Livermore Lab Bill Passed By State Assembly

By BARRY SHELBY
Sacramento Correspondent

A resolution urging the university to convert the Los Alamos and Livermore National Laboratories to non-weapons research or terminate their management contract passed in an Assembly panel yesterday.

Authored by Assemblymember Tom Bates (D-Berkeley) at the request of the U.C. Student Lobby, the measure is the first legislative attempt to alter U.C.'s involvement with the Department of Energy laboratories.

The resolution requests the U.C. Regents to conduct a study on the feasibility of stopping weapons research at the labs, which have helped to develop the nation's entire nuclear arsenal.

Should the regents find conversion to non-military purposes unachievable within a three-year period, the measure asks the regents to not renew the 40-year contract.

The Assembly Education Committee approved the legislation on an 8-4 vote, with Republican members dissenting. The resolution now moves to the Assembly Ways and Means Committee for approval.

Testimony supporting Bates' resolution questioned the appropriateness of U.C. involvement in highly classified weapons research and their inability to direct the labs away from military pursuits.

"We have one of the premier universities in the world," Bates said, "but this institution should be (Please turn to pg.9, col.1)

Offshore Drilling Hold Supported By County

By JAY DONATO
Nexus Staff Writer

The Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Monday to send a letter of support to Congressman Leon Panetta regarding his bill that proposes a long-term postponement of offshore oil drilling in the Santa Barbara area.

The bill would prevent the auctioning off of offshore oil leases in designated areas by the Department of the Interior until approximately the year 2000.

Panetta's bill would "establish congressional moratoriums on leasing which clearly take precedent over the secretary of the interior's action to go out and lease," said Dianne Guzman, director of the county Resource Management Department. The bill would "prevent any future leasing virtually north of Morro Bay to the Oregon border. The length of protection would be until the year 2000," Supervisor Bill Wallace said.

In the Santa Barbara offshore area, the Panetta bill would protect "the ecological preserve area around the Channel Islands, and the buffer areas in front of the City of Santa Barbara and around the islands. Included in the bill would be lease sale 73, which is along Santa Maria and lease sale 80," Guzman said. "Future lease sales in the south area down here, (in areas) that have been protected in the past, could be wiped out without this bill," Wallace said.

In addition to the areas protected in this area, "the bill would protect areas where there are no offshore facilities, basically in Northern California," Wallace said. "The major reason (for no offshore development) is that the amount of oil there is not worth the damage that could be done on shore. Because there are no existing facilities, they would have to build pipelines, storage tanks and other onshore facilities."

According to the letter to Panetta, the county hopes the leasing of the areas could be held off until production of oil from the current fields starts to drop in approximately 1995. Estimated production levels from existing leased areas are expected to reach some 500,000 barrels per day by the mid-1990s, with additional discoveries in the Santa Maria Basin pushing this number even higher, according to the letter. These figures are "oil industry production forecast," Guzman said.

If the offshore leases were sold, onshore facilities would have to be (Please turn to pg.5, col.1)

Fuel Tax To Improve County Road Upkeep

By MARK ROWE
Nexus Staff Writer

A three to five cent per gallon local gasoline tax may be implemented to offset the costs of maintaining the Santa Barbara County road system.

Santa Barbara County Director of Public Works Charles Wagner and the County Board of Supervisors are seeking to develop the Local Option Fuel Tax which would, according to Wagner, "generate enough money so that we could deal more realistically with our problems. Right now we have a $20-30 million problem. With this tax we could at least get to the point of not continually falling behind."

Before the tax is put into effect, though, it must be approved by the six city councils within the county, then be put on the ballot to be voted on by the citizens.

Bill Mechan, director of the County Road program, calls the tax "a matter of survival for the county road system," and believes

"if the people understand what the problem is and what has to be done, they will back it. County roads are deteriorating due to insufficient maintenance expenditure, and they aged several years during the winter storms," he said. "They need to be rebuilt in some places before we can even talk about maintaining them."

Wagner, who assessed recent storm damage to county roads at $10 million, estimates for every one cent of tax, $1.4 million is generated in the county per year. "A tax of at least four cents a gallon is necessary to insure an adequate level of maintenance," he said.

The tax would be collected by the state which would submit it back to the involved cities and the county, "probably splitting half and half," according to Wagner.

"The gas tax or road user is probably the most equitable means we have for funding," Mechan said. "Only road users pay and (Please turn to pg.8, col.3)

Bike Committee Proposal May Relocate UCen Bike Parking

By BECKY DODSON
Asst. News Editor

Bike parking in front of the University Center may be eliminated if a proposal submitted by the UCSB Bicycle Committee is approved by the Physical Planning Committee and funding for the project is secured.

John Baumann, committee chair, said the recent proposal was devised to eliminate the hazards caused by bike congestion in front of the UCen and bike riding in undesignated areas.

According to an accident report submitted by the committee, of the total 155 major bike accidents reported during the first eight weeks of last fall quarter, 11.8 percent occurred in the UCen area.

In what Baumann called the "most concrete proposal so far," the committee has suggested removing all bike racks from the front of the UCen and relocating them to the Arts Library lot and the section east of UCen II (near the automobile parking lot). Baumann said the parking would remain on the west side of the UCen.

The complete closure of the bike fence along the Music Building and bike traps consisting of metal poles or shrubbery in pedestrian areas are also included in the proposal.

However, Gene Barton, director of student auxiliary enterprises, called the recommendations "much too aggressive" and said he was surprised the bicycle com- (Please turn to pg.9, col.1)

Arms Reduction

In a new arms reduction offer, Communist Party chief Yuri V. Andropov said Tuesday that the Kremlin was prepared to balance Soviet and NATO nuclear forces in Europe on a basis of warheads as well as missiles. The statement was seen as a concession by Moscow, although Andropov stuck to the Soviet position that aircraft borne missiles must be counted in reducing European nuclear forces, and that British and French missiles must be included as part of the NATO arsenal.

