

Candidate Violates A.S. Election Rules With Campaign Party

By JANE MUSSER

By throwing a beer and live band campaign party last weekend, A.S. presidential candidate Bob McMahon was in "flagrant violation" of A.S. election by-laws, according to Missy Hankin, A.S. election chair, and several other presidential candidates.

"This gathering began as a party benefitting my candidacy," McMahon said in a letter inviting the other candidates "to discuss the issues permeating A.S. government" at the party. The letter was written when McMahon learned on Friday afternoon, after discussing "the nature and consequences of holding such a gathering" with A.S. Executive Director Paula Rudolph, Student Affairs Advisor Mikie Chavez and Hankin, that his party was in violation of A.S. by-laws.

"I had no idea that any of this would be considered a violation," McMahon said of the party that was advertised to include 20 kegs of beer, and also involved a live band and the closing of a block of El Greco in I.V. "I was shocked when presented with the violation."

According to Hankin, McMahon's party violates the election laws because it exceeds the $100 campaign spending limit set for presidential candidates.

McMahon said that because the beer was bought through individual donations and the band, whose members he knows, was playing for free, "It is not an expense for my campaign at all. The money did not come out of my pocket."

However, Hankin said that the $100 spending limit includes all donations to the campaign. "If a friend donates $25 or someone donates paint to make posters, a candidate has to subtract that from the $100," she said.

Hankin estimated that if the posters advertising 20 kegs were true, donations for beer alone would amount to $600. Services of the band, the monetary value of which Hankin estimated to be $300 at the least, would also have to be considered donations to be deducted from the campaign spending limit.

After learning of his violations, McMahon "decided to remedy the situation, to make things right" by inviting the other candidates and their supporters.

"I was going to open up the party as a forum to discuss the issues," McMahon said before the party, "but if all the candidates don't show up, I won't."

None of the other candidates attended the party. In a letter to McMahon, Tibby Rothman said she did not want to "add any (Please turn to back page, col.1)

Revolutionary Communists Sponsor American Workers Boycott For May 1

By DAVE WALSH

To dramatize the discontent within the working classes and their increasing willingness to take serious action, a national workers' boycott has been scheduled May 1 by the Revolutionary Communist Party of America.

Two major objectives of the boycott are to impress upon management the increasing number of dissatisfied laborers, and to spur those undecided within the labor force to choose sides.

"We want all those who hate this system to take a stand," said Norman Roberts, spokesman for the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade. "We want them to ask themselves where this world is headed...to crisis and war...and what are they going to do about it?"

Demonstrations are scheduled for all major cities in the country. A march and demonstration will be held in MacArthur Park in downtown Los Angeles at 10 a.m. on May 1.

After a series of speeches, the demonstrators will march through major portions of the Civic Center. A spokesman for the Revolutionary Communist Party projected that there could be 800 to 1,000 workers in the march. "Across the country," said Roberts, "the numbers will run well into the thousands."

Although primarily targeted at the blue collar worker, the work boycott will extend to students, service men in the armed forces, and even prisoners. "All we want is people to chance their everyday routine to show their support for the workers," said Roberts. "We welcome support from everyone."

The party has printed a May Day Manifesto, and will distribute them during the demonstrations. The manifesto, which has been printed in 17 languages and is openly critical of the Soviet communist system, has already been smuggled into Russia and other

A seafood restaurant and oyster bar is being built at Goleta Beach as part of new construction activities which also include an enlarged pier and new parking lot.

The new restaurant, The Kelp Cutter, will replace the existing snack bar and it will be adjacent to the new pier.

"Our new two-level building will offer diners a view of the ocean, and our seafood will be not only affordable but also extremely good," said owner Bill Mazzia.

According to Mazzia, the cuisine will offer reasonably priced ($5-8) meals, which will include the traditional seafood specialties such as lobster and crab.

"I want my restaurant to be accessible to the student population of Isla Vista," said Mazzia. This will be a T-shirt, shorts and sandals place. We'll offer a special happy hour meal of deep-fried fish with a mini loaf of sourdough bread and beer or wine that will almost be a meal in itself."

The renovated pier will extend an extra 800 feet beyond its present length. There will be two daily fishing excursions, one to the islands and the other will explore the fishing grounds up and down the coast. In addition, there will be a diving boat that will offer sport divers the opportunity to explore some of the more inaccessible diving areas that exist in the channel.

A small bait shop and facilities for launching private boats with a more easily reached lower dock loading area will also be featured at the pier.

For sometime the Goleta Beach parking facilities have been overburdened during the summer. Using three acres of land, formerly owned by the Pacific Lighting Company, Santa Barbara County will build a parking lot on land across the street from the Goleta Beach entrance.

