BATTLE AGAINST THE ISLAND BURGER, SHOWING AT MAIKAI

By J.G. Forrester

It just sat there, mocking me, like it knew that it would prevail. Somehow it could sense that I wasn't up to the task, and that I was biting off more than I could chew by taking it on.

"It" was an Island Burger from Mai Kai, a very cool Hawaiian/Polynesian eatery just on the ocean side of State Street that features the best atmosphere that I've seen at a Santa Barbara restaurant in a long time. As its name suggested, my burger was an island unto itself: two mega-meat patties stuffed between a sesame seed bun that could barely stay on top of the mountain of beef. Its sheer largeness was very intimidating.

"Go ahead, I dare ya," the Island Burger seemed to call out to me. "Look at me, I'm huge! You think you're going to eat me? I don't think so. I'm huge!"

But I was hungry enough — and foolish enough — to think that I was going to just chow down this Island as if it were a mere hamburger. Intimidated by a puny sandwich? Nope, not me. So I cradled it in both of my hands, made a mental note to the effect of, "Golly, this is heavy," and then tried to take a big bite out of the big island.

I failed. The thing was so tall that I could not fit it between my upper and lower teeth, making any sort of any honest bite impossible. Swing and a miss, strike one.

"Ha ha!" the burger seemed to shout at me after I dejectedly put it back down on my plate. "Didn't I tell you I was big? Look at how impossibly large I am! Ahahaha!"

Fuming at these taunts (and still very hungry), I snatched it up and again shoved it into my gaping mouth. Or at least, I tried; it was still too big. Strike two.

"What the hell are you doing?" asked Frenchie, one of my lunch companions. Frenchie had noticed my difficulties with eating the unruly burger, but he was blissfully munching away on his stir-fried chicken dish loaded with sprouts and various veggies, and was obviously unaware of the contest of wills going on at the table. When I pointed out to Frenchie that the Island Burger was entirely too large for any human being to successfully eat, he just said: "Whatever, I really don't want to watch this."

But that was just as well, for the third time was the charm. After two unsuccessful tries, I finally managed to clinch a part of the sandwich in my jaws, and the rest was a mess of dribbling sauce. It was indeed a colossal burger, and because of the respect I had developed for it, I resolved to eat the whole thing. And so, with one Island Burger and six or seven refills of lemonade sloshing around in my stomach, I happily rolled out of Mai Kai, knowing I had slain a worthy foe.

God, what a hamburger!

Bowling for Pleasure

By Fred Farnsworth

It's like Zen, really. You stand behind the line, cradling a sphere. Before you lies a narrow strip of polished wood, at the end of which stand 10 spherical pylons, mocking you in their vertical stance.

"Knock us down," they seem to whisper. "Destroy us with your globe."

You move toward the line, slowly at first, then faster, concentrating all your energy on the release of the sphere. At the very last moment before crossing the line, you stop, the rubber toe on your red-and-blue saddle-shoe screeching to a halt. Your arm swings up, and the sphere flies from your fingers.

You stand frozen, watching the globe roll speedily toward its destination: the gutter.

Damn. You need a drink.

If you're fortunate enough to be at San Marcos Bowl, that's not a problem. You can just drop the bowling ball, turn around and head up the steps to the lounge, where forgetting your failure is only a few shots away. San Marcos' lounge offers a wide variety of mixed drinks and beers, allowing you to momentarily ignore your lack of bowling prowess.

Had enough to drink but still not ready to face the lanes again? Head over to San Marcos Bowl's game room, which boasts pool tables and all of the newest video arcade games, just waiting to suck your pockets dry, tempting you to spend just one more quarter.

Now, drunken and penitent, you're ready to go back to the lanes. It's not so much like Zen this time, though. It's more like a vendetta, a blood oath. You will knock over some pins.

All of the finesse and calmness from your previous attempts is a thing of the past. You run toward the lane and hurl the ball at the pins, sliding past the line in the process. Landing flat on your back from stepping on the oiled wooden lane, you watch between your legs as the ball hurtles at the pins.

Two of them go down. Victory at last.

San Marcos Bowl is located at 4050 Calle Real, Santa Barbara. Phone: 967-5631

Club Stick: Cool Pool

By Odessa Robinson

So my friends and I were talking the other night. It was your usual weekday night, and we were talking. We were having a good time and all, talking. But, then we decided maybe we would have a better time if we changed location. You know, for a change.

This led to more conversation. Where would we go, what would we do when we got there? The second part was easy. We'd talk. But that left part No. 1, where would we go?

After more talk it suddenly hit us — Club Sticks! It's hip, it's new, it's a different location. No more talk was needed. Quick as a flash we grabbed our stuff and headed to the car. Of course, now we needed to decide whose car to take. Yet soon this too was solved. Tom volunteered.