Religious Affairs Minister Adam Lopatka said the pope, in his acceptance of the government's invitation to visit Warsaw and seven other cities June 16-22, renewed his plea for forgiveness for jailed Solidarity supporters and those fired for union activity. "There is no humanitarian or social basis for a bill of amnesty," said Urban, a government spokesman. "The release from prison of people who are inclined not to obey the law may be perceived as a bending of will, a weakening of our resolve to deal firmly with social unrest." Polish church sources said last Friday that the government's rejection of John Paul's request could open the door to a papal crusade on the issue during his visit. "The pope will have a powerful, dramatic and humanitarian theme" to raise in meetings with government officials and before the huge crowds at his outdoor masses, one source said. Rejecting Walesa's appeal Monday for a dialogue, Urban said he missed his chance to bargain in the weeks before Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the premier and Communist Party chief, declared "a state of war."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz indicated Tuesday he hopes to have an agreement by the weekend for Israel's withdrawal from Lebanon. But the Lebanese foreign minister said it would be difficult to solve the remaining problems in two or three days.

Nicaraguan Aid Ousted

The House Intelligence Committee, in a blow to President Reagan's Central American Policy, voted Tuesday to cut off covert aid to rebels fighting against Nicaragua's leftist government. The 9-5 vote to eliminate the CIA support was along party lines, with the panel's Democrats providing the margin of approval.

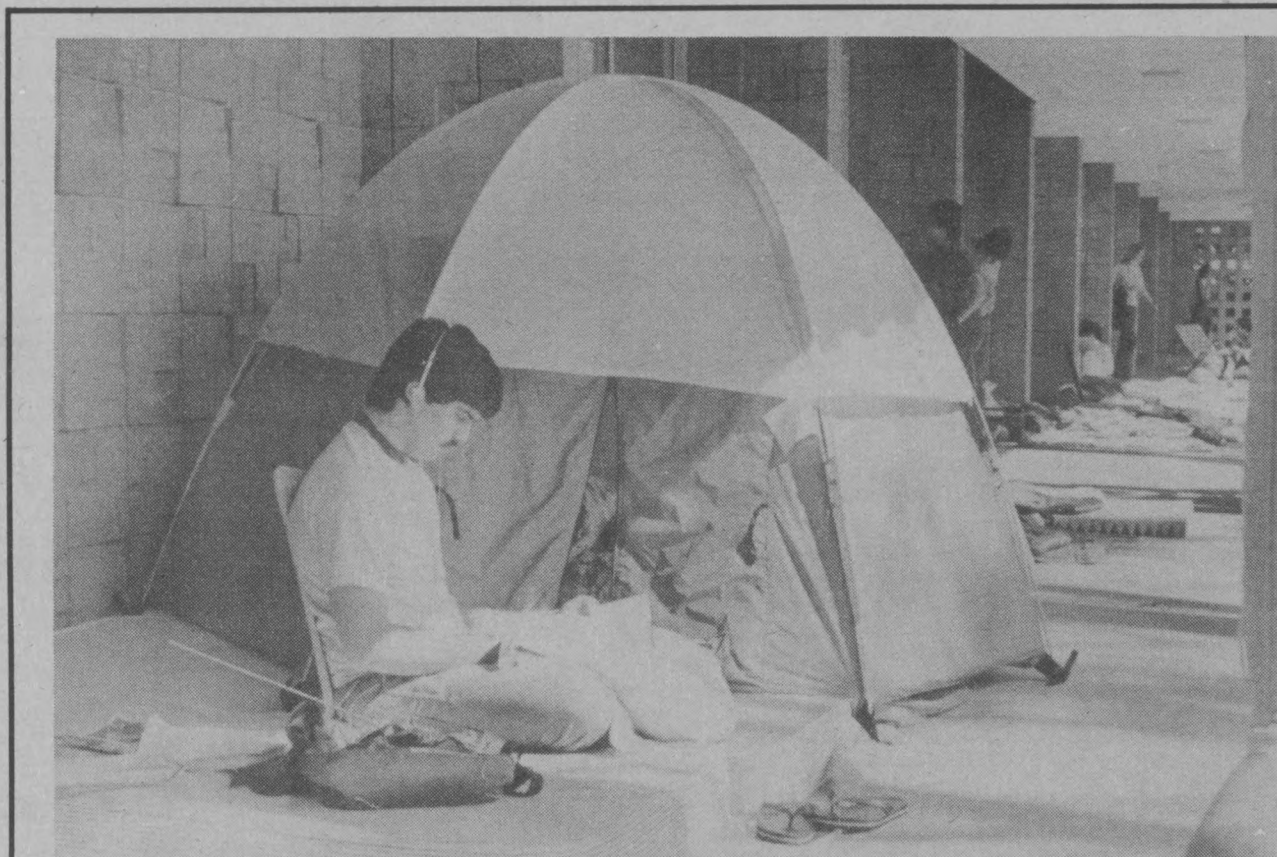

Declaring their opposition to decades of U.S. nuclear thinking, America's Catholic bishops overwhelmingly approved a pastoral letter Tuesday that condemns the first use of nuclear weapons, all but rules out their use in retaliation and demands a "halt" to the growth of superpower arsenals. Their pastoral letter on nuclear arms, which will be the basis for teaching in the 51 million-member American church, was adopted after two years of debate despite Reagan administration objections to the call for a nuclear freeze.

In Dallas, a black-hooded extortionist who held a bank president's family hostage overnight surrendered Tuesday afternoon shortly after he freed the banker's two daughters and the mother escaped. The ordeal began at banker Joe Goynes' home Monday night and ended peacefully 17 and one half hours later a mile from the bank where the gunmen had picked up a satchel of money and fled in a get-away car with the three hostages. None of the hostages were injured and no shots were fired, although police said all three needed time to recuperate from the "traumatic experience." The captives were identified as Goynes' wife, Jo, and daughters Erin, 7, and Shawn, 10.

Environmentalists testified Tuesday that they will not fight William D. Ruckelshaus' nomination to oversee the troubled Environmental Protection Agency. But they suggested his reputation may be overshadowing the question of his commitment to cleaning up the air and water. Five major environmental groups urged the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee to examine closely Ruckelshaus' ties to industry and to seek assurances that he would guide the EPA with the public health in mind.

Senate Republican leaders, given President Ronald Reagan's blessing, predicted Tuesday they would win passage of a 1984 budget plan that sticks to Reagan's original line on tax increases, but trims his defense buildup and spends billions more on domestic needs than he wants. "I think we'll get more than 50 Republicans when the final vote is tallied up," Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker (R-Tennessee) told reporters after meeting with Reagan and with GOP senators.

