Work Progresses on New Aliso School; To Be No Delay in Its Completion

CARPINTERIA, CALIFORNIA, OCTOBER 4, 1934

BY SETH HARGRAVE

In the past few weeks a large number of carpenters, electricians, and other workers have been employed on the building of the new Aliso School. The school, which will be a modern educational facility, is progressing satisfactorily and is expected to be completed on schedule. A large number of carpenters, electricians, and other workers have been employed on the building of the new Aliso School. The school, which will be a modern educational facility, is progressing satisfactorily and is expected to be completed on schedule.

Laying of Roof Tile to Be Started Soon

Carpeting of the roofs of the new Aliso School was completed in the past week. The school, which is expected to be completed on schedule, will have a new roof tile roof. The work is progressing satisfactorily and is expected to be completed on schedule.

Contrary to rumors created by a story in a Santa Barbara paper last week, work is progressing satisfactorily on the new Aliso School, which is expected to be completed on schedule. The school will have a new roof tile roof and will be a modern educational facility.

MISTERY IN ONE ACT

Scene: First Case, Highways

Time: Saturday night, 8:30 P.M.

Cast:

1. S. H. Hargrave (Detective)

2. Margaret Hilton (Dame)

3. Nat Hendy (Butler)

ACT I

SCENE 1: First Case, Highways

S. H. Hargrave enters the room, followed by Margaret Hilton and Nat Hendy. They are discussing the case of a missing person.

Margaret: I've been searching for Mary all night. She disappeared from her home early this morning.

Nat: I've been looking for her all over town, but I can't find her.

S. H. Hargrave: I think I've got a lead. Someone saw her last night near the railroad tracks.

ACT II

SCENE 2: Highways

S. H. Hargrave, Margaret, and Nat are standing on a street corner, searching for Mary.

S. H. Hargrave: I think I see her over there. She's walking with a mysterious man.

Margaret: Let's follow her. She might give us some clues.

Nat: I'll go ahead and cover the area. She might try to escape.

ACT III

SCENE 3: Highways

The three detectives are standing on a street corner, discussing the case of the missing person.

S. H. Hargrave: I think we've got enough evidence to charge her with the crime.

Margaret: I agree. She's been hiding out in the town all night.

Nat: She's got a lot of explaining to do.

END OF PLAY

Next week: The detectives will solve the case of the missing woman. Stay tuned for the next chapter of Mystery in One Act.
We take the liberty of re-printing below an editorial from the Carpathian Journal. We would like to add a word or two for ourselves. This is the first time the material contained in this editorial has been called to our attention. We have always patted ourselves on the back for trying to live up to the golden rule but this leaves us in quest of some state of mind. In fact we feel like accepting the advice given us by one of the "Padres" who conducted us through one of the Old California Missions. He was exvassing us by one of the "Padres" who conducted us.

In all fairness to those persons asking us to run these notices, we do say that we feel that we were unaware of Mr. Sinclair's opinion of us and we do feel that they should have been informed immediately of our action.

Also that at the time of writing this we feel that we have already turned "the other cheek" and that there is nothing left to do but to follow the teachings of our beliefs, even as Mr. Sinclair and his followers are fighting for theirs.

There is an editorial in the Carpathian Journal, the "Intelligence on a level with a horse-doctor" (if there are any horse-doctors around), which we think we should mention.

From Carpathian Journal

Just as a writer is not entitled to call anyone who Mauls and abuse ignorant ergots because they have not responded to the ad in the paper, neither is one entitled to call these remarks insincere. This Mr. Stahl has said about those he calls the "foolish press.

It should be noted that it is not necessary to drag out this election of ignorance and expose its truth to the ridicule of the public, but we do believe that by getting our opinions of these miscellaneous creatures of the press that further silence might prove their worth.

It is hoped that even the Stahl followers still possess a sufficient modicum of understanding to realize that just possibly their storms will be turned to pity when they take into consideration the fact that some of these people are those dogs themselves. For this reason, with our head hanging in dispair, we are writing this editorial to explain our estimate of the press.

Stahl is the author of Stahl's long list of novels in the "Brass Crock." In this book he devotes himself to paying his respects to no-one. We found his efforts completely inept.

ANOTHER GROUP OF QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS BY IVAN KELSO

(The Chronicle today presents six questions and answers related to various topics from a recent California Club of Southern California Club meeting. These questions were asked by club members and answered by General Counsel, Automobile Club of Southern California.)

Q. I have a dog that is almost always by my automobile. It is very friendly and will come up to persons or call on others to come with it also. I would like to know if it is possible to require persons driving by to stop and play with or take care of my dog?

A. Yes, it is entirely possible to require persons driving by to stop and play with your dog, but it is not practical to require persons driving by to do so. The California Vehicle Act does not indicate in what manner a dog's conduct is to be regulated. It is also not practical to require persons driving by to do so, as it is a violation. To render aid to persons or collisions with other cars to render first aid, to dogs and others is a violation.