Largely, the new construction at Goleta Beach has been in due to the efforts of Third District Supervisor Bill Wallace, said Mazzia. He added, "The efforts of Bill Wallace were extremely helpful in the construction of this pier project."

"Monies from the State Tidelands Commission and the Coastal Conservancy will help finance this project," said John Stahl, an aide to Wallace.

To publicize the demonstrations scheduled for May Day, members of the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade marched through Isla Vista recently.

Utility Maintains LNG Site is Safe

By DAVID PETRY

The LNG project at Pt. Concepcion is not endangered regardless of this month's developments, according to Western LNG spokesman Al Pizano. Recently, some official observers felt the final approval given the project last September by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission might be revoked.

This month the U.S. Court of Appeals ordered that hearings be reopened due to questions resulting from recently gathered seismic data on the proposed site. Since the FERC approval, the U.S. Geological Survey has discovered a number of short surface faults running across the 209-acre plot. Although the question of its stability will be up to the Public Utilities Commission to decide, FERC will also be having hearings on the USGS data.

Another recent development is a plan by Algeria to obtain $6 per million BTU's (British Thermal Units, a measure of energy) of LNG sold. Although Algeria will not be supplying the Western LNG terminal, their price proposals will affect how much of an increase Indonesia is going to want.

Pt. Concepcion, scheduled to be under construction in spring of 1981, will receive 500 million BTU's per day from Indonesia if the current contract remains binding. Another 400 million BTU's per day will come from a southern Alaska liquefaction plant. Should Algeria be successful in obtaining their $6 per million goal, Indonesia may price Western LNG out of existence.

Pizano is not worried. He said, "The FERC did not necessarily construe the order of the court (U.S. Appeals) to mean that there would be hearings that would delay or kill the project. The information of the USGS may just be included into the current plans. Neither the FERC or the PUC have closed the seismic issue."

What will come of the hearings, Pizano felt, would be nothing more than recommendations for modifications in the plans.

"Algeria will settle for something closer to the Canadian and Mexican prices ($4.70 per million BTU's). Slowly but surely the worldwide price of natural gas is reaching a common level. Indonesia will be asking for a renegotiation of price, but they will have to be competitive with the Mexican and Canadian prices to keep the market," Pizano said.

Indonesia, Pizano added, has a large market for their LNG in Japan. Japan would be willing to buy all of their production. Indonesia also has a $1 billion investment to protect in a liquefaction plant. "There is, of course, a limit to how long they're going to wait, but they don't want to put all their eggs into one basket (Japan's)," Pizano said.

Other people in the Department of Energy had stronger misgivings. According to Lawrence Diricco, a DOE program planner, "We would have to review the terminal site and assess how dependent California would be on LNG."

SACRAMENTO—A senate subcommittee has cut nearly $4 million from the State Energy Commission's proposed budget. The cut occurred after the panel's chairman charged the commission is "a long way from fulfilling the intent of the legislature." Senator Alfred Alquist of San Jose, chairman of the Finance subcommittee that made the cuts, said he feels somewhat responsible since he played a role in the creation of the commission. "I frankly don't see anything in the five years that this agency has been in existence that is justified," said Alquist. Alquist is a nuclear power advocate who helped create the commission through 1974 legislation.

SACRAMENTO—Operators of the Rancho Seco Nuclear Power Plant have paid a $25,000 fine to the Federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission for mistakes in the operation and installation of equipment at the plant. Sacramento Municipal Utility District spokesman Jeff Marx confirmed that the fine was paid. He added that the utility did not contest the violations, but sent an explanation of the events and corrective action taken before the fine was imposed. Marx said the violations happened in December and early January with valves, one of which was supposed to be open and the other closed. Another incident involved an improperly installed breaker.

STANFORD—Researchers at Stanford University report they have succeeded in keeping alive a group of monkeys after transplanting their lungs and hearts simultaneously. Doctor Bruce Reitz of Stanford said that if further animal studies are successful, human patients could begin being treated within two years. Reitz said human heart-lung transplants might help patients who have suffered lung damage as a result of heart disease or others in whom both lungs are severely diseased because of other causes.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance has resigned after disagreeing with President Carter's decision to launch a military mission to rescue American hostages in Iran, an administration official said Sunday night. There was no official announcement of the resignation, however an administration official said that Carter and Vance had discussed the commando-style rescue attempt for some time during the preparation stage and that the secretary of state had said he could not support it.

FLORIDA—Florida officials are preparing for the entrance of as many as a quarter of a million Cuban refugees. They said that's the number that could be ferried to Florida by some 2,000 boats now waiting in Cuba to pick up the would-be exiles. Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre said he'll ask his city to be declared a disaster area so it can get more federal aid. Immigration officials have been issuing citations to the American boat captains bringing in the boat people and warning them that they could be fined. But that's not slowing down the boats, who are often charging the refugees for the transporting them.