U.C. Nuclear Lab Ties

The Assembly Education Committee approved a measure Tuesday asking the University of California to halt nuclear weapons research at two U.C. laboratories. "This great institution (U.C.) should be devoted to free inquiry and development of the public welfare and should not be involved in nuclear weapons research," Assemblymember Tom Bates (D-Berkeley), author of the resolution, said. But a U.C. lobbyist said he doubted the university regents would even conduct a study requested by the non-binding resolution, ACR54. The 8-4 vote followed party lines in the 15-member committee. The resolution now goes to the Ways and Means Committee. The resolution is not a law, but a request to the Board of Regents, which has almost total control over the nine-campus U.C. system. The legislature can control the U.C. budget total, but the regents can spend the money however they choose. U.C. has a $1 billion contract with the federal government to run the Lawrence Livermore and Los Alamos Laboratories, where every major nuclear weapon in the U.S. arsenal has been developed. Bates' resolution would ask the regents to study whether the U.C. labs could be converted to peaceful research, to send the Legislature a report on conversion and to sever the federal weapons contract within three years if conversion is not likely.

Self-styled Nazi Perry "Red" Warthan gunned down a teen-age police informant because he said the boy was a "race traitor" and a "snitch," the prosecutor in his murder trial claimed Tuesday. Warthan, 41, is accused of first-degree murder in the execution-style slaying of 17-year-old Joe Hover, whose body was discovered last Oct. 13.

Barbara Mouzin, accused ringleader of the so-called "Grandma Mafia," was convicted Tuesday of running a multimillion-dollar drug trafficking and money laundering operation. Prosecutors said the operation funneled at least $25 million in drug profits through Los Angeles banks. Mrs. Mouzin, 44, of Miami Lakes, Florida, was convicted on 19 counts, the most serious of which was running a continuing criminal enterprise. The count carries a minimum prison sentence of 10 years and a maximum of life imprisonment and a $100,000 fine.

A 38 foot fishing boat sank off the coast early Tuesday after colliding with a tugboat about 50 miles offshore, a U.S. Coast Guard spokesperson said. Two people aboard the fishing boat escaped injury. The San Vincente was fishing on the edge of the outer Santa Barbara Channel at about 6:20 a.m. when it collided with the Crowley Towing and Transport tug about a half-mile off the southeast side of San Nicholas Island, said Petty Officer Third Class Tony Chilelli. There were no injuries to either the fishing boat or the tug, which was towing a barge at the time, he said.

New Commuter Airline To Take Place Of Bankrupt Golden West

By ROBIN STEVENS
Nexus Staff Writer

Air Resorts, a small commuter airline, will begin service to the Santa Barbara Municipal Airport on Wednesday pending approval by the Santa Barbara City Council and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Due to the bankruptcy of Golden West Airlines, and the subsequent cancellation of all their flights as of Friday, April 22, Air Resorts will begin providing four flights per day from Santa Barbara to Los Angeles months sooner than they had anticipated.

Air Resorts currently flies three round trips between Los Angeles and Burbank, provides seasonal service between Palm Springs and Los Angeles, and carries navy contracts "similar to commercial flights," an Air Resorts spokesperson said. The airline has also operated between islands in the Caribbean.

"Air Resorts was established in 1975 as a charter airline; they also had some military contracts," Larry Galindo, assistant airport director, said. "They are already established in L.A., and we feel comfortable that Air Resorts will provide good service."

Since Friday, both Pacific Coast and Imperial Airlines have increased their service by 21 flights per day, which is "six or seven flights more than before," Galindo said. With the addition of the Air Resorts, "there will be an increase in flights and we will exceed the daily service we had when Golden West was here."

Galindo added, "The level of service is still here. We still meet the needs of the community."

The only flights permanently cancelled from the airport, due to the Golden

West bankruptcy, are to Monterey, California. "That didn't have a serious adverse effect on the airport," Galindo said, "because it wasn't a prime market."

Because Air Resorts has purchased four Convair 50 passenger jets from American Airlines, they do not anticipate the problems Golden West had resulting from lease payments, according to the spokesperson from Air Resorts.

The bankruptcy of Golden West was formally announced Monday, April 25, by John Harper, president of Golden West headquarters in Newport Beach. It became necessary to declare Chapter 11 bankruptcy, according to Harper, because of an "inability to attract added capital...and as it turned out, an unsolvable labor situation."

The airline had been in negotiations with employees for a few months concerning contracts which were up for renewal, and "no agreements were in sight," a Golden West spokesperson said.

Harper stressed that the bankruptcy was "not due to pressure from lenders," although one Golden West spokesperson commented, "lenders and buyers saw no unity within the company and they didn't have a lot of feelings to work with us and help us out."

The cancellation of Golden West flights to Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and Monterey did cause many passengers to be rerouted to both Pacific Coast and Imperial Airlines, said Theresa Sangder, Cardillo's Professional Travel manager.

Sangder advised that all persons holding Golden West tickets return them to the main accounting office as soon as possible to receive a refund.

Vagrancy

Imagine that it is 2 a.m. and you can't sleep. Instead of tossing and turning, you decide to get up, slip into your clothes, and take a stroll around the block. As you turn a nearby corner, a patrol car pulls up and shines a search light on your face. An officer approaches and asks for your identification. Since your wallet is on the mantle at home, you can only provide verbal identification. But this doesn't satisfy the officer's suspicion, and he arrests you for vagrancy.

Sound incredible? It is, especially when such a scenario is permissible under California law. But with the Supreme Court's Monday ruling declaring California's vagrancy law unconstitutional, night-time strollers will be protected from unwarranted exercises of police power.

The Court's ruling stems from a challenge to the California vagrancy law brought by Edward Lawson. Lawson, a tall black man who wears his hair in dreadlocks, was arrested or detained 15 times in two years for violating the law. Despite the arrests, Lawson was never charged with a crime.

The Court held that California's vagrancy law was too vague and that it fails to indicate what a person must show or tell a police officer in order to avoid being arrested.

This ruling will have a positive impact on misuse of police authority. In the past, people like Lawson have been arrested simply because they have unconventional appearances. This policy is not only discriminatory but also unlawful, as police officers are only allowed to arrest people if there is "probable cause" that a crime has been committed.

