FOUR WANT PRESIDENCY

46 A.S. Office Seekers

By LARRY BOGGS
EG Staff Writer

A.S. election campaigning swings into high gear Friday with 46 candidates vying for 23 offices for the 1969-70 academic year.

Four candidates, Bill James, Robert Mason, John McPeak, and Bruce Harger, will contend for the A.S. Presidency in what will probably be one of the most interesting elections in UCSB history.

Candidates for the office of A.S. Executive Vice President are Tom Crenshaw, Ron Kaufman, Castulo de la Rocha, Joyce M. Wallace, and Bruce Harger. Harger will also face Greg Knell, Mike Wagler, and Rodrigo Clark, in the battle for A.S. Administrative Vice President.

Twelve candidates scrambling for the four positions of Representative-at-Large are Steve Kottmeier, Adolph Johnson, Paul Englesberg, Booker Banks, Patrice Drolet, Fred Holden, Tom Tosdal, Ronald Weissman, John Fentis, Jeff Herman, Joaquin Hernandez, and Bruce Harger.

Nine contend for the four offices for Non-Affiliated Representative. They include Cyrus Keller, Linda Rudolph, Jim Gregory, John Sloan, George Behlmer, Gregg Benn, Jim Marino, Javier Escobar, and Bruce Harger.

Running for the two offices of RHA Representative are Sharon Lee Smith, Eileen Kalk, Kathi Perry, Phil Kohn and David Tredway.

In the Greek race, Randy Stewart, William Eick, and Dave Abrecht will face each other for the office of Fraternity Representative, (Continued on p. 8, col. 4)

Bombing Protest Rally Draws 150 Yesterday

By ANN HENRY
EG Staff Writer

Despite cold winds that whipped the UCen Free Speech Area, about 150 students gathered there yesterday for a rally in protest of last Friday's bombing tragedy.

Led by UCSB student James Marino, the rally featured speakers from the administration, the Black Students' Union (BSU), Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), and the Workshop for Ethnic Studies.

Marino, in his introductory remarks, emphasized that although "there have been some groups on campus who have spoken rather loosely about violence and revolution," the group was "not there to make accusations, but to take a stand against violence."

Vice Chancellor Stephen Goodspeed expressed his dismay at this latest turn of campus events, stating that in all his years at UCSB, "never did I dream that I would have to face the situation I did last Friday morning."

"What the university needs," Goodspeed continued, "is somehow to eliminate the divisive exhibitions that are taking place."

Speaking for the BSU were Earl MacMillan and Bob Mason. MacMillan stated that the BSU "deplores all acts of violence," but that he feared "right-wing elements" would use the bombing incident to attack the BSU.

No Substantial Lead Found In the Bomb Blast Case; Bombing Scare on Monday

Investigation continued yesterday into the explosion of a bomb at the Faculty Club Friday morning, while the delivery of a cardboard box to the College of Letters and Science office caused a temporary scare in the Administration Building.

The box, which turned out to be packed with books, was addressed to Associate Dean of Letters and Science Upton S. Palmer.

A spokesman for the University Police said that the investigators had no substantial leads into the bombing case at present, but that they had interrogated "a number of people" in hopes that they might have information which would lead to more knowledge of the occurrence.

He said that bomb experts working on the investigation had not determined the precise composition of the device as yet.

Meanwhile, the Faculty Club announced that a short campus-wide service in memory of Sharp will be held tomorrow at noon in Storke Plaza.

Dover Sharp, Jr., son of the caretaker who died from injuries sustained in the blast, yesterday asked EL GAUCHO to express his thanks to "the Chancellor, the administration, students and members of the Faculty Club, as well as Mr. Sharp's many friends, who have been kind and expressed their sorrow."

He said that the funeral would be held at Midway City in Orange County.

Sharp is survived by three sisters, three brothers, one son, three daughters, and six grandchildren.

Expressions of grief continued to come from the campus community yesterday. Professor Clayton Wilson, chairman of the Academic Senate, said that "this faculty shares with the campus community as a whole a sense of profound grief over the murder of a member of this community and a sense of horror that such an event could happen here."

