Mr. Pino's displays one of his famous sausages.

Pino's Good Ciao!

By Dino Wayne Thorne

I know Santa Barbara is more than a hop, skip and jump away from Sicily, but this lack of authentic Italian is very frustrating. I mean, I'm a guy who likes my tomato sauce with real tomato taste, and my meatballs had better be chock full of meat. That's a simple request, I think. Fresh, delicious Italian food. What I usually get around here, though, is reconstituted, reprocessed and simply revolting. It's like Chef Boyardee had infiltrated the local eateries and replaced the pasta with Spaghetti-Os.

Now, I only eat at Pino's. And the great part is, they don't get sick of seeing my face at 5:00 p.m. every day for my late lunch and then again at 8:00 p.m. for my late dinner. If this place was open in the morning, I'd be there too, ordering my late breakfast.

What makes Pino's Ristorante Italiano so special? Easy, my friend. It's all in the name. Well, the Pino's part is nice, and I've been told that Pino himself is actually quite a friendly guy. But the key here is the latter two words. Pino can rightfully claim that his eatery is more than a restaurant; it's a ristorante, which in Italian means Tasty Food Place With Cloth Napkins. And Italiano is just a reminder that you won't find any sushi or couscous on this menu.

What you will find is Santa Barbara's answer to mama's kitchen back in Italy, only without the steamed windows and stained aprons. Pino's offers its customers their choice of pastas, from traditional spaghetti and linguine to delicious rigatoni and manicotti. And there's more than just sausage and meatballs to top your pasta, too (unless, of course, you are like me and think that large chunks of meat on top of spaghetti and tomato sauce creates the perfect meal). If you want a real taste of Italiano, try the ham and egg based sauce over your rigatoni. Boun Appetito!

There are always going to be people who are intimidated by any food with a rich Italian name, and for those types Pino's offers a very American dish with an Italian twist. Yes, it's pizza, and it combines authentic cooking with domestic familiarity. Try the pepperoni pie, and before you can say "Pizza What", you'll wipe away memories of all the previous bad pizza experiences you've had at fast-food franchises where the only thing Italian is the red-and-white tablecloths. "Pizza Pizza" no more; this is Pino's. Pino's.

A Pino's specialty — in addition to the food on the daily chalk board menu labeled "Specials" — is a dish known as gnocchi. An intriguing name indeed, and I'm still not sure about the pronunciation. But you don't have to say it to eat it. That's a good thing, because gnocchi (pronounced either Naw-Ke or Knaugh-Key) is a potato dumpling dish whose taste is quite a pleasant surprise to those of us who were raised on a strict Italian diet of pasta.

Pino's has something for everyone, and even provide cheap thrills as guests attempt to order their food using the dish's traditional Italian name. Just try and ask for some Pesce Spada without smiling. It can't happen. It's another way the restaurant makes each of its patrons happy. Whether it's with its original taste of Italy or simply menu-dialect fun, Pino's sure knows how to please.

Pino's is located at 5863 Hollister in Goleta. Open for lunch and dinner daily. Phone 967-1933.

Cattlemen's! Let's Ride!

By Abe McCurdy

And again with the eating out!

Martha is always wanting to dine out and I tell you, it drives me crazy! I mean, the occasional buffet abroad is fine, but Martha, can she cook! And I've got my chair and I sit and she brings me food and I like it!

But Martha says to me, she says, "Abe," she says, "Abe, I want to eat out."

"For the love a Pete," I says, "Why?"

"Cuz I heard of this place called Cattlemen's."

"Cattlemen's?" I thought. What is this Cattlemen's? More like, where is this Cattlemen's?

Well, much to my personal delight, Cattlemen's was real close. A matter of fact, it was right across from La Cumbre Plaza.

So we got there and were seated, pronto, by a very lovely young lady. A young man brought rolls to our table.

At this point, Martha was telling me about some noise that the Buick was making when she darn near scared the tar out of me.

"OHHH, OHHH ABE!" she says.

"What is it?" I says.

"Ohh, Abe! These rolls are gooooooooooooooood!" she says.

Sure enough, they were great! Real sourdough. Good stuff. Good.

So now our waitress comes and we know what we want so what do we do?

We order it. For Martha it was barbecue chicken.

"Would you like rice, baked potato or french fries?"

Martha gets a little bent out of shape. You see, she gets nervous when facing sudden decisions, so I took charge and ordered her french fries. Then, being a good American, I ordered myself the beef ribs and french fries.

Then right out of left field, she tells us we get soup and salad bar with that. So, you know these young kids today, I'm not biting. I ask her if that will be extra. But no! It's all part of the price of the meal. (A reasonable price I might add.)