Although the intent of the California vagrancy law is to ensure public safety, the law is so poorly construed that it leaves citizens with no idea how to comply with it. This vagueness, combined with the law's open invitation to excessive use of police power, is sufficient reason to remove the statute from California law.

Oil

In an effort to counteract the interior secretary's continual neglect to the environmental concerns of the California coastal area, the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors voted Monday to draft a letter of approval to Congressman Leon Panetta's bill which proposes to postpone offshore oil drilling in the Santa Barbara area until approximately the year 2000.

The Panetta Bill, if approved, would place congressional moratoriums on leasing and reverse the present trend of irresponsible land exploitation exhibited by the Watt administration. The hold on offshore development would remain in effect until the current fields begin a drop in production — experts estimate around the year 1995 — and new sites become necessary to compensate for the loss.

If the bill is not approved the Santa Barbara area can expect to see a vast increase in construction within the near future to facilitate the growing needs of offshore facilities. There are presently six applications for industrial development pending decisions, none of which are included as facilities for the proposed future land lease sales.

The outcome of such mass construction in a rural area such as Santa Barbara can only lead to a decline in the air quality, fishing industry, and natural beauty of the land and waters. If such irreplaceable resources are to be enjoyed by future generations it is imperative that the Panetta bill be given full support by not only the local Board of Supervisors but concerned citizens as well.

Iran

Editor, Daily Nexus:

We are writing in response to Sue Ransom's April 20 article on Iran. Reading "The Other Side of the Story" reminded us of the arguments and distorted facts about post-revolutionary Iran, presented to American people by the so-called "objective" and "unbiased" U.S. media. Reports on Iran have consistently attempted to portray the revolution and its leadership as having been caught in some grotesque time warp. They want us to believe that the revolution has plunged Iran back into the depths of medieval fanaticism and brutality.

Upholding this tradition of misinformation and misunderstanding in our campus community, Ms. Ransom chose to focus on the few pro-revolutionary Iranian students, accusing them of being an "organized propaganda machine!" and "agents" of "Khomeini's government." In fact, most of us who publicly support the Iranian government are those who feel a strong sense of commitment to the Iranian people and their aspirations. That is why we struggle against the widespread anti-Iranian sentiment created by the Western media's distorted and culturally biased reporting and the efforts of pro-monarchist and anti-revolutionary sectors who have fled the country. We feel obligated to present what we believe to be a realistic representation of what the revolution has meant to most Iranians.

We feel that Ms. Ransom, on the other hand, though using certain "progressive" expressions, was truly slandering the heroic efforts of the Iranian people to build a new, independent society responsive to their own needs and goals. In reading the article, we could not help but note that the statistics and language that she used correspond closely, and are in fact almost identical, to those which have been printed in the publications of the terrorist organization Mojahedeen — an organization that has declared open armed struggle against the overwhelming popular leadership in Iran. The Mojahedeen have, for example, claimed responsibility for the savage bombing of the government headquarters which killed 72 high ranking officials including many members of the parliament.

It is important to acknowledge that the goals set by the Iranian people have not yet been completely achieved by any means. But to blame all the shortcomings and difficulties facing the people of Iran on the present government is extremely simplistic and narrow-minded.

By concealing their objectives, the opposition forces abroad have managed to mislead some progressive sectors in Europe and in the U.S. Slowly but surely, however, these sectors are increasingly becoming aware of the true nature of the anti-revolutionary forces. In an open letter to the progressive press in Britain, Ms. Joan Maynard, a leading figure of the Labor Party and a member of the House of Commons, withdrew her support from the Mojahedeen, stating that, "... the difficulties which arose after the victory of the Iranian revolution can only be solved through mutual understanding and not by resorting to violence and terrorism."

The distortions promoted by Ms. Ransom and her like will not help the Iranian people toward independence, democracy, and social progress. In fact, this type of propaganda is being generated by those who are intent on regaining control over "their" oil in Iran! After four years of this stuff, we believe that it is about time that the American people reject these distortions and turn to other available resources for a valid and realistic picture of our country.

CUB

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In response to Mr. Joseph Staller's letter concerning the need of a Consumer Utilities Board (CUB) and his reference to the study by CalPIRG on utility lobbying and campaign expenditures (4/25), I would like to make the following points.

First, regardless of where the money by utilities is spent to present their cases before the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) or to influence decision makers in the state legislature, the fact remains that utility companies are among the leaders in California spending money for these purposes. Individual consumers do not have the wherewithal to counter those kind of expenditures. Individuals, just as corporations, must file fees with the PUC and other regulatory bodies in order to testify before them. A CUB would allow an efficient means for consumers as a group to pool their resources and help balance the scales for fair representation before the PUC and the other regulatory agencies. Mr. Staller's claim that CalPIRG did not differentiate between advocacy and lobbying did not take into consideration that no such differentiation is required of utilities through their reports to the secretary of state office.

Second, consumers need consistent, professional representation before those decision making bodies that ultimately determine issues that affect our pocketbooks as dramatically as utilities do. A CUB would provide that service. A CUB's intention is to insure that rate increase requests are made legitimately and responsibly.

Third, a CUB will not add another layer of bureaucracy in the state, as Mr. Staller contends. All the legislation which would allow for the establishment of a CUB would do is require the utilities to include in their bills of their customers an informational insert and an invitation to join CUB on a regular basis, with no additional costs incurred by the utilities because of the inserts to be paid by CUB. Once established, CUB would no longer need any direct action to be sustained by the government.

Fourth, the CalPIRG study and CalPIRG is not suggesting that anyone or any corporation, public or private, be denied the right to lobby for their interests. However, CalPIRG feels that utility consumers as a group have the right to organize in order to best represent themselves.

Finally, the need for a CUB is painfully obvious to anyone who has been paying for utilities during the past 10 years. The CUB legislation is the most comprehensive, consistent and well-planned of all the utility reform legislation pending in the California legislature. It's time consumers had some real representation where it really counts!