"We are sure that the campus community would feel revulsion, if not grief, had the harm been limited solely to property damage. We call upon all members of this academic community to join us in condemning and repudiating the tendencies which have contributed to this violence and to renounce the use of violence for any purpose whatsoever."

Marathon Oil Symposium Forum for Divergent Views

By MIKE LIFTON
EG Feature Editor
(First of Two Parts)

Representing a broad spectrum of opinion, 13 speakers participated in a marathon symposium on the problem of oil pollution last Saturday in Campbell Hall.

In the morning session, discussion centered around the geographical and seismological situation in the channel, emphasizing the dangers inherent in oil drilling.

UCSB Geography Professor Norman K. Sanders led the speaker lineup with a report on the geography of the channel area. Geology Professor Arthur Sylvester followed pointing out the frequency of seismic activity.

Next Professor Peter G. Mikolaj of the Chemical and Nuclear Engineering Department discussed "Natural Seepage and Ship Spillage" that occurs in the Santa Barbara area.

He noted that even before the current man-made slick, natural seepage has occurred for years in the form of tar and oil which can be seen along almost any beach in the Santa Barbara area.

Man-made risks of pollution came both from ship spillage (approximately 40 per cent of all world shipping tonnage is in the form of petroleum products) and from loading accidents (there are several loading docks along the Santa Barbara area coastline).

After J. F. Curran, a consulting geologist, discussed drilling techniques for underwater wells and explained how the present slick began, Al Allen of General Research Corp. presented results of a study of the slick undertaken by the company.

According to him, the spread of the slick was due chiefly to sand and water currents, some of whose behavior has only recently been discovered.

He disclosed the existence of the Davidson countercurrent, (Continued on p. 8, col. 3)

Salt Co. to Entertain

The Senior Class is presenting the Salt Company in concert on Saturday, April 19, at 8:30 p.m. in Campbell Hall. Tickets are now on sale at the UCen Information Booth, as well as in front of the Library for only $1.50, general admission, and $1 for seniors with class cards.

The Salt Company is a versatile folk-rock quintet from the Los Angeles area. After organizing last June, they soon won acclaim with their recent releases "Pilgrimage" and "I Shall be Released."

Their sound is characteristic of P.P.&M., and draws on an array of styles from their musical bag. To support their vocal and instrumental talent, they utilize original songs and employ a variety of novel arrangements.

Music Program Set for Tonight

UCSB graduate student Martin Lee Sobelman will conduct a musical group of student performers in a program at 8 this evening in Lotte Lehmann Concert Hall, in partial fulfillment of the requirements for his masters degree in musical performance.

Sobelman is the first UCSB student to major in performance with a conducting emphasis.

The public is invited to attend this performance of works by Mozart, Stravinsky and Telemann, which will feature a viola solo by Jeffrey Moyer.

A teaching assistant at UCSB in musicianship, music appreciation and Women's Chorus, Sobelmann will conduct the UCSB Opera Theater production of "Savitri" by Gustav Holst this Spring. At UCSB, he has studied with Professor Roger Chapman and Dorothy Westra, associate professor of music.

Israeli Song, Dance Group Will Perform Here Thursday

"Hadarim," Israeli Song and Dance Theater, will appear this Thursday evening at 8:30 in Campbell Hall.

The Los Angeles-based group, which has appeared on stage, screen, and television, is being sponsored by UCSB Hillel.

Admission is $1.25 for students, faculty and staff; $2.50 for the general public and at the door. Tickets are on sale at the UCen Information Booth.

Among the activities of Hadarim are appearances with Rock Hudson and Sammy Davis, Jr., participation in the musical background to "Cast a Giant Shadow," and a featured role on an episode of the T.V. series "Run for Your Life."

In addition, the ensemble has performed for many Jewish organizations and has taken part in numerous International Folk Festivals on the West Coast.

CHICAGO—Thirteen men and women who joined a protest march during the Democratic National Convention were convicted of disorderly conduct Monday.