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to kill a pair of federal lawsuits against Los Angeles charging illegal bias against women in the city's police department. The justices left intact a ruling that forces Los Angeles to defend itself against charges of violating the rights of female police officers and women who unsuccessfully applied for police work. One of the lawsuits was filed in 1973 on behalf of all women affected. The other was filed by the federal government in 1977. Both suits now return to a federal trial judge in Los Angeles for further proceedings.

The World

BEIRUT—Iran's foreign minister said Secretary of State Vance was justified in his decision to quit in protest over the aborted hostage rescue attempt. Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told reporters in Beirut, Lebanon yesterday that the decision to try the rescue was made by Carter advisors who — in Ghotbzadeh's words — "have a tendency to blow up the situation." He said Vance quit in protest against not having been informed of the decision. This conflicts with reports that Vance was in on the decision-making process — the only member of the National Security Council to vote against the rescue mission.

TEHRAN—An Iranian Islamic leader and other close followers of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Sunday cynically and coldbloodedly displayed on television pieces of the remains of the Americans killed in Friday's mission aimed at rescuing the U.S. hostages. Although Khomeini, Iran's supreme leader, was not present, his son, Ahmed, and his grandson, Hussein, were there and obviously approved.

LUXEMBOURG—Heads of government of the nine European Common Market countries reaffirmed here Sunday that they will stand by the United States in the Iranian crisis and impose economic sanctions against Iran unless decisive progress is made toward release of the Americans, held hostage since Nov. 4.

NEW DELHI—The Soviets have moved medium-range ballistic missiles armed with both nuclear and conventional weapons into Afghanistan, according to an Indian news agency dispatch. In a dispatch from Kabul, H. N. Kaul, a senior correspondent of the Press Trust of India, attributes the report only to "highly placed sources," apparently in the Afghan capital.

Speeches, Panels Planned

Environmental Studies Marks 10th Anniversary on Saturday

The 10th anniversary of the establishment of U.C. Santa Barbara's pioneer environmental studies (ES) program will be observed on Saturday, May 3.

The afternoon program of speeches and panel discussions on environmental topics will be dedicated to philosopher-scientist Aldo Leopold.

Leopold's son, Luna B. Leopold, professor of landscape architecture at U.C. Berkeley, will be one of the main speakers.

The senior Leopold, who died in 1948, was an early proponent of the acceptance of a "land ethic," which continues to be regarded by conservationists as their most challenging and far-reaching goal.

The other speaker will be Charles Warren, former chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, Washington, D.C. Warren, a lawyer, was a member of the California Assembly during 1963-77 and has been active in energy and environmental matters.

The program, to be held in University Center II on the UCSB campus, will get under way at noon with a buffet lunch.

Lunch will be followed by brief remarks from Robert S. Michaelsen, the vice chancellor; Daniel B. Botkin, chairman of UCSB's ES program; Arent H. (Barry) Schuyler, lecturer and past chairman of ES, and Roderick W. Nash, first chairman of ES.

Following the remarks, Leopold and Warren will speak, and the balance of the program will be devoted to six panel discussions.

Subjects of the discussions and participants are:

Wilderness and Ethics: Nash, Leopold, Garrett Hardin, UCSB professor emeritus of human ecology, and others; Energy and the Santa Barbara Channel: Schuyler, Warren and others; Conservation of Endangered Species: Botkin, Henry W. Art, visiting associate professor of ES, and others.

Also, Stream Ecology and the Redwood Coastal Environment: Edward A. Keller, assistant professor of environmental studies and geological sciences, and others; Environmental Law: J. Marc McGinnes, lecturer in ES, and others; and Environmental Analysis and Planning: Cindy Sage, Orrin G. Sage, Jr., Paul W. Wack, lecturers in ES, and others.

Members of the UCSB and general communities have been invited to attend. Tickets for the entire program, including lunch and post-meeting refreshments, are available for $8 at the ES office, 3206 Phelps Hall. Information is available by calling (805) 961-2968.

When ES was established at UCSB in 1970, it was the second program of its kind in the U.S. Courses were first offered in fall 1970, and the first B.A. degrees were awarded in 1972.

A total of 727 students have received the degrees, and the program has become one of the largest and most comprehensive of its kind in the country. An ES alumni directory, which will include among other data as current job status, will be available in conjunction with the anniversary observance.

Predicting that environmental issues and problems will continue to be a major social concern during the 1980s, Botkin said, "We are in the midst of a change in the way these issues are viewed and dealt with by society."