Rent

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Among the "several options necessary to bring housing back to an affordable medium," rent control is by far the most credulous. The imposition of any price control will always result in an inefficient allocation of the commodity. In the case of housing in Isla Vista, this will probably mean longer lines at all rental agencies and a general increase in the intensity of competition. The high rents do more than just yield healthy profits to the greedy owners. Their most important function is to signal to the shoppers that indeed, there is a "rising demand for housing in the Isla Vista-Santa Barbara area." Any suppression of the price will act to hide this fact. Despite the unpleasantness of paying high rent, let the price rise. Let it rise until the lines subside — this will be the most efficient allocation of the scarce commodity. Price controls are economically immature — any economist will testify to their failure in the past. Let's recall history, and leave the price of housing alone.

Legal Defense Center Announces Suit Filed Against S.B. City Police

By GREGORY McMORROW
Nexus Staff Writer

Approximately 56 Santa Barbara City Police officers and officials, including newly confirmed Santa Barbara Police Chief Gerald Lowry, have been named in a civil suit which charges them of violating the civil rights of 15 Santa Barbara residents, including a 5-year old girl, at a private party last June.

The violations allegedly occurred when approximately 30 to 50 Santa Barbara Police officers responded to assist Officer George Thiel who had been investigating a complaint of loud music coming from a party at 1826 Sunset Avenue at approximately 1 a.m. June 27, 1982.

The suit alleges that 12 of the 15 plaintiffs were assaulted and battered, and their property destroyed by the officers who "totally disrupted, ruined and abruptly terminated the party," Murv Glass of the Legal Defense Center said.

Lowry and City Administrator Richard Thomas were included in the suit because as administrators of the Police Department, they allegedly established a policy which allowed police officers to use excessive force and brutality. Thomas could not be reached for comment because he was involved in daylong City Council meetings and Lowry declined to comment on the pending litigation.

Santa Barbara City Attorney Steven A. Amerikaner also declined to comment upon the specifics of the suit but stated that "we fully expect to vigorously defend against the suit."

The suit, which was filed in Santa Barbara Superior Court on April 25, 1983, seeks a minimum of $225,000, but punitive damages could award the plaintiffs a total of $2 million, Glass said. Six of the 15 plaintiffs were present at the noon press conference where Glass announced the suit.

Thiel had arrived at the party, which had been held in honor of Griselda Gonzalez's 21st birthday, after a neighbor complained of loud music coming from the party. The suit alleges that Thiel "almost immediately" became involved in a verbal dispute with Gabriel Gonzalez, and radioed an "officer in need of assistance" request to the police dispatcher.

Thiel radioed in the call although Tencia Fletcher, who owned the house, informed him that she was "more than willing to correct any problems" that had arisen, the suit alleges. Approximately 30 to 50 officers arrived shortly after Thiel radioed his call for assistance, Glass said.

"This can happen to anybody. I pay property taxes and I'm a law-abiding citizen. The whole community is in trouble. The nightmares I had heard of in the past, complaints about the police force, I never believed. Suddenly I was there," Fletcher said.

Gabriel Gonzalez and William Villapania, who are both named as plaintiffs in the suit, were arrested for suspicion of disturbing the peace.

Gonzalez pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and received a $65 fine. Glass said he did not know if Villapania had been convicted or if the charges had been dropped, but stated that none of the charges are still pending.

Gonzalez said he regretted pleading guilty and stated that he had done so only to save time. "I paid the fine and left. My job was at stake and I had to get out of there," Gonzalez said.

Tencia Fletcher's 5-year-old daughter, Brandy, was included in the suit because she was allegedly "inflicted with emotional distress" when she "narrowly escaped being assaulted and battered," the suit alleges.

"She was in the backyard near where five or six police officers were on one guy and they started to roll over and move towards her. I ran over and picked her up. If I had not been there she would have been squashed. She was very upset, crying and all," Brandy's father, James Fletcher, said.

The approximately 50 police officers who were present at the party are identified as "John Does" because the plaintiffs did not know their names, but Glass stated that identifying the officers would be the next step in the litigation.

James Fletcher, dismayed at the alleged actions of the police, expressed the need for review of police officer's actions.

"I think there should be somebody who should police the police. They don't seem to have to answer to anybody," Fletcher said.

Glass, who has been involved in the filing of several similar suits in the last year, agreed with Fletcher and reiterated his call for a civilian police review board.

"This time we'll have one, a public review, because of this trial. But that's an expensive way of doing it," Glass said.

Tencia Fletcher stated that the incident ended when the police "just left."

Los Padres Experimental Water Well Proposed By The Goleta Water District

By MICHAEL ZOLL
Nexus Staff Writer

In a search for needed water supplies to service the Goleta and UCSB area, the Goleta Valley Water District is proposing to drill an experimental water well on land owned by the United States Forest Service in the Santa Ynez Mountains.

GVWD needs this additional water source because of a water supply deficit. Currently, over 14,000 acre feet are used by customers yearly, while the GVWD only has a firm supply of 11,000 acre feet, according to Jack Walker, senior civil engineer of the GVWD. "The rest we make up as best we can. We've gone to the Cachuma project and we often buy water from the cities of Santa Barbara, Montecito and Summerland. We use what they don't of their supply," Walker said.

Water for the GVWD is presently obtained from Lake Cachuma and an underground water basin below Goleta. The proposed well would eliminate the need to buy water from neighboring sources, according to Walker.

Extensive studies conducted within the area by geologists and hydrologists show the greatest potential for local water sources is the Cold Water Sands source (exposed sandstone in the foothills of Goleta). According to Walker, there have been federal, state, local, independent, and GVWD staff geologists researching this area for over a year.

The well is experimental, but it is the most economical and viable option available to the GVWD at this point, Walker said. "We lost an awful lot of water due to the storms causing excess run-offs of the streams into the ocean. We've been looking at alternative ways to enhance the recharge system and this is the most promising," he added.

"When someone wants to use the national forest for whatever reason, be it to build a road, dig a well, cut down trees, etc., they need to apply for what we call a special permit," Peggy O'Connell, USFS plans and engineering officer, said.

When someone applies for a special permit to use the forest, the USFS "is obligated by law by the National Environmental Policy Act to provide an environmental analysis," O'Connell said. "This analysis investigates all possible alternatives to see what is the best option for their particular method."

The environmental analysis for GVWD's well request has cleared its first hurdle — the impact report. "Basically where we are now is the report is complete and we're considering eight possible sites. The analysis has been documented and is available for inspection," O'Connell said.

