six-week advanced camp are paid for by the U.S. Army.
Scholarships are available for qualifying students in both the four-year and two-year programs. The scholarships, which pay tuition, materials and a living allowance, are worth as much as $12,000.
Financial assistance of $100 a month is given to all advanced course students. Upon graduation, students are commissioned as second Lieutenants in the U.S. Army where annual salaries begin at $12,744. "They receive their commission when they receive their diplomas," Woods said.

The service obligation may be fulfilled in either the Army Reserves, the National Guard, or the Active Army.
Scholarship graduates serve for four years on active duty and two in the reserve. Other graduates may serve three years on active duty and three years in the reserve, or three to six months on active duty and over seven years in the reserve.

After the obligation is fulfilled, it is up to the individuals whether they want to enter the civilian job market or remain as officers in the Army.
Many employers consider experience in ROTC and as an Army officer to be an invaluable asset in a job candidate. "We consider the leadership training and experience gained through ROTC and subsequent active duty service as an officer to be a definite plus when evaluating candidates for employment," W.J. Kirby, vice president in charge of personnel at FMC Corporation, said.

In the past, the residence halls had a more liberal attitude toward drinking.
"You couldn't have alcohol in the main lobby and the elevators or stairways," explained junior Cecelia Kouma, a former resident of San Nicholas on-campus dorm. "But the floor lounges and halls were considered your living room and so you could drink there. At least that's what they told us when I was there two years ago," she added.
Another aim of the committee was to promote responsible drinking and to take the emphasis off alcohol at parties and activities, Kirkelie said.
One example of a change in policy lies in the residence halls' efforts to promote socializing without alcohol. Anacapa residence hall is holding a Mocktail Party where mixed drinks will be served, but without the alcohol.
"One reaction," Anderson said, "was that because there would be no alcohol at the party, no one would come."

Cross Country

Mason's Effort Leads Women

By MEL ROSE
Nexus Sports Writer

Hills in Fresno? This is not necessarily a contradiction in terms as the UCSB Women's Cross Country team found out last Saturday at the Fresno Invitational.

The undulating Woodward Park 5,000-meter cross country course included a few slow-to-a-jog inclines and prompted several runners to abandon their flatland notions of Fresno. Cowtown, it appears, has some hills.

While the upgrades turned out to be somewhat challenging, the competition proved to be extremely challenging. The UCSB Women's Cross Country team, although encouraged by a showing of team unity, still took a disappointing sixth place in a nine school field. The women seemed to be less intimidated by the hills than by the other runners.

"For the first big race I thought they came through well," Coach Jim Triplett said. "But I also think that some were overwhelmed by the competition."

The Woodward Park hills did indeed sport some fine athletes on Saturday. The field was full of top class runners and included the national class team of Stanford University, which, incidentally, swept the team honors with a perfect score of 15.

Commenting after the meet on her race, the competition, and the hills top

UCSB runner Mary Mason, who garnered a plaque for her 20th place effort said: "I ran hard for the first two miles, but I lacked the toughness over the last mile. I lost my concentration. I was sporadically tough, and you can't be sporadically tough, especially over the last mile. The lead pack was really strong. Physically, I feel I'm tough enough to be in the lead pack, it's just a question of developing mentally. Today, I just didn't have it to chase down the leaders."

Coach Triplett added "I know Mary, I know how she's trained, and I know she'll run better. At two miles she was in contention, but then she lost her concentration. I know she can run with the best, she just has to work on that last mile."

Following Mason by roughly a minute, were the second through eighth Gaucho runners, a group that finished within 60 seconds of each other, and within twenty paces. This indicates that the women are running more as a team, a trait that will help them score better in the meets to come. The problem was the Gaucho pack finished too far behind Mason.

The number two and three Gauchos of last week reversed order this week moving Nancy Vallance into the number two slot and placing Terrie Martin at number three.

Vallance, the smooth-

Helen Lehman and Erinne Mickle (shown above) are two of the reasons that Coach Jim Triplett is optimistic about the women's cross country team's chances in 1983.

running freshman, went out hard the first mile and managed to hold on the last two miles for a respectable 34th place finish overall. "At first I was scared and apprehensive," Vallance said. "But I thought that I would take this as an experience and go as I felt. I got a really good start and just went for it."

Ten seconds behind Vallance was Martin who played up the feeling of team unity by saying: "There is no competition between anyone on the team." It appears that both Martin and Vallance have the talent and consistency needed to be top Gaucho finishers in the races to come.

Like last week, this week's fourth Gaucho finisher was once again Evine Mickle, who enjoyed the comradery of her fellow UCSB runners in the race. She said afterward, "We came a lot more together this week, I saw a lot of them (teammates) during the race, we were bunched for the first time."

Elaborating on the same point, was the fifth UCSB finisher Karen McGough, who said, "We're getting to know one another's paces, we pull each other along. We run much better together."

When everyone is there we can pull each other through.

The number six Gaucho, Melissa Ganoce, added, "I can see the team really pulling together. On that last stretch I was really tired, but I had someone to reach for — my teammates."

Helen Lehman and Kim Reinking were the next two Gaucho finishers. Reinkin probably summed up the women's feelings best: "When the whole pack stays together we help each other along, there is no one competing against each other on the team."

Longer Distance Takes Toll On Harriers

By MEL ROSE
Nexus Sports Writer

For the UCSB Men's Cross Country Team the Fresno 10,000 meters Invitational was a case of a battle plan gone awry.

It was supposed to be that David Short and Murray Demo would penetrate the front pack. Then, Tim Silva and Dave Lawler would pull along either Neal Harris, Jose Morales, or Joe Naughton to a high finish, rounding out a hypothetically tough top five.

But so much for theory. Reality: Short and Demo both had engine troubles on the course and Harris, Morales, and Naughton failed to close the gap. It was only the two veteran UCSB cross country runners Silva and Lawler who conformed to the master plan by finishing individually in 23rd and 24th places, respectively. The senior duo led the team to a sixth place finish at the nine school meet.

"I'm a bit perplexed," Coach Jim Triplett said. "I didn't understand what happened. We weren't running near where we expected. Of the top seven, only two did their jobs."

The two that did their jobs seemed to illustrate a basic tenet of distance running — that it is mostly mental. To run 10,000 meters competitively takes tremendous concentration, a mental toughness that can only be developed through experience. Silva and Lawler, the two most experienced cross country runners on the team, prevailed on Saturday quite possibly because they were the best conditioned mentally to handle the 10 kilometer distance.

What happened to the other UCSB runners? "We were green out there," Naughton said, referring to a lack of experience at the 10,000-meter distance on the part of Demo, Short, Harris, Morales, and himself. The group of middle distance runners is in fine physical shape but possibly lacking some of the mental training needed for the longer races.

"I think that some of us lost our cross country virginity today," Harris said after the race. "We now know what 10,000 meters of cross country feels like and should be much better equipped to tackle it next time. When the pain sets in during the next 10K I can say, I've been here before and that I can make it. Today I was charting unknown waters."

"We're making a transition," added Coach Triplett. "Next week I'm confident that we'll come together."

This week, though, the Gauchos did not run well as a team. "I had mixed feelings," Lawler said afterward. "I was happy because I did well but I couldn't be elated because the team didn't do well."

To complete the team scoring Demo placed 33rd in the race, Harris wound up 37th, and Morales 44th — hardly the placings the individuals expected before the race.

The UCSB Men's Cross Country Team will now regroup this week, confident of the fact that at least two of the top five scorers are ready to take on the PCAA and pressured by the fact that the others must develop in a hurry if the team is to be competitive.