The issues, he explained, have now begun to focus on how the U.S. can implement a wise management of the environment. These issues are being sharpened as problems of energy, population and limited material resources increase, Botkin noted.

The change in focus on environmental issues "will lead to an increase in the demand for highly trained and broadly educated individuals who know the 'how to,' not merely the 'why' of environmental matter," he predicted.

Teller Key Speaker Saturday At Nuclear Power Symposium

A free symposium on nuclear power featuring several distinguished scientists and engineers led by theoretical physicist Edward Teller will be held on Saturday at 1 p.m. in Lotte Lehmann Concert Hall at U.C. Santa Barbara.

The symposium will serve as a climax to two weeks of environmental consciousness-raising being observed in the Santa Barbara area, according to Glenn E. Lucas, UCSB assistant professor of chemical and nuclear engineering.

He said that it no longer is possible to treat energy and the environment as separate issues. And that is the way policymakers are treating the two areas — as interrelated, he commented.

Featured speaker Teller, who is senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University, is an advocate of the use of nuclear power as part of a total energy program for the U.S. This will be the focus of his remarks at the symposium.

Symposium panelists and their areas will include:

EDWARD TELLER

—John A. Blume, president of the Earthquake Engineering Research Institute, Berkeley. Blume, a seismologist, will discuss nuclear power plant safety as it relates to earthquakes, especially the Diablo Canyon power plant.

—O.R. Lunt, director, laboratory of nuclear medicine and radiation biology, UCLA. Lunt will speak on health effects of low-level radiation as well as survey results of Hiroshima survivors.

—Robert F. Williams, nuclear power division, Electric Power Research Institute, Palo Alto. Williams' area will be the transport and disposal of spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive wastes.

—Leslie Cave, adjunct professor, department of chemical, nuclear and thermal engineering, UCLA. Cave, considered an authority on reactor design and operations, will talk about reactor safety.

—Miro M. Todorovich, professor of physics at City University of New York, will serve as moderator for a question-and-answer session.

The symposium is being sponsored by the UCSB department of chemical and nuclear engineering; the UCSB student chapters of the American Nuclear Society and the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in cooperation with Santa Barbarans for a Rational Energy Policy; the California Council for Environmental and Economic Balance, and Scientists and Engineers for Secure Energy.

A Novelist's Handwriting May Give the Plot Away: Gottschalk

Reading a novelist's handwritten manuscript is like sitting next to someone in a who-dun-it movie who keeps whispering who did it.

So says Gunther Gottschalk, a scholar of 20th century German literature at U.C. Santa Barbara, who contends that some writers unconsciously reveal important junctures in their fiction through their handwriting patterns.

"This may end debate on what a writer really meant by this or that passage," he says. "We can just analyze the handwriting."

Gottschalk develops his thesis in a new book which correlates the handwriting of Nobel Prize-winning novelist Hermann Hesse with structural and thematic features of his prose. He emphasizes that his findings should not be confused with graphology or handwriting psychology, which uses handwriting as a tool for character analysis. Gottschalk's only concern is literary meaning.

Hesse, who wrote in German, became known to the English-speaking world when novelist Henry Miller persuaded his publisher to translate and publish Hesse's novel "Siddhartha," which was subsequently made into a movie directed by Conrad Rooks. Hesse's novel "Steppenwolf" also was published in English and was popular.

The German writer was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature in 1946.

While studying Hesse's unpublished manuscripts in a West German archive, Professor Gottschalk noticed the handwriting disparities and decided to make a record of them as he continued his original study.

"I couldn't help but notice that Hesse would periodically shift from writing his "g's," "h's" and "f's" with ovals to writing them with sharp angles, and from straight-up-and-down lines to sharply slanted ones." Gottschalk says.

"Why was this? I asked. It couldn't be explained by fatigue or cramped position caused by reaching the end of a page on the edge of the desk, because these changes occurred early as well as late on a page and throughout the manuscript — and sometimes within a single paragraph!"

Intrigued, he kept track of the looped and angled letters in the novel fragment "The Youth of Peter Bastian." Page 21, for example, might have 10 percent of its "g's," and "h's" and "f's" written with loops and 80 percent with angles. When plotted on a curve, page 21 would be represented by a sharp peak in contrast to the preceding five pages where a much lower share of angled letters would produce a valley.

He then summarized the novel's story line page by page so that it correlated with the pages indicated on the graph. And sure enough, whenever a character named Quorm — the idol or role model of the novel's protagonist — appeared, there would be high peaks in the graph.

"I almost didn't have to read the book to know what was happening," Gottschalk says in reference to the graph. "I could accurately predict when Quorm would appear."