There has been negative response by local residents in response to the drilling proposal. "Many of the residents in the small communities near San Marcos Pass and more particularly the Trout Club are very concerned with the proposal," explained O'Connell. "Nearly all of them own and operate their own wells and they're afraid if GVWD finds water and operates at full capacity, their supplies will run dry," O'Connell said.

According to O'Connell, their response may be valid, but "you have to drill a well before you know for sure how much water you have. It's a kind of catch-22 situation. It's highly probable there's water down there, based on the studies, but just how much we're not sure of."

After a May 18 public hearing, the USFS will select one of the eight sites that satisfies the needs of all concerned parties. "Then, additional studies will be conducted on the selected site. Finally, a final public meeting will be held to discuss the findings and again hear public concerns," Joanna Guttman, USFS public affairs specialist, said.

The well would be drilled to a depth of 1,500 to 2,200 feet. The drilling operations would be underway 12 to 24 hours each day, six days a week, for one month.

Women In Politics

Women's Caucus Strives To Bring Representation To Political Process

By EVETTE JUSTUS
Nexus Staff Writer

Establishing equal representation for women in the public decision-making process at the local, state and federal levels of government is the goal of the National Women's Political Caucus of Santa Barbara.

"There is certain legislation that is inherently more important to women than men," Patrice Waidner, local caucus vice-chair, explained. "We exist to educate and encourage women to become involved in the political process."

As a multipartisan political organization, democratic, republican and independent women work together at the local, state and federal levels to elect and appoint women to public office. "We encourage women to run for office. Sometimes women seeking office contact our organization and sometimes we find them," Waidner said. Regardless of how the candidates and the organization find one another, when a candidate is endorsed by NWPC, she is interviewed to determine that she is personally and politically in accordance with the concept of the Equal Rights Amendment, including pro-choice abortion and affirmative action legislation.

"We seek quality in the candidates. Even if these basic feminist issues are not a part of the position that woman is seeking appointment to, we believe the women we support need to support our position," Waidner said.

After these criteria are satisfied, NWPC supports the candidate financially and organizationally. NWPC of Santa Barbara County worked for the election of Mayor Sheila Lodge.

"True equality for women will exist in America when no decision is made without equal representation of women in the room," Dolores Huerta, vice-president and co-founder of the United Farm Workers, stated during a recent address in Santa Barbara.

When asked for NWPC's assessment of this statement as their organization's stance on equality, Waidner said, "We agree with this statement 110 percent. We would add that women of all racial and economic backgrounds need to be educated to participate fully in the American political process. The men have a power structure and the women don't have a power structure established yet. That's why we are here."

As part of the ongoing effort to help women understand the legislative process, NWPC and state Senator Gary Hart will present a Legislative Skills Workshop for women on Saturday, May 7 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., in the Faulkner Gallery of the Santa Barbara Public Library, 40 East Anapamu Street. Hart and members of his Sacramento and district office staffs will conduct the session. "This workshop will provide an overview of the legislative process," Hart explained, "and participants will learn how and where in that process they can lobby effectively for their points of view."

"We hope many women will take advantage of this opportunity to learn about getting legislation introduced, amended, and passed," NWPC Chair Eva Anda said. "They will also find out about assembly and Senate committees and other state and local resources available to them." The workshop is open to the public and is free of charge.

A political Campaign Workshop is being planned for this July. This workshop will be even more comprehensive than the Legislative skills workshop being presented in Santa Barbara this weekend.

At all levels, NWPC members lobby for laws that guarantee equal protection and equal opportunities for all under represented groups, build talent banks to secure appointments of women to commissions and boards and as heads of agencies, organize coalitions and testify at legislative hearings on key issues and recruit a diversified membership to articulate the concerns of all women.

Each election year NWPC organizes a "Win With Women" campaign to recruit qualified candidates and help them get elected, work for the re-election of those who support NWPC's positions; train candidates, campaign managers and campaign workers to organize, fund raise and get out the vote; and support endorsed candidates with financial contributions, campaign volunteers and technical assistance.

In 1982 California-WPC donated $27,000 to endorsed candidates, helped elect Democrat Gloria Molina, the state Assembly's first Hispanic woman representative, and sent Marin-WPC founder Barbara Boxer (D) to the U.S. Congress. Over 30 local caucuses were active in California campaigns, making endorsements and contributions.

Ultimately, one goal of the local organization is to write and present bills into legislation, rather than constantly battling with the legislation of anti-feminist groups.

As part of an ongoing membership drive, local women of all racial, economic and ethnic backgrounds are encouraged to join the caucus in their belief that all issues are women's issues, but the special concerns of women are often not recognized or addressed by male-dominated governments. Interested women can contact the organization at 967-4056 for more information.

Menchan is confident that Santa Barbara County residents will back the tax measure. "The people want a reliable road system, and once they know this isn't just another tax, it is something that will benefit them directly, they'll go for it."

Menchan further stressed the importance of informing people of the county's transportation difficulties. "No one gives the roads any concern, they simply expect them to be in good condition," he said. "Adequate police and fire protection are dependent on good roads. We hear about mass transportation and fuel conservation and this relies upon passable roads, not to mention the availability of foods and everyday services which are entirely reliant on adequate lines of transportation."

Wagner and the Board of Supervisors are currently planning a three-part education program for the county to acquaint the residents with the tax and its implications. "We're getting the word out to interested groups, and several local developers have expressed an interest," he said. "We're also working with each of the city councils individually to gain the needed city support, and we'll be launching a large campaign to let the people know exactly what they will be voting for," he concluded.

'Miss Reardon' to Open May 12

"And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," which is being presented in the Studio Theatre later this month by the UCSB Department of Dramatic Art, was written by Paul Zindel.

Zindel, who in addition to writing plays, has written several novels, is best known for another play which the Department of Dramatic Art presented in 1972 — "The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds." For this play, Zindel earned a Pulitzer Prize in drama, the New York Critic's Award for Best American Play, and Obie Award, and the Los Angeles Critic's Award for Best American Play.

The acclaim which Zindel received, created, interest in his earlier work "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little." Although the play had been presented in workshop productions by several prestigious New York theater organizations, including the famed Actors Studio and the Playwrights Unit, the play had not drawn critical attention.

