Mudrick Goes South

Dr. Marvin Mudrick is one of four scholars invited to address the spring meeting of the College English Association of Southern California, to be held in Los Angeles tomorrow. His address is entitled "The Romantic Poets."

Dr. Mudrick is enjoying the unusual distinction of having three of his articles appear simultaneously this spring, in the spring issues of three different literary journals: "Chaucer's Nightingales," in Hudson Revues; The Artist's Conscience" and "The Nigger of the Narcissus," in Nineteenth - Century Fiction, and "The Listener and Mr. Hag-

Exercising A Responsibility . . .

The polls are open today, as they were from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. yesterday, to permit students to exercise their right to determine how they will be governed.

Yesterday only about one-fourth of the student body exercised that right. About 500 students voted in an election that could well change the whole course of events in student government for years to come.

Voters at the polls have to determine the merits of two separate amendments to the Associated Students Constitution. The first of these would change the amending process as defined by the Constitution. It would permit, if passed, students to place amendments on a ballot without the approval of Legislative Council.

The second amendment is more complex. El Gaucho has devoted much of its space to explaining what the amendment would do, and presenting arguments for and against.

We do not wish to instruct members of the student body how to vote on the second amendment. We assume that they are fully aware of the issues involved.

We do, however, wish to urge every voter to vote yes on the first amendment. Unless voters approve the change in the amending process, their votes on the other change are meaningless. By voting yes on the first item on the ballot the voter gives himself the opportunity to make his vote on the second amendment count.

Although some have been heard to state that the entertainment for the evening smacks of pure smut, Mr. Adler describes the affair as one of "definite educational value for those with objective adult minds." This statement was followed by what some construed to be a distinctly foul laugh.

Today Last Day For Voting On Constitutional Changes

Voting continues today on two separate sets of amendments to the Associated Students Constitution. Polls are open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The first amendment on the ballot changes the amending process of the Constitution. At present the document provides for two ways of proposing amendments, by three-fourths vote of Legislative Council and by petitions from the student body.

An ambiguous phrase in the Constitution, however, has been interpreted by Council to mean that despite these two methods Council still has to approve amendments before they go on

Unanimous Approval The first amendment, which has the unanimous approval of Council, would clearly specify the two distinct ways of amending the Constitution, and would permit, in the future, students to amend the Constitution even if Legislative Council did not ap-

Housing Office Issues Applications

During the week of April 1-5, the Housing Office will issue re-application forms for the 1957 fall semester to all residence hall students who wish to continue living on campus. These re-application forms are to be filled in at the Housing Office; contracts will be issued at that time.

The same procedure will be followed for the off-campus students who desire to live in the residence halls next fall.

Unless students apply on the above dates, accommodations on campus cannot be assured. At the present time there are more than 600 applications from new women applicants and more than 150 from men applicants.

The price for the 1957 fall semester is $362.50 for Santa Rosa Hall and $350 for Las Casitas Halls.

The Housing Office is open daily from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00

Greek Week at Santa Barbara draws to a close tomorrow when the local sororities and fraternities embark on their community clean up projects.

The projects were planned jointly by the Panhellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council in conjunction with the Santa Barbara Recreation and Parks Department.

Contained in the new UCSBC classroom building is this attractive 220-seat lecture hall, which will house public lectures as well as certain musical performances from now on. It is the largest room in any of the permanent buildings on campus completed.

Classroom Building Now Being Occupied

As of Tuesday, April 2, the administration, department offices, and various classes began transferring from the facilities they had been utilizing into the newly completed first permanent classroom on the campus.

The first to move was acting provost Dr. Elmer R. Noble and his secretarial staff, and they were followed by the two academic deans and their assistants.

The teaching and office staffs of four UCSBC departments who will move into the new building are those of the English, foreign languages, mathematics, and social sciences.

The handsome, sprawling structure was built at a cost of $1,200,000, and it contains 47,-000 square feet. It contains enough space to accommodate 500 students in 26 spacious, light and airy classrooms. There are facilities for 75 faculty and administration members in single and double offices.

Among the features of the new building are an attractive 220seat lecture hall which will house public lectures as well as certain musical performances from now on. Also contained within the building is a statistics lab with computers; a listening room for foreign language students; and a number of seminar rooms.

The two-story U-shaped building is located opposite the recently finished music building. A lecture on and a demonstration of, MODERN DANCE, will be presented on April 10th and 11th at 8:30 p.m. in the campus auditorium. Margaret Dietz, lecturer and choreographer, will attempt to answer the question "What is modern Dance?"

The first part will deal with exploration of techniques, improvisations; and simple themes in compositions for solo and small groups.

The second part will be devoted to group work consisting of group exercises and leading to group dances.

The pianist will be Emma Lou O'Brien, who also composed a great deal of the music. The dancers will be girls from all departments.

Opera Opens Tonight For 10th Production

Starting tonight the tenth production of the Opera Theater will open in the Campus Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. The show will continue tomorrow night.