They were fined $200 to $400 and costs each, but the penalties were stayed pending the outcome of post-trial motions.

The defense planned an appeal.

SAN FRANCISCO—The decision by Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike to leave the church was viewed with regret Monday by Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, who refused to bless Pike's third marriage.

Pike, who announced his action in a Look magazine article, said the scales were tipped for his step when Bishop Myers refused to bless the marriage and sought to have Pike barred from diocesan pulpits.

SAN FRANCISCO—Acting President S. I. Hayakawa announced at a news conference yesterday that he has ended emergency regulations at San Francisco State college, but said there still "is an internal uneasiness on the campus."

On Sunday Hayakawa told a Democratic Party conference on education in Sacramento that the emergency rules would be rescinded, but that police would remain on campus.

SACRAMENTO—Two Democratic assemblymen contended Monday that the quality of patient care in state hospitals has declined during the administration of Republican Governor Reagan.

The comment came from Democratic Caucus chairman George N. Zenovich of Fresno and Assemblyman John F. Dunlap of Napa at a news conference.

SACRAMENTO—A Senate-Assembly conference committee agreed yesterday to raise the gasoline tax one cent a gallon for up to six months to repair flood-damaged highways, and other public works.

ISSUE: "Death: a permanent cessation of all vital functions; the end of life."

His charred, broken body—scraped of the skin and blood which he left on the Faculty Club patio—was 96 cents worth of chemicals (or has inflation moved the price up?).

But Dover Sharp had died before that. He died at 6:22 a.m. Friday morning, one second before he opened that innocent-looking cardboard box that blew him across the patio.

Someone had to suffer in Dover Sharp's ashes for two-and-one-half days, and that someone happened to be Dover Sharp, too, but it could have been you or me or your father, for all the resemblance he bore to the quiet, meticulous caretaker who puttered around the Faculty Club.

We don't know death. We are young, we know we don't want to die, but we don't really know why. We haven't smelled death—we haven't seen it sitting in front of us.

But maybe now we know it a little bit more. A little piece of each of us died when that bomb went off, because we all know that it didn't have a name on it. Dover Sharp got in the way of a demented psyche—as any one of us could.

And then it was finished. Dover Sharp, who lived by his alertness and attention, was officially and medically dead by it.

We live in a fractured, terrified age which is called eternity. The only reality is the death which awaits each of us; the only fantasy is pretending it isn't there.

We pretend that violent, cruel death is not a factor in our lives—and as long as we pretend it isn't there, it isn't.

But a bomb explodes Dover Sharp, or a bullet kills Martin Luther King, or John Kennedy, or Robert Kennedy, or the guy you roomed with your first year, and suddenly you can't pretend it isn't there, because it has just sliced something out of your life.

And we deal with this fact in many ways. Some will go to a funeral. Others will wonder what he was really like. Some will immediately place the blame on someone, and others will blame everyone. Newspapermen will try and find out whether or not his last name ends with an "e" and other seemingly trivial facts, because in minutiae there is escape.

And Dover Sharp will become a symbol for this or that righteous cause or worthy movement, which will neatly sidestep the fact that Dover Sharp was not a symbol, he was a man, and he is Everyman because where he is, we will be, too.

This editorial—disjointed, ambiguous, rambling. Because the idea of the death of Dover Sharp being logical is too monstrous to fathom.

EDITORIAL

End University Subservience by Abolishing ROTC

Following is an editorial which is being printed today on 29 college and university campuses around the nation, asking that academic credit be removed from ROTC. Although EL GAUCHO has already expressed the position contained in this editorial, we felt it necessary to stand with other campus newspapers in stating this opinion.

One of the unintended domestic consequences of the war in Vietnam has been the growing awareness of the dangers of intimate connections between the military and academia.

Perhaps the most blatant example of college and universities willingly performing functions that rightly should be exclusive concern of the military is the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC).

After many years of relatively tranquil existence on the nation's campuses, ROTC has come under fire of late from those who believe that philosophically and pedagogically, military training has no place in an academic institution.