However, when the play opened at the Morosco Theater in 1971, New York reviewer Clive Barnes wrote: "Mr. Zindel is an accomplished writer. His jokes are witty, and better still, some of them are relevant and locked into the characters of the play. And the sisters themselves are rewarding roles to play. The play has quite a lot to commend it." The production featured Estelle Parsons, Nancy Marchand, and Julie Harris as the three sisters. Following this production, both plays have been popularly produced in communities and colleges across the country.

Zindel, who was born on

Paul Zindel, who wrote AND MISS REARDON DRINKS A LITTLE, received a Pulitzer Prize for another one of his plays, THE EFFECT OF GAMMA RAYS ON MAN-IN-THE-MOON MARIGOLDS.

Laura Wernette is featured as Fleur Stein and Susan Verducci as Anna in the Department of Dramatic Art's upcoming production of AND MISS REARDON DRINKS A LITTLE. Written by Paul Zindel, the Play is directed by Richard L. Homan. Performances are at 8 p.m. on May 12-13 and May 18-20 and at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on May 14 and 21 in the UCSB Studio Theatre (no late seating).

Staten Island in 1936, attended Wagner College in New York, majoring in chemistry. Other plays he has written include "The Secret Affairs of Mildred Wild," "Let Me Hear You Whisper" and "The Ladies Should Be In Bed."

Richard Homan, who is directing the university production of "Miss Reardon," points out that there is a poetic quality in Zindel's drama which has been compared to that in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," and that the family relationships which Zindel creates contrast to those in Eugene O'Neill's "A Long Day's Journey into Night."

Performances of "Miss Reardon" are scheduled at 8 p.m. on May 12-13 and May 18-20 and at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on May 14 and 21. Theatregoers are reminded that there is no late seating for performances in the Studio Theatre and that seating is limited. Tickets should be obtained in advance from the Arts & Lectures Ticket Office, 961-3535.

Cast Announced For Brecht Play

The UCSB Department of Dramatic Art has announced the cast for the spring production of "The Good Person of Szechwan." The Bertolt Brecht play will be directed by John Harrop and is scheduled for performances at 8 p.m. in the Main Theatre May 19-21 and May 26-28.

"The Good Person" is one of the last plays Brecht wrote, and also one of his most popular. Set in Asia, the play examines, in an almost fairy tale manner, the serious political question as to how far one's "good" values can survive in the real world.

The plot deals with three gods who are in search of a good person. These gods will be played by Neil Barton, Michael Guinn, and Katie Mickey. When they arrive in the city of Szechwan, they ask a water seller named Wang, played by Todd Barker, to assist them in finding lodging.

After several futile attempts, he takes them to Shen Teh, a prostitute played by Debra Loja, who provides lodging for them. In thanks, the gods give her money to enable her to perform good deeds in the world. This also allows the gods to smugly convince themselves that all is well with their Creation.

Unfortunately, after buying a tocacco shop, she becomes so overwhelmed by hangers-on that she can only maintain her own existence by impersonating a male cousin, Shui Ta, who operates in a very rational, profit-oriented manner and saves her economic status.

Doug Kaback plays the ambitious pilot with whom Shen Teh falls in love; and the supporting cast includes Eric Lewis, Sharon Greer, Lisa Kleinberg, Mike Friedman, Will Taylor, Dave Marantz, Tom Elliot, Mark Miller, Sue Maxted, Cathy Murillo, Lauren Vanatta, Lindsay Dawkins, Greg Hubbard, and GiGi Sapient. The cast totals 21 university students, but many double playing more than one role.

The settings for "The Good Person" have been designed by Sharon Perlmutter, lighting is by L.K. Strasburg assisted by Teresa Petach. The Asian peasant costumes have been designed by Claremarie Verheyen and Ann Bruice, assisted by Maria D'Atri and Fionn.

For ticket information of "The Good Person," contact the Arts & Lectures Ticket Office at 961-3535.

Laboratories...

(Continued from front page) devoted to free inquiry and the advancement of human welfare, and not be involved in the nuclear weapons business."

Washington has dictated policy on the use of the labs, and U.C. is acting as an "extension of the Department of Energy, the war machine and the weapons industry," Bates said.

U.C. Davis physics professor John Jungerman, a participant in the Manhattan project during World War II, testified that classified weapons research went beyond the "appropriate mission" of the university.

"Weapons research is not appropriate because of the secrecy involved, because it requires FBI clearance for both students and faculty," Jungerman said.

Although the university takes no formal position on legislative resolutions, U.C. lobbyist Lowell Paige told the committee the regents would likely ignore the request to conduct a conversation study.

Because they extensively debated U.C. involvement with the labs last year before renewing their contract with the Department of Energy,

Paige said, "I doubt whether the regents would really undertake this study."

There is "tremendous potential" for energy research at both labs, said David McFadden, a Mountain View researcher who has studied the potential for non-military research at the labs.

Some scientists working at the labs have been denied federal funding for alternative energy research, McFadden said, because lab officials felt it would drain money from weapons research.

McFadden said the university has never challenged a policy which only allows for energy research that is easily transferable to military use and does not affect the weapons research budget.

"I think the creative people at the labs can find the money to do the research through various industry/government sources," McFadden said.

"It's a matter of commitment and direction," he said. "It's perfectly appropriate for the state of California and the regents to provide the direction (away from weapons research)."

THE FRENCH CLUB: Soiree Fondue, 7:30 p.m., 6598 Seville Road, No. 4. Bring $1.50 and wine.

adding more lights, for example, would be considered.

The UCen Advisory Board has responded with its own solutions to the bike problem which are "somewhat of a modification" to the original proposal, Barton said. The UCen's recommendations will be presented to the bicycle committee Friday.

Stan Glickman, UCen Advisory Board chair, explained his proposal would keep the bike racks in front of the Country Store and add parking along the front of the bookstore. The UCen proposal would also create a new bike path leading to the UCen between the Art building and Storke Plaza.

In addition, the plan also calls for bike traps to be installed on either side of Storke Plaza in front of the UCen.

Glickman said the board "agrees in principle with cutting off riding," but the new idea would "work with the natural pattern of traffic" in the area and enable riders and pedestrians to have clear access to the UCen from both directions.