He tried the same system with other Hesse manuscripts, with the same results. Then he sought out the handwritten manuscripts at the archive of other German fiction writers. Though each had his or her own idiosyncrasy, the results followed the Hesse pattern.

"Imagine involvement so intense that the entire body responds to the creative process!" Gottschalk says.

When he examined Hesse's diaries, letters and business correspondence, however, he found no such patterns of handwriting, leading him to conclude that it takes the internal tension of literary creation to produce them.

Gottschalk believes that a study of handwritten manuscripts not only offers insight into the author's feeling toward the subject matter, but can be a valuable aid in determining the chronology of undated manuscripts. Publishers are particularly concerned with dating such manuscripts, he says, because they want to publish the finished version, not an earlier draft or fragment.

Gottschalk's book, titled Authors and their Handwriting: Studies in the Manuscripts of Young Hermann Hesse in the Marbach Archive, is published in German by Akademischer Verlag of Stuttgart, Germany.

The scholar concludes from his study that our exclusive reliance on the printed word has caused us to lose "some of our ability to experience the immediacy and originality of literary creation and to see the artist at work."

MEMO To Students

The College of Letters and Science reminds students that Friday, May 2 is the deadline for course withdrawal for Spring quarter. Petitions are available in the Registrar's Office and require the instructor's signature and payment of a $3 fee. Questions regarding the deadline may be directed to the College Office, x 3109.

Offerman Memorial Fund Established

The friends and family of Dr. Robert J. Offerman have established a memorial fund in his name to provide scholarship grants to UCSB students on intercollegiate teams.

In commemorating the local physician who died last December, the fund recognizes his long-term involvement with UCSB. He served in the orthopedic clinic of the Student Health Center, and was active for many years in University Bench, the campus basketball support group. He also was involved in the campaign to generate funds for the campus Events Center and was one of the principal donors to that campaign.

Recipients of the Robert J. Offerman Scholarships will be selected by committee and must be participants on an intercollegiate athletic team at UCSB. The committee will review applicants' academic, athletic and leadership capacities, as well as financial need. Preferential consideration will be given to local residents and tri-county residents.

Additional information about the fund can be obtained by phoning the UCSB Development Office at 961-2688 or Robert Olson, M.D., at 967-8025.

Corle Contest Winners Listed

Three undergraduate and four graduate students at the University of California, Santa Barbara, have been declared winners of the 17th annual Edwin Corle memorial book collection contest. The students were awarded prizes for their personal collections at ceremonies held last week at the university library.

First place winner among undergraduates was senior Jeffrey K. Hirsch, for "Jack London: A Collection." Eva E. Meckna, also a senior, won second place for her collection called "My Canine Library." Given an honorable mention for his collection on "The Japanese Theatre World War II" was freshman Bradley L. Young.

A fourth place prize was awarded in the graduate contest for the first time this year, since there were so many good entries. First place went to Ron Grove for his collection of Christian liturgical books, second place went to Gregory V. Wasson for his "Esperanto: creative medium and cultural bridge," third place was won by Steven W. Ireton for his "Bibliography of Native American Studies," and the fourth prize of $100 went to Pamela S. Morgan for "C.S. Lewis: man of many faces."

Judges for this year's Corle contest were Chancellor Robert Huttenback, Prof. C. Herman Pritchett of the political science department, and Noel Young of Capra Press. Guest speaker for the Corle awards was Christopher Isherwood.

Yes: CalPIRG

The UCSB campus has the unique opportunity of bringing about true positive social change that will only cost something if you want it to. This opportunity comes in the form of a California Public Interest Research Group referendum on the April 29 and 30 ballot.

CalPIRG is a research corporation which will set up a UCSB chapter and work to evaluate and reflect the concerns of UCSB students on a wide variety of fields, from environmental quality to sexual discrimination. In the evaluation of such problems and needs, CalPIRG would also work to bring about change.

It is not a new concept. Various universities across the country have already come up with their own versions of CalPIRG — including U.C. Berkeley and San Diego. One of the proponents of the group and its concept is famed consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

UCSB needs such an avenue into social change and growth. With CalPIRG such a medium would exist. The group's funding would come through a $3 voluntary fee which will be paid with the Registration Fees. If dissatisfied with the groups actions or evaluations, the student is free to refuse payment.

On all fronts, CalPIRG is a winner. For these reasons we strongly endorse a YES vote on the ballot and we support the policies of CalPIRG.

No: Special Election

A measure has been placed before the students of UCSB which would call for every vacant elected non-executive A.S. position to be appointed rather than elected. We urge a NO vote be taken on the measure.

Proponents of the measure state that the special election of someone in mid-term is far too costly and time-consuming to merit worth. While we do not disagree that a fairly large amount of money is used in such a relatively small election, we are more concerned with the principle of the bill.