Easy to find; after all, it's located smack dab in the middle of State Street — we were there. Tina noticed the great windows that made up the entrance of this suave pool joint and spent a few minutes admiring them before joining the rest of the group inside.

With a bit more conversation, we decided a drink would be in order and the group of us descended upon the bar. Looking around, watching the crowded room bustling with enthusiastic pool players, we couldn't resist. "Let's play," I chimed to my friends.

After glancing at each other for a moment, the group nodded wholeheartedly in agreement.

After getting a table, we divided into teams. Tom, Tina and myself against Roger, Reynard and Alice. Tom racked them up and Reynard took the first shot. With a striped ball in the corner pocket, the game was on.

Due to the fact that not one of us can play a decent game of pool, Club Sticks provided this wayward group with hours of entertainment.

It was the best decision to come out of our numerous conversation topics that night. It was the perfect change of pace. It's a great place to play pool. Club Sticks, that is.

Club Sticks is located at 1117 State Street. Phone: 966-9010.

Off to the Beach Shack

By Alissa Censena

I'll never forget my first weekend at this institution of higher education. Fresh out of community college, I was ready for the sight and sounds of the university lifestyle. Luckily for me, I had been introduced to several people down the hall that knew I was new and knew I was looking for a night out on the town.

"Come with us," they said. "We'll show you what's really meant by the saying 'the State Street crawl.'"

So I went. Being persons who enjoy a good party, but not the price tag of a DUI, we piled into Bill's Bus and were on our way to an evening of adventure.

During our road trip to downtown Santa Barbara, Laura, Carol and Chantal related previous experiences of days gone by. While all three had different stories to tell, all three also spoke most highly of one nightclub in particular, you guessed it, The Beach Shack.

The excitement mounted. So I ask them if I too would have a chance to experience this club of which they spoke. The Beach Shack. Would I too have a mai-tai within its famous walls? Would I too have a chance to dance to the beat on its wooden dance floor?

"Not to worry," they said in unison. "It's our first stop."

As always, they were right. Bill's mobile dropped us off right next door to the place I had heard so much about. The four of us headed straight to the door.

After speaking with a nice young man at the door (OK, he wanted to see our ID's), we were in. It was all I had been told.

The sand on the floor, the bar to the right with tropical drinks to be had, all you had to do was ask.

With drinks in hand, we headed to the outdoor patio to see who was about. Finding a group of friends, we sat down and soon the night was in full swing.

Before we knew it, it was time to head home. We had never gotten beyond The Beach Shack.

The Beach Shack is located at 5000 Anacapa Street in Santa Barbara.

Red Dog Nights

By Cendy Bonaci

"The Red Dog Saloon used to be my favorite place to go cowboy dancing," Regina told me with a sigh. "Now that it's changed, I don't know if I'll enjoy it there anymore."

Regina had obviously not given the new atmosphere a chance, I thought. "We'll go there this weekend," I told her, not wanting her to miss out on the good time to be had there.

So that Friday night, we headed downtown to visit the place. Regina was wearing cowboy boots and a hat, and I told her not to live in the past. "Bands play there now," I said. "You look ridiculous."

Regina just shrugged and reminded me that it still had a Western aura to it even if no one linedanced anymore. It turned out she was right.

When we arrived at the parking lot, we were greeted by an old covered wagon situated in the middle of the cars. As we entered the saloon, we passed by the tables of chatting patrons and headed over to the bar.

We had already eaten dinner that night, although watching the others feast on their meals made us wish we hadn't. But we shuffled to the bar to enjoy a drink.

A band wasn't playing that night, but Regina mentioned, while glancing at the stage, that we ought to come back some time for a concert. I agreed.

As we approached the bar, the bartender looked Regina up and down and felt it necessary to remind her politely that no one danced here anymore. "I know," she sighed.

We both had gin and tonics and sat at the bar for awhile. The dim and casual environment made us feel relaxed, and after a few more drinks we decided that this saloon was a great place to hang out.

"We'll have to come back here more often," Regina said.

"There aren't enough saloons in Santa Barbara," I responded. The Red Dog Saloon had the kind of feel you don't find too many places.

As we left, we contemplated when I would make it out to the Saloon again.

Red Dog Saloon is located at 110 Santa Barbara Street in Santa Barbara.

End Notes:

Well this is the last issue of the year, so enjoy it. If you have any brains left cruise down to The Red Dog Saloon tonight for THE OFFSPRING with Guttermouth. These guys really rip so don't miss this one! A little way down the road, on June 12 I.V. loc's LAGWAGON will rock the Beach Shack — don't miss them either. Well — I'm finally graduating, so I'll leave you with a word from Bad Religion: SUFFER. Late.