Meta Clow, administrative assistant to PPC Chair Robert Kroes, said the planning committee decided to hold off action on the issue until the UCen Advisory Board and "other appropriate people" had looked at it.

Baumann hopes the plan will be worked out and approved by the end of this quarter so construction can begin this summer.

Lacrossers Beat Arizona For Western Championship

Allen's Last-Minute Goal Gives UCSB Title

By ANNIE WILLIAMS
Nexus Sports Writer

Tim Allen saved the best for last in Saturday's lacrosse game as he scored the final crucial goal which enabled UCSB to conquer the University of Arizona 12-11 and procure the Western Regional Lacrosse League Championship.

The Gauchos got off to a slow start and ended the first quarter behind 3-0. "It was the first time in UCSB history that we've ever been shut out," J.C. Reid said. Paul Kunzel added, "I think our initial hesitation can be attributed to the fact that it was the biggest game most of us have ever played in; we were nervous and taking a lot of tentative shots."

The second quarter saw little improvement. At half-time the Gauchos were down 5-2, Reid and Arnautou were the only ones able to penetrate the Wildcat goal. Although they were down, the Gauchos were never worried. "We didn't have the psyche of the Cal game but we were still very much in control," Bryan Tunney said. "There are so many winners on our team that we knew eventually somebody would pull through," Arnautou added.

After an inspiring half-time talk by Coach Keith Zalkin, Tunney started the rally with two successive goals. The momentum of the game shifted, according to Kevin Taylor, "We slowly took advantage of the opportunities presented us." By the end of the third quarter the Gauchos were up 7-6.

Neither team managed to dominate the seesaw-like fourth quarter. The score increased rapidly and was tied 11-11 with only a minute remaining in the game. Allen then put in the deciding goal when he deftly cranked one in from the outside to make the final score 12-11.

The team is generally so balanced that the attack scores the majority of the goals; however, due to injuries and the stingy Wildcat defense, they were shut down, and the midfield — the "HOG," "Frat," and "Casual" — lines took up the slack and accounted for 10 of the game's 12 goals.

The defense consisting of John Heon, Paul Kunzel, Andy Berrier and goalie Chris Harkins all did an excellent job stifling the aggressive Wildcat offense as well.

The cohesiveness of all three units was the key to success. According to Dan Dugan, "The main reason we won is we worked together as a team. At the start of the year we set our goal of a championship title and we've worked all year to achieve it."

Kevin Taylor added, "Very few people have the opportunity to play on a collegiate championship team, especially one like ours which is made up of a rare bunch of guys."

"We won as a team rather than on individual talent," Pete Starke added.

However, this fundamental cohesiveness would have been lacking were it not for Zalkin. As Arnautou observed, "We've had the best talent in the state over the past (Please turn to pg.12, col.2)

McBrides Homer Gives 'Cardiac Kids' 4-2 Victory

By GARY MIGDOL
Nexus Sports Editor

In what is becoming typical fashion, the Gauchos were pushed to the edge again before regaining themselves and pulling out another win, this one a 4-2 decision over Cal State Long Beach.

Kent McBride was the hero this time. The 6-3 junior hit a three-run home run in the bottom of the ninth inning yesterday to preserve the Gauchos' lead in the Southern California Baseball Association. UCSB's 17-4 conference mark keeps them two games up in the loss column with seven to play.

The win gave head coach Al Ferrer his 100th victory in a Gaucho uniform. But it did not come easily. Ferrer had to suffer through some heartache before he could celebrate.

And afterwards, he had a lot to celebrate. The Gauchos (36-18), perhaps the hottest team in the nation, won for the 19th time in its last 20 games. It was their 10th straight win, eighth straight in the SCBA and it pulled them that much closer to an NCAA playoff berth.

The "Cardiac Kids" had their backs against the wall in the ninth inning, trailing 2-1 after Dan Yokubaitis served up a home run pitch to the 49ers' Dave Knox. Yokubaitis, who picked up his 13th win of the season to break a school record, made a rare relief appearance in the sixth inning when starting pitcher Frank Spear got into trouble.

Yokubaitis retired everyone he faced until Knox tagged him with a two-out home run.

Spear, who was making his first start since early in the season, pitched splendidly in his five and two-thirds innings of work. He allowed just one run and five hits and kept the Gauchos in a very tight game against Rich Kellogg, who suffered a bitter defeat.

McBride, who doubled and scored the first run of the game in the first inning, got his chance to be the hero after pinch hitters Mark Swancoat and Rick Irwin got aboard with one out in the inning.

"I was thinking home run the whole time," McBride said. "They tried to stall before pitching to me, make me think about it. They were playing games, so I wanted to play mine. I wanted to put it in their face."

McBride, who raised his average to an even .300, said everything seems to falling in place for the Gauchos.

"This team is incredible," McBride said. "Everyone picks everyone else up. When Yok came in after allowing the home run, he was smiling. He knew we'd come back. When we were up 1-0, I was scared. We play better when we're behind."

GAUCHO NOTES—The Gauchos host Pepperdine Friday at the Campus Diamond starting a 2:30 p.m. In yesterday's SCBA action, Cal State L.A. upset the fading U.C. Irvine Anteaters 7-6 and Pepperdine defeated Loyola 9-3. Fullerton played a night game with San Diego. The Titans' 13-6 record puts them behind the Gauchos, followed by Long Beach (13-7), UCI (12-9) and Pepperdine (12-9).

couple years, but it's taken Keith to put it together; he's the ingredient which has made the crucial difference."

"Keith was the catalyst in putting the team together," Tunney added.

Just as the UCSB Lacrosse Club is improving, so too is the level of competition in California. As Dugan noted, "In past years teams won in California due to one or two exceptional players; the competition is definitely picking up now."

"It's too bad we've gone to the limit, it would be interesting to see what we could do back East," Reid added.

On Sunday nine Gauchos had the honor to be chosen to play in the North-South All Star game. Tom Chancellor, Reid, Tunney, Allen, Taylor, Dugan, Kunzel, Berrier and Harkins not only constituted one-third of the Northern team, but also contributed five goals to the North's victory.

Although UCSB will be losing seniors Kunzel, Arnautou, Tunney, Dugan, and Jeff Zielynski, with the addition of new recruits and the many returning starters, UCSB hopes to be the first team to ever win the title back to back.
