

Regents to Vote On Salary Hike For U.C. Faculty

By DREW DIGBY
Special to the Nexus

SAN FRANCISCO— Faculty salaries would rise 9 percent under a proposal approved yesterday by the U.C. Board of Regents Committee on Finance.

The full board will vote on the faculty salary increase today, but it is the state Legislature and Governor Brown who will make the final decision next spring.

Acting U.C. President William Fretter said the increase was necessary to compensate for inflation, especially increased housing costs, and to keep U.C. salaries competitive with other educational institutions.

Fretter also called for separating pay hikes for U.C. employees from those of other state employees.

The university wants to control pay increases for its own employees by having the Legislature give them an overall appropriation to be allocated by the regents. Usually, the Legislature makes salary increase decisions itself.

To reach the 9 percent figure, the university averaged inflation estimates from both the liberal state Department of Finance and the conservative UCLA Business Forecasting Project, to come up with a projected inflation rate of 8.4 percent for California in 1982-83.

U.C. estimates that an additional 5.5 percent increase is needed to equal the 1982-83 salary estimate for comparable universities, in addition to the projected inflation rate. The proposal also mentions the possibility of higher pay for engineering and business professors. Earlier, Academic Vice President William Frazer said U.C. may need to increase pay in those areas because of stronger competition from other universities and the private sector.

Today's regents' meeting could be a showcase of political power with Governor Jerry Brown, Lieutenant Governor Mike Curb, Assembly Speaker Willie Brown, and U.S. Attorney General William French Smith all scheduled to appear.

U.C. Fees May Be Increased By $300

By DREW DIGBY
Special to the Nexus

SAN FRANCISCO— Sharp limits on graduate enrollment and fee increases of $300 per year are university proposals to compensate for proposed 5 percent cuts in next year's budget.

In addition, $29 million must come from academic program reductions and administration cuts, U.C. Assistant Vice President William Baker told the U.C. Regents' Finance Board yesterday.

Governor Jerry Brown in August asked all state operations to trim their 1982-83 proposed budgets by 5 percent to meet declining state revenues and a sharp budget crisis.

Baker said the possible fee increases "go as far as we can go without charging tuition." He said all university student services, including maintenance, admissions, administration, and student affirmative action, would then be funded by student fees.

The university defines tuition as student fees that pay for the actual instruction of students.

Baker said the cuts would require $12 to $15 million in instructional program cuts, with the majority coming from the graduate and health sciences areas.

Regent Edward Carter said imposing graduate tuition was preferable to limited graduate enrollment or possible reductions in program quality.

Graduate students are not treated the same way as undergraduates by the State Legislature, Baker said. Funding for undergraduate students is provided on a faculty/student basis, while the legislature has at times not fully funded the graduate level, he said.

Baker said that since instructional programs cannot be terminated with students still in them, they must be phased out over a multi-year period to allow students already in them to get their degrees.

Because of this, Baker said the university could only expect to save $4 million in permanent cuts and would have to find almost $12 million in temporary cuts.

Baker said a $4 million cut would mean a loss of 1,200 graduate students and 70 faculty positions.

The cuts discussion came on top of a presentation by State Finance Director Mary Ann Graves, who told the regents the state financial situation continues to worsen.

Either further cuts in the state budget are needed or else revenue must be increased, she said.

"In the current year, I am very hopeful that you will be exempt from further cuts," Graves told the regents.

Some of the regents again criticized Brown's current-year cuts of $22 million as "inequitable."

Graves, while defending the cuts as the only option available to the governor without legislative approval, said "I think you could make an argument (that) local assistance budgets could take a 2 percent cut."

Today, Brown is expected to attend the meeting and defend the cuts in person.

In other action, the regents' Finance Committee approved the concept of a special salary scale for business and engineering faculty, despite the objections of some academic senate committees.

Under a tentative special scale, assistant professors in those two divisions would receive 20 percent more than the current scale and full professors 10 percent more.

UCSB Faculty Concerned Over Military Increases in El Salvador

By GORDON AMSBAUGH
Nexus Staff Writer

Fifteen UCSB faculty members recently voiced concern about possible escalated United States military involvement in El Salvador in a letter sent to Chair of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Charles Percy.

