WOODY'S: I'M UP FOR IT!

As my five-girl entourage entered Woody's Restaurant on a chilly evening a few nights ago, we were greeted with an atmosphere similar to what you would see on ... say ... "The Man Show." Over five televisions grace the walls, including one big screen, all showing tall men throwing balls at nets. Or, to you sports fans, basketball. Sawdust speckles the floor and elk heads hang from the ceilings. A motorcycle is displayed right after the entrance, the phone booth bench has a toilet seat cover on it, and arcade games are everywhere in the eating area. At a glance, Woody's may seem like a rather intimidating place to eat — that is, for dainty women. Luckily, my friends and I are not that type.

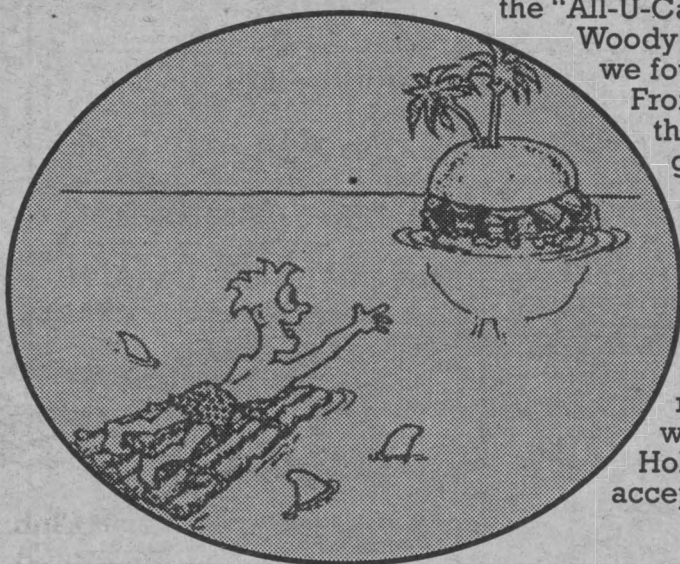

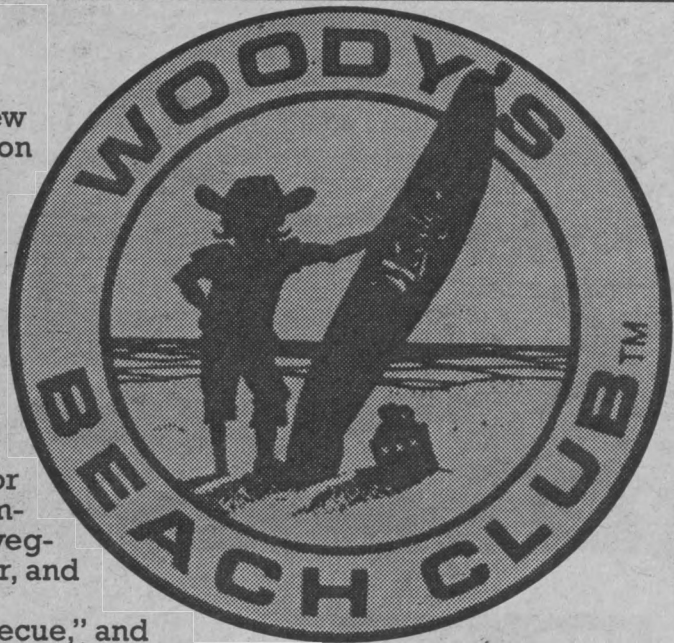

We sidled up to the register, since Woody's is not a "please wait to be seated" kind of place. We checked out the menus and although the "All-U-Can-Eat" pork ribs sounded good, most of us settled for more subtle dishes, like the "Extra Special Special," which is a double cheeseburger with fries and a soda for only $5.45! Although the "Extra Special Special" was my choice, some of my companions went a little lighter. Woody's has a salad bar with many scrumdilicious vegetables to choose from. You could also pick potato or pasta salad at the salad bar, and the "All-U-Can-Eat Salad Bar" is only $4.95!

Woody's claims to have "Bodacious Barbecue," and we found that out just by taking a gander at the menu.

From buffalo wings to beef ribs to prime rib, this restaurant has it all. And most of these meaty entrees are only between $6 and $10. With the portion of food you get (most meals come with fries, beans, slaw or tossed salad), these meals definitely fit into a student's budget.

With all these carnivorous meals, one may think that vegetarians would feel left out at Woody's. Well, think again! They have a garden burger for all you cow lovers. And if you hear the pitter patter of little feet in your house, your kiddies can order a hot dog, kidburger or other meals from the "Kids Menu."

With so many options to choose from, I can guess that right now you are running to your car with this paper in your hand on the way to Woody's. But wait! You don't know where it is yet! Woody's is conveniently located at 5112 Hollister Ave. in the Magnolia Center. It is open daily for lunch and dinner, and it accepts all major credit cards. So, what are you waiting for?!? See ya there!
