

Over the Fence

By JACK SALYER

DUKE OF WINDSOR

The newspapers have stopped calling Wally Simpson by that name since her decree became final, so she is now Wallis Warfield. This will be changed June third to Her Royal Highness, The Duchess of Windsor, and she will be eighth lady of the British realm. The British consider these matters of importance and it is hailed as a great victory that the wife of former King Edward VIII may be called Her Royal Highness. If the British should hold a parade of the ladies of the nobility, single file, that lady the eighth from the Queen would be the one who tipped Edward off his throne.

COURT DECREASED

Justice Van Devanter handed in his written resignation, to take effect next June, at the same time that the Senate turned down the compromise bill to increase the Supreme Court. Roosevelt said that he was a fine fellow and invited him to drop in and see him on the way out. Van Devanter has voted with conservative consistency against all of Roosevelt's measures, and the President has no real regret to see him go. He would not be displeased to get those sweet little resignations from the other conservatives. Important New Deal legislations, up before the Court now, may be declared constitutional after all. It was a foregone conclusion that it would be killed by the court, until now. Joe Robinson is being plumped for the job, but thus far no hint of who will succeed Van Devanter has been made. It will be Roosevelt's first appointment.

$500,000 FOR COLLEGE

The appropriation bill, to give $500,000 for the new State College in Santa Barbara, now roosts in the State Senate where it may be passed after all. Prospects look bright, and on homecoming day in 1940 we may all journey over to the other side of town to see where we spent so many happy years.

At the Los Angeles Times the workings of the streamlined newspaper will be observed in the recently built plant. The new quarters of the Mergenthaler Linotype company will be visited and observations made of the slug-casting machines. Among these machines are the four-magazine mixer and the All-Purpose Linotype.

The American Lingo

Have you ever asked yourself the question: Should I say nes-e-sa-ri or nes-e-sari, dik-shun-ari or dik-shun-ri, sek-re-tari or sek-re-tri? Either way is correct. The first way is the American pronunciation, the second is the British. How do you say hostile, agile, reptile, and conspiracy? If you pronounce these words with a short i sound, you are using the American style; the long i is British. There are no rules as to which pronunciation is preferred, but everyone should adopt a certain standard and conform to it.

It does not matter if you use the British or the American pronunciation, since there is no right or wrong in your choice. There is, however, one determining factor which should govern your choice. If you were a citizen of one country and had a choice of pronunciation—one correct in your own country, the other correct in another country—common sense and good taste would naturally tell you to use the pronunciation accepted as correct in your own country.

British pronunciation is used almost exclusively on the legitimate stage. It is taught in training schools of speech and is used frequently by professional speakers. If you have been taught in British schools, then you are justified in using the British form. But for everyday business and social usage in this country, the American way is preferred.

If you use the long i sound in hostile, agile, reptile and conspiracy, then you should say been, progress, docile, and either (ither).

Whichever pronunciation you use, follow through and use the one way consistently. You will certainly show better taste by being consistent, and your speech will be much more effective.

Book Chatter

By Arthur H. Batchelder

In "The Outward Room" we find one of the strangest modern novels that has yet been published. It deals with the psychological problem of a young girl who felt she would die after her brother was killed. However, after 7 years in an institution she begins to wish to go back into the world. She escapes to New York, where penniless she tries to find work, but cannot. A young man takes pity on her, and takes her in There, as life crowds in upon her she discovers that there is more in life than queer psychological terms and dwelling in the subconscious. A beautiful love story well told. How she works her problem out can only be told by the author Millan Brand.

"The Gasoline Age—The Story of the Men Who Made It" by C. B. Glasscock. This is a very well done non-fiction book with difficult material well told. In it we learn of the history of the auto industry and of the many struggles of the men who made it. Explains the why and wherefore of the large automobile insturites. The public for this book can be any person who steps behind the steering wheel and all those of the generation who lived with the men of the gasoline age and watched them develop.

Use of the much-maligned word "ain't" in not necessarily illiterate; historically, at least. It is often merely colloquial like shan't, informs Prof. Harold H. Bender of Princeton University's department of oriental languages and literatures.

To Wind'ard

By TED HANLEY

ORCHIDS TO GNAT

Your Wind'ard columnist saw a great motion picture this week—a picture that is probably a leading contender for the next award by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. This drayma, simple, untitled even, is a back-to-nature extract from the life of the worthy Gnat, then a lad of ten or eleven. With the grace of a young giraffe, Gnat (called "Slatherheels" by his intimates) bounds through the reel, all neck and legs. I saw his in his domestic environment, teasing the cat with an extnct gopher, and I saw him at the beach, giving blow for blow with ol' devil sea. Altogether an inspiring performance.

SOCIAL SECURITY

The Great White Father and his staff at Washington neglect none of us in the latest social program under way. As proof, give heed to the tale of Martha, a Hollywood actress. This week she received her check from a major studio and found that 1 percent had been deducted for the "Federal old-age pension". Yet wait, the high point of the story is this, Martha is a Scottish terrier. All the animal actors contribute their bit toward the O. A. P. and the time when they will be no longer self-supporting. Of course, the number of trick dogs and horses that live to the ripe old age of 65 is mighty small, but think of the reserve of bones or hay they will have saved up by that time.

DRIFTWOOD

Sad today is Pegasus, a truly extraordinary frog. For the entry committee of the annual jumping frog jubilee (inspired by Mark Twain's immortal story) has ruled him from the list of competitors because of a little physical peculiarity. Pegasus has six legs and the committee says that's too great an advantage. So tomorrow Pegasus' four legged bretheren will jump without him . . .