Tickets are $1.25 for general admission and 75c for students. Reservations may be made through the University Extension Office, 2-9118; the Graduate Manager's Office, 8-4051 and the Music Department, 8-5711, extension 2125.

The double bill for the evening will be From Maid to Mistress by Giovanni Pergolesi and The Little Sweep by Benjamin Britten.

Parts for the evening will be played and sung by Donald Mc-Innes, William Coburn, Clarie Hodgin, Jean Cok, Robert Cham-bers and David Doctor. Ancy Chapman, Andy Eddy, Johnny Andron, Elizabeth Andron, and Johnny Girvetz will be taking the part of children in the work. Also enacting the role of the children are Jane Minnick and Lauri Blaine, students at Santa Barbara College.

The productions are under the direction of Mr. Carl Zytowski, who will also be conductor for the two evenings, Friday and Saturday. Included on the direction staff are Dr. Rodger Chapman, assistant professor of music, and Clara Morf.

A SYSTEMS ANALYST AT IBM?"

Two years ago, college senior Thomas Wheeler asked himself this question. Today, a Systems Analyst in IBM's Data Processing Division, Tom reviews his experience and gives some pointers that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your business career.

But first, what does a Systems Analyst do? "Briefly, we study a customer's present system-payroll, inventory control, billing or whatever -and convert it to a mechanized system using either conventional IBM business machines or IBM's highspeed electronic computers."

Tom works out of the IBM Baltimore Office with some of America's biggest companies as his customers. Graduated from Johns Hopkins in August, '55, with a B.S.I.E., he came immediately to IBM. During his training period. Tom studied IBM's Punched Card and Electronic Data Processing Machines. He learned their uses, their applications, and was instructed in the theories and methods of data processing.

Diversified Assignments

A leading aircraft company was Tom's first major assignment. "My job there," he explains, "was to analyze the application of IBM's latest electronic computer-the 705 to regulate the flow of materials and machines used to fill Government contracts."

Then came a short, but highly satisfying assignment. At the Bellwood Quartermaster Corps, Tom set up a "SOAP" system (System for Optimum Automatic Programming) defined by Tom as "converting the flow of instructions and information into the most efficient operation for an IBM magnetic drum computer. Bellwood," Tom points out, "is the Inventory Control Center for all mand. "We are designing and implementing a system to link eleven reporting centers to Headquarters by wire transmission," Tom reports. "Data transmitted to Headquarters by this system will be coordinated and then processed by an IBM 650 electronic computer."

Why Tom chose IBM

How does a senior like Tom, who was interviewed by at least twenty companies while in college, select his future employer? "In my case," Tom says, "the choice was easy. IBM offered the best opportunities. I knew IBM sales were about doubling every five years-and when I considered the tremendous growth potential of the electronic computer field—I had no trouble making up my mind.

"Besides, I was impressed by the caliber of IBM personnel. They had a broader outlook and an approach to business which I can best describe as professional.

"My future? It looks good-very good. I've already received two generous raises in less than two years, and at the rate IBM and the electronic computer field are expanding, my future is both assured - and rewarding!"

IBM hopes this message will help to give you some idea of what it's like to be a Systems Analyst in the Data Processing Division. There are equal opportunities for E.E.'s, I.E.'s, M.E.'s, physicists, mathematicians, Liberal Arts majors, and Business Administration graduates in IBM's many divisions—Research, Product Development, Manufacturing Engineering, Sales and Sales Assistance. Why not drop in and discuss IBM with your Placement Director? He can supply our brochure and tell you when IBM will next interview on your campus. Meanwhile, our Manager of College Relations, P. H. Bradley, will be happy to answer your questions. Just write him at IBM, Room 11904, 590 Madison Ave., New York 22, N.Y.

Delts, SAEs Lead In 'Mural Volleyball

Intramural volleyball moves into its fifth week at Santa Barbara Monday with the participating teams falling into a pattern in the won-and-lost columns.

Emerging from the first four weeks of competition on top of their respective leagues are the Delta Tau Delta fraternity in League I and Sigma Alpha Epsilon in League II.

The SAE sextet downed the Beach Rats in a battle for first place last Tuesday night at the gym, 10-15, 15-13, 15-12. The two evenly matched teams fought down to the final point as the winners rallied after dropping the first game of the three-game set and then trailed in the deciding game until they tied the count at 10-10 and went on to win.

Art Sues, league director, announced that the men's physical education department is also sponsoring a doubles volleyball tournament this Sunday at East Beach. All UCSB students are eligible to enter the competition by paying a 50-cent entrance fee. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of the double-elimination tourney. Sues commented that tentative plans also call for a tournament every Sunday throughout the spring with some mixed-doubles competition included.

by Larry Adams, '58

If the foreign policy of the United States is to be controlled by the fleeting desires of public opinion, as they are reflected and even magnified in the Congress, then this nation's chances of emerging successful from its struggle with Soviet Communism at minimal cost are immediately radically reduced.