In recent months such leading institutions as Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth and Stanford have all revoked academic credit from their ROTC programs. In light of these examples, many other colleges and universities are currently re-evaluating the status of their own ROTC programs.

The Stanford decision is especially significant in light of the perspectives on which it was premised. As a member of the committee which prepared the report explained, "We began with a definition of the university and found an essential conflict between this and the concept of ROTC."

Academia's traditional function is to provide critical thinking about man and his society aloof from partisan or superficial considerations. But it is impossible for colleges and universities to even pretend to perform this unique role if they are also subsidizing the brutal militarism of the outside world.

Some have argued that academic institutions, especially those which are publicly sponsored, have an obligation to be politically neutral and this neutrality thereby requires the continued support of ROTC programs on campus.

At a time when the military is an integral element in an expansionist foreign policy opposed by a sizeable segment of the population both inside and outside academia, it is clear that the ROTC program is as partisan in its own way as Students for a Democratic Society.

Thus, in a modern context colleges and universities are only politically neutral when they as institutions stand between the government and its critics. Clearly, continued academic support for ROTC would be the height of political partisanship.

Furthermore, when this partisanship includes the uncritical implementation of governmental policies, then academia is totally unable to perform its unique functions.

Hans Morganthau, the noted political scientist, wrote recently that one of the key lessons of the Vietnam War was the danger of too intimate a relationship between the campus and the government. For already, he noted, large segments of the academic community have been transformed "into a mere extension of the government bureaucracy, defending and implementing policies regardless of their objective merits."

ROTC is not only antithetical to the ultimate purposes of higher education, but contrary to basic pedagogical principles as well.

While the development of critical thinking is an integral part of a liberal education, the teaching methods employed in ROTC programs tend to emphasize educational passivity and degrading deference to authority.

This is far from surprising as critical thinking has never been a highly prized military virtue. Consequently, the ROTC program is geared to produce intellectually-stunted martinets."

An example of the type of educational thinking behind the ROTC program at many universities is provided by a solemn pronouncement by an ROTC officer at the University of Minnesota. In a frighteningly serious echo of Catch-22 he declared, "Marching is the basic leadership program for every officer."

Equally alien to ends of a liberal education is the unquestioning submissiveness endemic in the rigidly hierarchical structure of military education. It is hard to develop any spontaneity—much less dialogue—within the classroom when the professor is not just a teacher, but a superior officer as well.

For those congenitally unimpressed by philosophical arguments predicated on the goals of higher education, there are some equally potent hard-nosed and pragmatic reasons why ROTC is in no way a valid academic offering.

A faculty curriculum committee at the University of Michigan stated the case clearly when it charged that ROTC course materials used in Ann Arbor were

"conjectural, non-analytical, cheaply moralistic and often blatantly propagandistic."

The bulk of the ROTC program consists of technical courses often less rigorous than similar courses offered in the math, science and engineering programs of most colleges and universities.

Typical of those ROTC programs not duplicated elsewhere is an Air Force ROTC course entitled, "The history of the role of the Air Force in U.S. military history." Designed primarily to inculcate institutional loyalty, rather than to develop critical thinking, courses like this are clearly not history. They are not even valid military history since interservice rivalry results in an inflation of the role of the Air Force.

The intellectual vacuity of many ROTC courses is directly related to the rather limited educational backgrounds of the preponderance of ROTC faculty.

Despite limited academic credentials normally not exceeding a bachelor's degree, ROTC instructors are accorded a status comparable to professors in more rigorous disciplines. And due to the high degree of autonomy of the ROTC program, colleges and universities have little direct control over the hiring, firing or promotion of these ROTC instructors.

But objections such as these spring primarily from the form rather than the underlying substance of ROTC. On a substantive level, it is difficult to avoid the blunt assertion that training soldiers whose ultimate aim is to kill is totally hostile to the principles of academia.

It was the simplistic "my country right or wrong" patriotism of the First World War which spawned the original ROTC program. But one of the clearest lessons of the Vietnam tragedy is that such unquestioning support of government policy is not only morally bankrupt, but counter to the long-range interests of the nation as well as the campus.