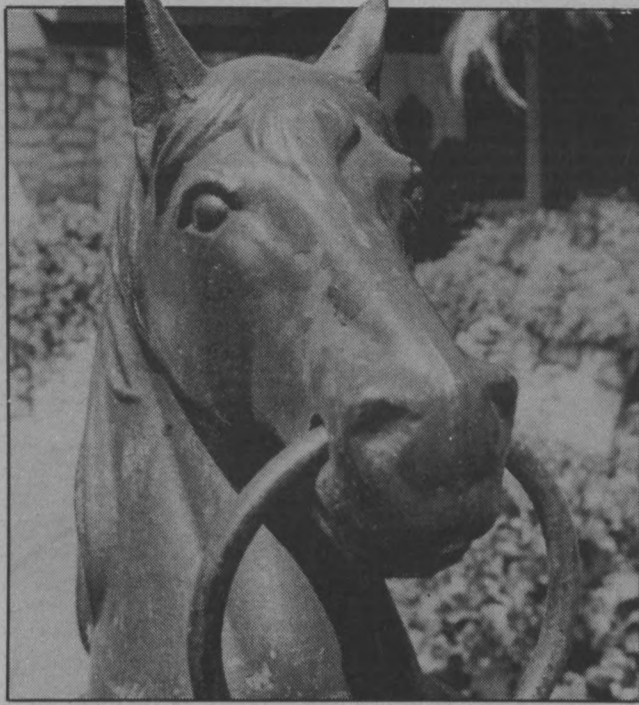

Martha and I eat the rolls for a while then we go to the salad bar.

"My goodness, Abe, it's huge!" she says.

"I know!" I says. And it sure was. It had every kind of salad ever. Spinach, Potato, Pasta — with shrimp, no less. Real shrimp. This salad bar was a meal in itself. Not to mention the soup, some kind of delectable chowder. That was another meal in itself.

So I get back to the table with Martha, right. I got this salad — a meal in itself — and the soup — another meal in itself. By jolly I had already eaten two meals and I hadn't even gotten my meal yet.

And then it happened. Martha almost fainted; I had to take my heart pills. The waitress had brought the meals and they were big.

CHRIS CHUNG/Daily News

Good food comes a-knocking at Cattlemen's

I was in WWI, I was in WWII and these meals were big.

We were in trouble! Me and Martha had eaten salad, expecting a normal entree. But they were big! I could only eat one of these ribs. Were these whale ribs? I was wondering!

So I'm licking off the rib when Martha gives me scare #2.

"O H H H H H H ! O H H H H H H ! A B E ! ! ! ! ! " she says.

"What is it, Martha!" I says, reaching for the heart pills.

"These french fries! T h e y ' r e gooooooooooooooooooooooood!" she says.

Sure enough, they were. They had some kind of seasoning. Truly delicious.

We ask for our doggy bags and the waitress asks us if we want dessert. She lists off all kinds of things. Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, Homemade Cheesecake. But Martha and me were just too full.

"Sorry, sweetheart, Martha and me are just too full." I says.

Go now! You'll have a bowl!

Rockin' Orchid Bowl!

By Stephen Lynne-Bachelor and Pepe Winchester

You could have knocked us over with a 16-pound Brunswick when we discovered all the fun we could have at the Orchid Bowl. Located right over in Goleta, the Orchid Bowl is the bowling and entertainment center of just about the whole tri-counties. You might ask how we come to this conclusion. Let's break it down, shall we? Gimme an O. R. C. H. I. D. BOWL!

ment available for the bowling genre. Automatic scoring, electrified ball cleaners, overhead monitors and the craziest video games. This is not to mention the traditional stuff they have, like pool and billiard tables, funny shoes, a country and western bar and really good coffee and pro shops. R stands for "Rock and Bowl." Every Thursday night, the lanes of the Orchid Bowl start a-shaking with music and mirth, as the entire alley is converted into a rock video/bowling party. We're talking prizes, pizza and beer specials, unlimited bowling. Goodness gracious! Great "balls" of fire! C stands for "Cultural." Nothing can come close to capturing American ethos like a bowling alley. It's so steeped in classic American culture, you might think you're bowling with Jack and Diane and getting ready to head over to the Taste Freeze to pick up some chili dogs. You discuss Jackie's professional football prospects. H stands for "Hoe-down." The Orchid Bowl's Galleon Room is a county-wide favorite of the country and western set. They've got dancing in there, lessons, the hottest country bands to be found and drinks. Try it out once. It's a real kick. I stands for "Inexpensive." As far as interactive entertainment goes, very little can beat the recession-conscious value of bowling.

It gives you something to do that is fun and far more fulfilling than just some dumb movie. It costs less, too, even with the shoes and a couple beers. Good exercise, too. D stands for "Date." As we said in the previous paragraph, Orchid Bowling is a reliable recipe for cooking up a good date. If your date is an inexperienced bowler, you can ease in close on him or her, giving fantastic and exhilarating "tips." It's physical, but not tiring — just the thing really. So give it a shot. They're open right now. Orchid Bowl is located at 5925 Calle Real in Goleta. Open 24 hours. Phone 967-0128.

Anaconda

Social Distortion will play the Anaconda this Saturday night (April 18). Social Distortion has been around from the beginning of the American punk rock days and they're still going strong today. Since getting out of prison, Mike Ness seems to be much more mellow and it shows in their music. Even mellow, however, Social Distortion is sure to rock the house, so don't miss it.