Popular book at the public library these days is "Tortilla Flats" by a native Californian. A request for the book that came in from one of the county branch libraries asked for "Tamale Flats". Anyway, it was some kind of Mexican food. . . . Gnat's remark last week about raiding the refrigerator is a dead giveaway as to where he gets his jokes; most of them have been in cold storage for years.

This Alpha Thete boycott on what might have been brother-in-laws sounds kind of crummy to me. FRANCES WADE has been unsecretly married for some weeks. Some more for the Prom: CAROL WARREN and YALE LORDE, ALLEN SPRAGUE and CECILE DILLEHUNT. The K. Letter Argues Amendment

John Twaddell Writes on Question of Credit for Cross-Country

DEAR MR. JOHAM:

In Wednesday's paper you were responsible for a crude remark regarding the cross country athletic amendment to the constitution. No matter what you think, the school is still run under the constitution. It was before you came here, and will be after you leave.

The reason I undertook to change a few by-laws of the constitution, with the aid of other students, was merely for clarification. Your untimely remark about Howard Yeager was uncalled for. By making his 82 yard run, he did not make track points, but he did contribute toward EARNING his letter in football.

A football player practices from September to November, three hours a night, playing a game almost every week-end. This is work, and darned hard work.

Therefore, I do not think that cross-country men who run in any ONE meet should be eligible for a "Block 'S'". Because of the time element involved, it requires about three weeks at the most for a man to get into condition, depending, of course, on the athlete himself, and the run itself amounting to about 20 minutes.

I believe that those framers of the constitutional athletic award amendments, were more than generous with cross-country. In spite of what Joham says, cross-country is a part of track by the constitution, and as far as I can find out, we are still running the college under this constitution.

Sincerely,

JOHN TWADDELL,

President, Block "S",
Member, Constitutional
Revision Committee.

Editor's Note:—These letters by John Twaddell and Ted Joham concerning the constitutional amendment on cross country in no way reflect the opinion of El Gaucho.

SPORTS SHORTS

By WALDO PHELPS

The new legislative amendment in regard to the awarding of letters to cross country runners has caused more than one argument on the campus during the short time it has been in effect. Members of the Block "S" Society on the campus have wanted to keep their organization more or less exclusive. They have felt, and rightly so, that the requirements for earning a cross country letter are too lenient. The team enters the Pomona Meet, which is one of the largest in southern California, and the All-Conference meet, each season. Placing in the first fifteen runners or being a member of the winning team has been the requirement in the past. When the requirements necessary for a letter in football, basketball, track or baseball are looked over, and with the additional knowledge that cross country does not rank as a major sport in this college, it does appear too easy to earn a cross country letter.

Every one agrees with that. The argument is over the new set of requirements, which, at least for the present, would put an end to cross country letters. It now is necessary to place either first or second in the All-Conference meet to earn a letter. No mention what-so-ever is made of the Pomona Meet, which usually draws some of the finest runners in Southern California. This leaves just one meet providing an opportunity for earning a letter, and with runners of the calibre of Seekins of Oxy, de Moulpied of Whittier and Heryet of San Diego all entered, it will take a first class man to place first or second.

In view of this it seems quite natural that interest in cross country would decline. The fact that five points out of the necessary fifteen for a track letter are given to runners who place among the first fifteen in the all-conference might be an inducement to turn out for the team. If cross country looked upon it as John Twaddell sees it—"merely to track what spring football is to football," this new ruling is just, but if it is regarded as a separate sport, then a compromise somewhere between the new and old rulings should be set up.

speech. Hitler did not. So he set little weasel-faced Goebbels to the task of rebuffing the Cardinal. He promptly shouted that the church in general, and Mundelein in particular were a pack of lying rascals who "defamed Germany in the language of the gutter." Of course, this is not true, for no Cardinal is likely to have the opportunity to speak more than once if he used the language of the gutter. On the other hand the language of the gutter is not new nor strange to little Goebbels who employs it frequently and with zeal.

Harder Shifts Positions

Romer, Jessup Transfer to End Positions; Woody Plays at Tackle

Coach Spud Harder has been shifting his men around during the past week in an effort to strengthen some of the weaker positions. Cliff Romer, two year letterman right tackle at Santa Barbara High School, and Bill Jessup, former Lindsay High School half, have been shifted to end positions. DeWitt Truitt, 210 pound transfer from St. Mary's and Frank Hayman, regular for two years, are waging a battle for the right guard position. Jim Woody, Los Angeles Junior College transfer, is working at right tackle due to the absence of Busby and Riparretti, is working out at the left tackle position.

Peirin Merlo, former Santa Barbara High School player, has been shifted to fullback. Merlo is an excellent kicker and passer, in addition to being a good blocker. He backed up the line at the high school and should fit well into the Gaucho backfield.

"Donk" Hart and Al Sprague are tops up for the job of center on the team. Both are from the valley, so they won't play opposite each other in the Valley-Coast game.

The annual "Grudge Battle" is coming off on May 28th, and all indications point to swell game.

LOWER CLASSMEN WIN

In the W.A.A. sports contests, the lowerclass women defeated the upper classwomen in a baseball game yesterday, by a score of 4 to 2. Betty Erbet captained the winning team, with Rena Sacconaghi heading the upper divisioners. Another game between the two teams will be played on Tuesday and Thursday of next week to decide the championship.