In order to reassert the sanctity of academia as a morally autonomous institution, it is necessary to end the universities' role as the unquestioning servant of government and military. The abolition of ROTC as a sanctioned course offering would be a major step in this direction.

Notes From A Black Book

By PAUL CABELL

Crap. That's what politicians are made of. It all begins sometime about the third grade when one day during recess you suddenly realize that everybody doesn't hang out with everybody else. Some guys are ball players. Others are more fond of sitting around in the shade talking about the weird effects of krypton on Superman. And then there are those really dumb looking guys with glasses who somehow manage to break the ice with the girls as if there was nothing to it.

These are the ones who in high school decide to run for pep commissioner and go around shaking your hand in the hallways, telling you what a neat person you are really, and mucking it up with the teacher after class. In college they start off by getting elected cheerleader. They promptly join the right fraternity, get in solid with a few of the older guys, and before you know it they are telling you why you should major in business administration. After awhile they sort of fade out of the picture. They're still around, alright. They're just not really where it's at.

Essentially, that's politics. You've seen it all your life. It takes a thousand forms, wears a million masks. Occasionally you even indulge in it yourself, perhaps without even realizing it until you've gotten off by yourself. But by then it's too late. So you shove it under the rug of your consciousness and resolve to be what you really are.

Meanwhile, however, the politicians are taking over. Silently, like patient snails, they grow older and fatter, and ever more obsequious, settling into positions of power as easily and as quietly as slipping into an overstuffed chair. They get elected not because they get people excited with new ideas, but because they've been around a long time and have "lots of experience in politics." And it's true. They really are experienced.

For instance, take a look at the people who are running for the Santa Barbara City Council. (In case you haven't noticed, today's the day you vote.) The average age of the candidates is about 55. Some of them are approaching senility. (At least two of them are senile already!) When asked why one should vote for them they reply with things like:

"I've had a lot of experience handling people in the military." "I was president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West in 1958." "I'm a member of the Elks Club."

So I want to tell you why you should vote for Issac Garrett, Jose Torres, and John Schaaf, even if you don't vote for anyone else. First of all, when I asked Garrett about his experience in politics he replied by telling me what's wrong with City Hall. Garrett, at 29, is an angry young man who happens to know the problems of the people because he's one of them.

Jose Torres is a 47 year old social worker who speaks about the problems of his people with an intensity that fairly curdles the fat on the bellies of the other candidates. Like Garrett, Torres lacks the plastic style of the pro-politician.

John Schaaf, at 48, is a middle-aged crusader. "I just want things to be right," he says. "That's all I ask." Schaaf has been asking for oil to get out of Santa Barbara for over two years. As for Isla Vista, he says, "I think a Grand Jury should take over there and really go into it."

Like I said, politicians are full of crap. And that's why you should vote for Garrett, Torres, and Schaaf.

Innmates Win Intramural Soccer Crown; Delts Capture IM Swimming Championship

By CLAY KALLAM
EG Sports Staff

In one of the busiest weekends ever for intramurals, the Innmates rolled to the soccer crown and the Delts scored a resounding triumph in the swim meet on Sunday.

Phi Delta Theta and the Innmates clashed in the soccer final, with Giampietro Corradin (called "Superstar" by his teammates) ramming home three goals in the 20 minute overtime period to give the Innmates the title.

Led by goalkeeper John Morrisroe, the Phi Delts had advanced to the finals unscored-upon, and had won several games by the margin of corner kicks in 'minileague' play.

That sentence may not appear to make much sense, but IM Director Sandy Geuss had to resort to breaking ties by determining who had the most corner kicks, and had to set up the tourney with eight three-team leagues, so that it could be played in a weekend. The winners of the leagues advanced into an eight team tournament and went from there.

In case of ties of both goals and corner kicks, each team was given five penalty shots, and the team that converted the most was the winner—a precise description of the Phi Delts first round (of the tournament) win over Sigma Chi, two penalty kicks to one. Corradin pushed in two goals as the Innmates tipped Diablo, 2-0, the GBTBs nipped SMD, 1-0, on Jim Bunkelman's goal, and the Kappa Sigs squeezed by the Theta Delts on cornerkicks, 4-1.