If voted into the UCSB Associated Students Constitution, it would become a permanent fixture. This would mean that, in effect, the student body would hand over their voting rights to the members of an ad hoc committee who would make the final decision on who should be placed into office.

There is something that is inherently wrong in this argument. While the price of an election may be high, the consequences of such a measure would be far worse. The students of UCSB have the right to decide for themselves who they want to put into office — as students and voting members of UCSB, it is their very valuable and non-negotiable right. Don't let this special elections bill take them away from them. Vote NO on the measure.

Vote

In previous A.S. elections, the student turn-out has not been what you would call, well, staggering. In fact, a simpler word for it would have to be dissapointing.

Every year somebody urges you to go out to vote, and every year a sizable number of the population...don't. There are hundreds of reasons not to; too much homework, your feet hurt or some other trivial excuse that fits the occasion. This year think it over a little bit harder as you pass the voting booth.

Macklin Revisited

Editor, Daily Nexus:

The letter to the editor which Marty Cusack authored, (Daily Nexus 4-25-80) is, in my opinion, inaccurate and misleading. Marty seems to have insinuated that Bruce Macklin was fired from his position as A.S. Bikeshop Manager because of improper management (with respect to the bike shop inventory), but this is not correct. Paula Rudolph's letter of dismissal to Bruce (4-17-80) does not mention improper management or inventory concerns. Rather, this letter accuses Bruce of "repeated efforts to avoid admission of any wrongdoing" and "an insubordinate attitude towards me and the Associated Students." Should anyone be forced to admit guilt (i.e. wrongdoing), before they have an opportunity to defend themselves at an "unbiased" hearing? Can Marty tell me, in writing, what an "insubordinate attitude" is, (after all, Bruce agreed to obey all of Paula's orders and directives)? Paula has asserted, in her letter, that Bruce's attitude was "embarrassing" to the "Associated Students." Could the "Associated Students" please provide me with a written definition of what is and is not "embarrassing" and what does and does not amount to an "insubordinate attitude?" Without these definitions A.S. employees may demonstrate insubordinate attitudes and not know about it until it's too late (i.e. ex post facto).

Marty, in his letter to the Nexus, has stated that: "... If Mr. Macklin feels he has been treated unfairly; he is entitled to a hearing through the UCSB Personnel Grievance Procedure. That hearing and that hearing alone will determine the validity of Mr. Macklin's assertions." However, Staff Personnel policy 280, ("Employee Grievances") includes the statement (section 280.13), that: "Informal resolution of a grievance may be agreed to by the employee and the department head at any stage during the consideration of a grievance." Many grievances are resolved before a hearing occurs. Unfortunately, the A.S. Leg Council has adopted a "bill," (#91), which seems to include the intent of decreasing the opportunities for A.S. employees to obtain informal resolutions of their grievances, by narrowing their opportunities to have A.S. Leg Council interact in these matters. Are A.S. Leg Council members allowed to demonstrate "insubordinate attitudes" without fear of punishment? The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. has written, (Letter from Birmingham Jail, 1963), that: "...An unjust law is a code that a majority inflicts on a minority that is not binding on itself. This is difference made legal. On the other hand a just law is a code that a majority compels a minority to follow that it is willing to follow itself. This is sameness made legal." Is "Bill" #91 unjust?

Vote Carefully

Editor, Daily Nexus:

The A.S. elections are being held today and tomorrow, with seven different voting tables dispersed across the campus. We hope that most of you will turn out to vote for your new A.S. executives and representatives. You will also have a chance to decide important issues like expanding the A.S. legal aid program and institution CalPIRG at UCSB.

As your outgoing A.S. executives we have very strong feelings about the race for next year's A.S. President. We are convinced there are only two qualified candidates among the five people whose names will appear on the ballot.

Tibby Rothman and Sherry Studley have both served with distinction as representatives on this year's Leg Council. The council, of course, has its comic elements, but Tibby and Sherry have demonstrated their commitment, capability and creativity throughout this year. More importantly, they understand the University and how it works. They have taken the time this year to work as reps to learn how the system works before they try to change it.

The other three candidates are simply unprepared to assume the responsibilities of A.S. President. It is not the sort of job you can walk into cold and try to wing it.

The A.S. President, besides providing leadership to the council and speaking on behalf of UCSB's undergraduates, manages a million dollars in student funds each year. The President also has the potential to influence major policy decisions within the University. Furthermore, the decision on who will be the most competent and knowledgeable manager of student funds becomes all the more important in the shadow of Prop. 9.

We trust that students will take a hard look at all the candidates and issues and make an informed decision. Our purpose with this letter is to warn of the danger of Johnny-come-latelys who bemoan the current state of reality but don't have a clue as to how to effect concrete change.