We cannot reasonably hope that the entrenched malignant power of international communism will spend itself or be transformed in a manner favorable to the West in a matter of years or even of decades. The ten years of postwar conflict with the U.S.S.R. through which we have now passed may only have been the opening pages of a long journal of trial for the constitutional democracies of the West.

Shortsighted Public

In a prolonged encounter with a vigilant, resourceful foe, the need for coherence, continuity, and flexibility of strategy is surely obvious. These are qualities which intimate popular direction of foreign policy cannot provide, and indeed negates. Alexander Hamilton in a candid moment observed that, "The people is a great beast." Considered as a whole, the public in any nation is animal-like in that it tends to press for satisfaction of immediate needs to the detriment of providing for the requirements of situations vitally affecting its own interests which are removed from it in time or space. A tax cut or a local improvement is to be preferred to a military ex-penditure; the number of "American boys" stationed overseas should be kept at a skeletal minimum, even if this means a serious weakening of our power position. Public opinion always in-clines to what Walter Lippmann calls "the easy side of the equation."

This tendency on the part of the populace as a whole where the nation's external affairs are concerned is not surprising; the training and the daily concerns of "the general public" do not embrace what Mr. Lippmann terms "the hard decisions of war and peace." It is apparent, however, that public opinion is a wholly inadequate directive agency for a nation's foreign policy.

Probably the most beleaguered aspect of our foreign policy is what is officially known as "mutual assistance," and popularly called "foreign aid." Just as with the other areas of our international activities, these assistance programs, to achieve anything approaching maximum effectiveness, require firm consistency in school superintendents, college planning and administration.

upon one or two specific points at which our foreign assistance programs are encumbered by domestic considerations which arise from public attitudes.

Foreign Aid

In the space remaining, a few remarks about the nature of foreign assistance might be appropriate, for once again in the press. and the Congress the weary, scarred contentions of "Giveand "You can't buy friendship" are being hauled to their feet and shoved forward for reconsideration.

It is at least as true of nations as of individuals that affection and loyalty cannot be bought. This, however, is not the intent or effect of foreign assistance properly conceived and executed. The purpose of foreign military assistance is straightforward: To permit the recipient countries to maintain military establishments adequate to suppress Communist aggression in the form of military invasion or armed insurrection. Foreign economic assistance is intended to assist economically retarded countries to industrialize and develop their resources (and hence to elevate the living standards of their people) in a much shorter period of time than they could manage unassisted.

The argument (which seems to this writer a compelling one) that we as the wealthiest nation on earth, espousing Judeo-Christian values, have a moral obligation to help economically less fortunate countries, is best left out of a discussion of foreign policy, which must first and foremost rest upon calculations of the national interest. It is not difficult however, to discern this nation's interest in a prospering community of states, and, more to the point, a community of states free from Communist manipulation or outright control.

Durflinger, Carroll Named To Board

Two educators at the University of California, Santa Barbara College, have been appointed members of a state wide high school review committee by the California Association of Secondary School Administrators to make a periodic survey and accreditation review of high schools throughout the state.

Those named were Dr. Glenn W. Durflinger, professor of education and acting chairman of the department, and Dr. John S. Carroll, lecturer in education. As their first assignment in this capacity they recently evaluated Bakersfield High School for their accreditation. Membership of the review committee is made up of faculty, and personnel from the Next week I would like to touch State Department of Education.

Honduran Criticizes American Students

'Fraternity parties are great, girls worry too much about getting fat, and university students are often apathetic concerning government and politics."

So ran the summation of American college life by one Honduran student, Jose Weizenblot,

PROFICIENCY EXAMS

Proficiency tests will be given on Wednesday, April 24 from 7:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. in bldg. 431 rooms 112 and 102, for those who have failed in any part of these examinations. No new examinees will be admitted at this

The following schedule and rules of procedure will be ob-

Reading Comprehension ....7:00 Reading Vocabulary .....7:30 Arithmetic Fundamentals .. 7:45 Arithmetic Problems ......8:30 English ..... Spelling and Handwriting 10:00

Students deficient in any section of any division of the test must retake the entire division, and will be held responsible for any part taken whether passed formerly or not.

A Statement of Study is required of each student. This statement may be obtained at the office of the student's major department or the department of education. Before signing it a student should spend at least ten hours in study, preferably with a a business administration senior at University of Connecticut.

In an interview in the Daily Campus, Weizenblot expanded on his ideas about the American student's lack of concern over political affairs.

He blames it in part on the isolation of the campus: the American college is an entire community with newspaper, shopping district, religious and cultural elements and so many other things, the student can simply exist in this separate world and ignore what surrounds it.

"Apart from specific organizations within the university, students fail to follow world affairs." He called the student senate a "bunch of children playing at toys, making trivia into major issues, getting nowhere when they discuss."

"In the event they do not decide upon a major issue" it makes little difference because they have so little authority they probably would be unable to carry out their plan.'

He contrasted this with the position of university students in Honduras. "There students have the dual role of acquiring a profession and also of preparing themselves for future leadership of their country.

"They are active in their civic role and are regarded as an important political factor in their country and therefore play a definite role in the political life of the nation.'