In the semifinals, the Phi Delts scored their first goal of the day as Mike Miller headed one in from 10 yards, and the Innmates edged the GBTBs, 2-1, on cornerkicks.

In swimming, the Delts racked up 80 points to record a solid victory over the second place Sig Eps, who garnered 63. The GBTBs grabbed off third with 31 points and the SAEs came in fourth with 30.

As far as all-school standings are concerned, the Sig Eps second place finish insured that they will keep their lead over the Phi Psis and GBTBs, although the Tar Babies will close the gap due to their high finish in soccer.

However, the Sig Eps will probably gain some of that back as they are co-favorites in volleyball, slated to begin Wednesday night, with the Phi Psis and SAEs.

Each one of the favorites, however, lost one of their top players to the varsity (Sig Eps—Jim Simpson, SAEs—Burton Crinklaw, Phi Psis—Tim Clime) and so the gates might be open for a darkhorse. Volleyball will have a great deal to do with the closest All-Sports Trophy race in some time as the Phi Psis and Sig Eps are two and one in the battle, respectively.

In softball Friday, Right Guard No. 2 checked King's Rook, 12-7, behind Marv Sherrill, and powerful Charlie Brown clobbered the gallant Mothertrucker's Worst, 6-5.

250 Protesters Rock UCLA; Two Separate Actions Used

LOS ANGELES—Two hundred and fifty students took part in two separate protest actions on the UCLA campus yesterday.

The first, involving about 200 persons, was led by a coalition of radical groups including the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) the Committee for a New University, the Resistance, and the Committee for Awareness and Social Education (CASE).

They sat-in at the Administration Building demanding that (1) the administration guarantee that no disciplinary actions be taken against Mike Balter, a member of SDS who was on academic probation last quarter, (2) that all police be kept off-campus, and (3) that all areas of the campus be declared "free speech areas."

They left after giving Chancellor Charles Young until noon on Wednesday to respond to the demands.

In the second action, approximately 50 persons walked picket lines at the School of Social Welfare, alleging that the school had not put out a substantial effort to recruit black and chicano students, and that the education contained in the school was not relevant.

They said they were on strike, and announced that the United Mexican-American Students (UMAS) and the Black Student Union (BSU) were supporting them.

Oil Symposium...

which moves northward at half a knot. It rises to the surface of the ocean in the Winter and sinks again in the Spring.

Allen concluded that if the spill had occurred only a few weeks later than it did, Santa Barbara would have had relatively little oil on its beaches, while Los Angeles, Santa Monica, and Long Beach would have been hard-hit.

Bombing Tragedy Protested

MacMillan declared that "whoever the person was (that planted the bomb), they killed and will have to live with it the rest of their lives."

Later, Mason urged that students and the public neither treat the incident as a political issue nor engage in finger-pointing and recriminations. "Let us not turn a family's tragedy into a political vehicle to satisfy selfish ends."

Requesting that students cooperate with the police, Mason advised "amateur detectives" to leave the solving of the case to professionals.

Greg Knell of SDS said that not only should the violence of the bombing be condemned, but that "we should be condemning the violence of our society... we should be condemning all violence."

Knell termed the bombing "the act of an insane person," and expressed hope that the police would locate the culprit.

Recalling the assassinations of Martin Luther King and the Kennedys, Bill James of the Workshop for Ethnic Studies declared, "Just as the nation was responsible for their deaths, we students are responsible for this... We are victims of this tragedy as much as Sharp. This is our school."

James expressed hope that "we can use this incident to help ourselves, to try to change the ideas of the coming generations."

Father Vorisek from St. Mark's Center in Isla Vista concluded the rally with a prayer from St. Francis of Assisi which began "Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace..."

Poli. Sci. Meet'in

All undergraduates in political science are invited to attend a meeting with the poli. sci. faculty today at noon in the UCen Program Lounge, to discuss possible changes in the curriculum, teaching methods, and the possible formation of an undergraduate poli. sci. association.