 Today, as we see peace working between Egypt and Israel, we must remind ourselves that true peace with Egypt is only a partial peace; Israel is still in a state of war with her other neighbors. Even if peace were to be reached tomorrow with the other Arab states, there will always be members of the Palestinian movement that will claim that they have been wronged by Zionism. It is this fact that leads me to discuss the various differences between Zionism, the Jewish liberation movement, and the Palestinian movement.

Even though peace has been achieved between Israel and Egypt, Zionism is still treated as a pariah by 72 members of the United Nations. To equate Zionism with racism, is to equate the entire notion of national liberation movement with racism. Zionism is the modern realization of a 2,000-year-old dream to rebuild Israel after the destruction of the Second Temple and expulsion of the Jews. Atrocities such as the Holocaust demonstrated the need to ensure Jewish security through a national home.

As a Zionist, there is no reason that I should not show understanding for the Palestinian movement. Yet, how can I appreciate a "liberation" movement whose raison d'être is the destruction of the State of Israel. The PLO's Palestinian National Covenant is worded, in no uncertain terms, that the Jewish State should be destroyed. In this era of aspiration to international reconciliation, the Palestinian covenant is a true anachronism.

In contrast with Palestinian absolutism, Zionism in its strivings has always used understatement. When we aspired to a national home, we yearned for a spiritual center. When we aspired to a Jewish State, we yearned for a national home.

The Arabs have done just the opposite. They constantly aspired to the absolute, leaving no room for compromise. They rejected the Peel Plan, then wanted it when the U.N. voted for Partition. They rejected the Partition borders, then wanted them after the 1948 War of Independence. They rejected the 1948 borders, then wanted them after the 1967 Six-Day War.

Only when the Arab leaders recognize Zionism as the legitimate national liberation movement of the Jewish people will an everlasting peace come to the Middle East. It is unfortunate that the Arab world has strayed from the moderate view it had of Zionism in the beginning of the century. It is a tragedy that the Arab world has not heeded the words of Emir Feisal, who, when representing the Arab world at the Paris Peace Conference in March, 1919, said, "We Arabs, especially the educated among us, look with deepest sympathy on the Zionist movement... We wish the Jews a hearty welcome home... We are working together for a reformed and revised Middle East, and our two movements complement one another."

Legal Aid

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I'm writing this letter to clear up some misconceptions that were stated in yesterday's letter by Paul Cline concerning the Legal Aid proposal. The credibility of this letter must be questioned since none of his supposed sources were named.

Furthermore, I will state unequivocally that the chancellor has agreed to fund the A.S. contribution to athletics and Intramurals.

This shows the Legal Aid proposal will not increase Reg Fees above the levels of the three year projections nor will athletics or Intramurals be decreased.

Killer Third Round at Ojai Tennis Tourney Seibel, Bedolla Beat Two Before Falling

The 81st Ojai tennis tournament that started last Wednesday is one of the oldest and most prestigious tournaments on the west coast.

The tournament has divisions for junior players, junior colleges, independent colleges and the Pac-10. Four members of UCSB's tennis team entered the draw in the open college division, two in singles and two in doubles.

UCSB's top player, Dave Seibel, got off to a good start in the first round, trouncing Tom Rizlin from Occidental, 6-0, 6-2. Seibel continued his domination through the second round, when he played Steve Whitfield of United States International University and won 6-1, 6-1.

Seibel's opponent in the third round was Jerome Jones of Pepperdine who provided Seibel with a much higher level of play than his previous two opponents. Jones won 6-2, 6-3. Jones played far behind the baseline on Seibel's powerful serve and belted his returns, a strategy which gave Seibel trouble.

Scott Bedolla was also entered in the singles division and, like Seibel, won his first two matches, 6-2, 6-2 and 6-4, 6-4. Bedolla also played a much tougher Long Beach State opponent in the third round, and lost his match.

Gauchos Tom Rey and Jeff

Leshay entered the doubles division and won their first match, 6-2, 6-3, against a team from Occidental.

"One player was much stronger than the other," commented Leshay. "We played the weaker player and our strategy worked well."

In the second round, Pepperdine's Jones once again eliminated the Gauchos from play. With teammate John Van Norstrand, Jones won 6-1, 7-5 to knock Rey and Leshay out of the tournament.

GaUCHO Track Team Sneaks Third Place

By MEG JOHNSON

Last weekend's SCAA track meet was another demonstration in a long line of demonstrations of the paradox that plagues many UCSB athletic teams.

UCSB women's track team ran up against the dilemma of Division I talent and Division II monies when they competed at the conference championships at Cal Poly Pomona on Saturday.

