If you've ever been to Tommie's in Los Angeles, you know what a great chiliburger tastes like. If you've never been to Tommie's in L.A., you can find out what a great chiliburger tastes like right here in Santa Barbara.

Hamburger Habit was originally a little food joint in Isla Vista, where Mc-Burley's is now. It specialized, in case you haven't already guessed, in chiliburgers.

It changed hands three times or so, then it moved to Hollister Avenue in Goleta, where it still stands. In 1980, it changed hands for the final time. And if you go there, you'll know why it hasn't been sold since. The place does business. And if you eat there, you'll know why it does business. The food is pretty darn good!

The atmosphere is very comfortable, with more than a dozen tables set up outside, so there's never a problem finding a seat in the Santa Barbara sunshine. The window to order from is as unique as the restaurant in which it is located. The little signs "Ask" and "Get" tell you where to order and pick up your food.

The specialty, chiliburger, can be bought in single or double patties (I got the double, of course). The chili is piled heaping high, and it's good eatin' for a hungry appetite! And hey, the chiliburger may be the specialty, but it isn't all they have to offer.

They serve plain hamburgers, patty melts and steak, and they are all good. You can't go wrong with this place.

And all their burgers (even their doubles) go for under two bucks. The place drives a hard bargain.

And of course, everyone who visits a hamburger joint wants to know about the side dishes. What about the fries? What about the onion rings?

Well, the fries are top-rate: crunchy and golden brown. And the chili fries give you the best of both worlds. The onion rings are flavorful enough to give the fries a tough run for their money.

What about drinks? Besides the usual assortment of soft drinks, the Habit offers shakes and malts that will cool you off when the hot weather comes back around. I drank the chocolate shake and had a taste of the strawberry malt. They were both so good, I just might have to drink them both next time.

If you go there, ask for Brent, who bought the place in 1980 after working there for four years, and has made a great success out of it since. He'll be more than happy to fill you in on not only the joys of the Habit, but also his other popular restaurant, Cal Taco.

But the best way to get acquainted with the Habit is to make it a habit of yours.

BALTIERI'S

Nobody has to tell UCSB students that there's more to cuisine than the overpopulation of pizza palaces in Isla Vista, but hasn't anyone told them that a real Italian restaurant is as close as Hollister Avenue in Goleta? Baltieri's, across the street from Alex's Cantina, provides a vital difference in dining experience, creating a private yet casual atmosphere that allows people to concentrate less on their appearance or eccentric manners and more on the fine meal in front of them.

Instead of the usual condescending melody of Italian violins through tiny speakers, the little restaurant is filled with lively conversation and the clatter of dishes. My companion and I agreed that it resonated with the feel of a bistro, friendly and inviting. The quick, conscientious servers were a definite plus, and I noted the swiftness with which a roll of French bread appeared on our table.

The menu has a long list of pasta dishes as simple and traditional as spaghetti and other dishes that are as exotic and unusual as the seafood stew, which I'm told is unique in most Italian restaurants. The prices run from about $7 to $15, quite reasonable for the amount of food the restaurant offers.

The fettucini gorgonzola was recommended to me, and I allied it with a glass of Bollini Chardonnay. The wine list has a nice selection of local and California wines, reasonably priced and Baltieri's always seems to be well stocked. To start off, the choice of soup or salad was happily given to a cup of the Venetian fish chowder, which contained really big chunks of red snapper that literally melted in my mouth.

There was a group of men at a nearby table, laughing heartily over a bottle of red wine. Baltieri's clientele varied greatly, from young people to older, with only their enthusiasm for conversation in common. It is that kind of restaurant, where you go to get to know a person and to share stories and eccentric secrets. Baltieri's is a kind of restaurant where you look at each other.

When our entrees were served, I thought that in my passionate hunger, two or three platters wouldn't be enough. One good look at the expansiveness of our fet-tucini platters resolved that for good. This was a meal. My gorgonzola was heavy with fresh, steaming broccoli and large, plump shrimps smothered in cheese sauce. My companion's fettucini primavera was covered with mushroom, cauliflower and other veggies. For several long minutes, our light conversation gave way to slurps and chomps and satisfying mmmms. My wine was light and sweet and did well to wash down the gorgonzola.