The Gauchos competed against two past National champions, CSU Northridge and Cal State L.A. UCSB battled it out in the sprinting events and also struggled against Cal Poly SLO for the honors in the middle distance and distance racing.

Northridge placed first with 193 points, SLO second with 177, UCSB came in third with 94, and CSULA followed with 91 points. U.C. Irvine and Cal Poly Pomona brought up the rear with 38 and 12 points respectively.

The Gauchos picked up eight third-place finishes and two seconds. All but four of the victors were in middle distance or distance events.

Rebecca McLean threw the javelin in a personal record of 126.4 for third place points in that event. The other non-distance points came in the hurdles races. Linda Hightower also ran her personal best, in the 100-hurdles, producing a 14.7 second time, good for third place.

In the 400-hurdles, GaUCHO athletes claimed second and third place as Hightower ran a 1:03.8 for the second place and Cynthia Shultz, who had not run hurdles before this season, placed third in 1:04.6.

Hightower was also a member of two of the four relay teams, all of which took third places. Hamer was particularly pleased with the 400-relay team of Terry Black, Hightower, Sally Valdez and Cynthia Hester who finished in 48.8 seconds.

With each meet, UCSB shaves a little more time off the performances in each event. The amount of personal records that are set by the GaUCHO athletes at each meet is one of the indicators of the constant improvement.

At the SCAA meet, however, they did not pick up any points for their efforts. Hester, a relay team member, ran the 100-meters race in 12.4 seconds for a personal best and freshman Sally Wakai set a new personal record in the 3,000-meters.

legitimacy to an event that is such a flagrant violation of the Election Policies as stated in the A.S. By-laws. I doubt whether 20 kegs and a band can fall within the $100 campaign spending limit. This kind of campaign tactic demonstrates that you have no regard for fair play."

Henry Fink wouldn't attend because "I feel he (McMahon) is using me to give himself publicity. But I do appreciate his efforts. It would be nice if everyone could have a party, but not everyone can afford it."

Sherry Studley protested McMahon's actions because "He is trying to make it look like it was a whole cooperative thing between all the candidates. It wasn't. Its a blatant violation. What bothers me is not that he didn't understand the laws, but that he didn't ask."

Candidate Cameron McBee said he would not attend the party because of a previous engagement.

As for the party's purpose, McMahon said he did not want it to be "a publicity stunt. The party wasn't my idea in the first place. It came around as 'Let's have a party. McMahon's running for president — the party can't hurt.'"

"In my interpretations of A.S. By-laws, I didn't see any violations," said McMahon.

But that the main A.S. grievance was the beer, McMahon said before the party, "There will be controls. No beer will be served to minors. There will be tight security."

Hankin said that the A.S. Election Committee is filing a complaint that will go to a sub-judicial committee who will review the case and could fine McMahon.

After McMahon reportedly told her "I don't care if I am breaking the laws, I want to have a great party," Hankin said that although there are "no provisions in A.S. to get him booted out of office if elected," because "we feel this is a flagrant violation, we have recommended that the Student/Faculty Conduct Committee review this case."

LNG Unendangered

creases, Diricco added, "Western LNG would have to take a very hard look at whether they could sell the gas at an increased price."

Whether the hearings will have an impact on the $3.2 billion terminal is uncertain. Geologists have been hired by both sides and have come in with some rather polarized evidence. Envicom Corp., hired to fight the terminal by the Hollister Ranch Owner's Assoc., found the faults "long and deep (and) capable of releasing strong tremors." However, Dames and Moore Inc., working with Western LNG, found the faults "short, shallow and not capable of generating a shock."

The FERC's official comment on the Court of Appeals order to reopen seismic hearings was that the hearings would be essentially ineffectual. However, the order asked that the PUC hold these hearings to decide the validity of the Pt. Concepcion site.

Despite impending price increases due to the delays and design modifications as well as Indonesian price hikes, continuing debate over the seismic stability of the area, and no clear answers in the near future, Pizano feels that LNG will remain on schedule. "We don't think it has the potential to kill the project," he said.

Boycott

through Red Square.

"May Day used to be sort of a larger scale Labor Day," said Roberts. "But each year it becomes more and more a day of battle." "Last year in Ethiopia a workers' parade turned into a street battle with police. In France and Iran, workers are not following the government's line anymore, we are telling them that they may force us to go to work to eat, but we don't have to think like they do."

Joining the Revolutionary Communist Party in calling for the workers' boycott are the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, the National United Workers Organization, and the Unemployed Workers Council. The Isla Vista Medical Clinic and New World Resources will be closed in support of the boycott.

Those interested in additional information on the demonstration can contact the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade at 968-3275.