Baltieri's serves lunch as well as dinner, except Saturday and Sunday, and is open until 9:30 nightly. When I left, I clutched my doggy bag greedily and reminded myself repeatedly that it was the best meal I'd had in a long while. And the best thing of all, it wasn't at all much farther away than those pizza places.

IMAGINE KNOWING THAT TODAY IS THE BEST DAY YOU'LL EVER HAVE.

If you had a progressive neuromuscular disease, every tomorrow would bring you greater weakness and more muscle waste. And the best day you could hope for would be the one you were having right now.

That's because most neuromuscular diseases progress day by day, gradually wasting a patient's muscles away. This muscle degeneration can't be halted. And, it can never be reversed.

At the Muscular Dystrophy Association, we're striving to put an end to twelve forms of muscular dystrophy and twenty-eight other neuromuscular diseases. Because we believe there are no incurable diseases—just diseases for which cures haven't yet been found. And because it's the only way that tens of thousands of people with neuromuscular disease can look forward to a better tomorrow.

"YES, THERE IS LIFE AFTER BREAST CANCER. AND THAT'S THE WHOLE POINT."
—Ann Jillian

A lot of women are so afraid of breast cancer they won't practice breast self-examination or ask their doctor about a mammogram. And that's what frightens me. Take it from someone who's been through it all: Life is just too wonderful to give up on. But to enjoy it, you do have to give up being afraid to take care of yourself.

Get a checkup. Life is worth it.

Know Cancer's Seven Warning Signals

- Change in bowel or bladder habits.
- A sore that does not heal.
- Unusual bleeding or discharge.
- Thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere.
- Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
- Obvious change in wart or mole.
- Nagging cough or hoarseness.

If you have a warning signal, see your doctor.

A few "quit tips"

- Hide all ashtrays, matches, etc.
- Lay in a supply of sugarless gum, carrot sticks, etc.
- Drink lots of liquids, but pass up coffee & alcohol.
- Tell everyone you're quitting for the day.

PARADISE

Santa Barbara, like all famous cities, has an image and a reputation that precedes it. Besides that intellectually numbing and strained soap opera that exploits our favorite city's style and dignity, the character of Santa Barbara is recognized by its slow-paced lifestyle, the timeless beauty of its shores and the ideal of leisure that can be found only in California. A Santa Barbara restaurant should therefore be representative of that idea. Paradise Cafe on Anacapa, one block parallel to State Street, is not only representative, it is the exemplification.

And don't think I'm trying to avoid the topic of food by lecturing on the lofty importance of atmosphere over taste. No, I've just been saving the best for last. The little menu overflows with possibilities, with a truly continental offering of steaks, linguini, seafood and even good burgers for those of us who are hopelessly addicted. Paradise also earned a mark on my good list by its continuous flow of hot, buttered sourdough bread. Entrees come with a soup or salad, rice or shoestring potatoes. Anyone can chop lettuce and carrots at home in my opinion, but not everybody can make a gazpacho like Paradise does, perfect for the end of a warm day.

back of my mind all the time. And if you're of the legal drinking age, dare to peruse the very lengthy wine list, which your server will be happy to help you with.

My waiter informed me that the clientele is "across the board." I can think of any number of different occasions that the Paradise Cafe would accommodate, but for college students, it is especially suited for those special visits from your parents, grandparents and old friends who are willing to shell out the bills to do the Santa Barbara "experience." Prices can run as low as $6 and as high as $20, with most good meals running in-between.

And of course that will just warm up your digestive tract for many of the delicious meals the restaurant serves. I opted for a traditional beef fillet, but still had that shark in the

So grab that sweetheart, invite those parental units and call in that raincheck (you know you have one) and enjoy spring in Santa Barbara in only one place ... Paradise.

FINALLY, WE'RE GIVING A KILLER DISEASE SOME OF ITS OWN MEDICINE.

A disease that once put an end to its victims, may soon be put to an end itself.

The disease, carnitine deficiency, destroys the body's ability to produce carnitine, a muscle-fueling substance. Until recently, carnitine deficiency meant certain disability. Often, it meant death.

In the past year, though, carnitine replacement therapy—developed with funding from the Muscular Dystrophy Association—has allowed fully half the patients treated to resume normal lives.

Carnitine replacement therapy is one of the most encouraging developments in MDA's fight against 40 neuromuscular diseases. And for one of those dread diseases, it could be the beginning of the end.