Dated Nov. 18, the letter is signed by faculty members of seven UCSB departments, who comprise a local chapter of the nationwide Faculty Committee for Human Rights in El Salvador.

The campus chapter of FACHRES "wish(es) to register its grave concern over recent remarks attributed to Secretary of State (Alexander) Haig (New York Times, Nov. 5), on behalf of the Reagan administration, suggesting further military involvement in El Salvador."

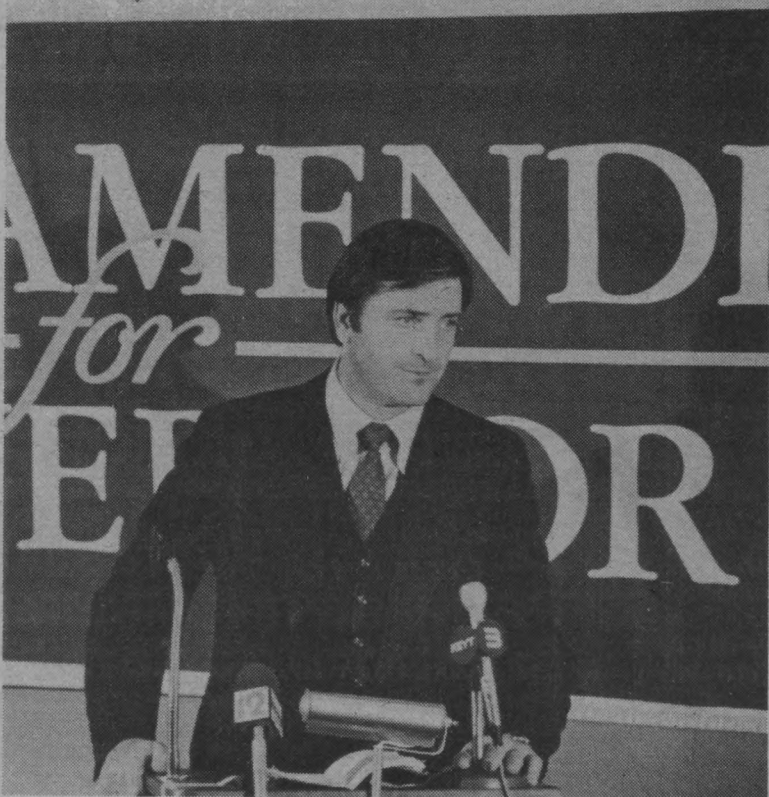

The Times article, written by a former U.S. State Department official and Times reporter Leslie Gelb, states that Haig, according to "key officials," has been "pressing the Pentagon to examine a series of options for possible military action in El Salvador and against Cuba and Nicaragua," because the situation is appearing as a "stalemate" to the administration.

The letter, copies of which were sent to California Senators Alan Cranston and S.I. Hayakawa, Congressman Robert Lagomarsino (R-Santa Barbara), and State Assemblyman Gary Hart (D-Santa Barbara), states opposition to any additional military involvement in El Salvador and the surrounding area.

"We strongly protest stepped up intervention in Central America and the Caribbean, and call on you (Percy) to conduct hearings on the shifting U.S.

State Senate Majority Leader Garamendi to Run for Governor

By BARBARA POSTMAN
Nexus Staff Writer

Stressing the fact that he "is not supporting, defending or knocking" Governor Jerry Brown's record, State Senator John Garamendi announced his candidacy for governor in 1982 at a press conference held yesterday in Santa Barbara.

Garamendi, Senate majority leader from the 13th district, which ranges from Lake Tahoe to Mammoth Lakes, became the first official Democratic candidate on Wednesday in Sacramento.

The senator came to Santa Barbara because he believes that this area is "on the cutting edge of major issues," such as conservation, growth, coastal issues and LNG, and "deserves the attention of the governor and the state."

His campaign, Garamendi said, will "speak to the issues....People don't want mud throwing." One of the major issues he discussed was that of the state's energy needs. He believes that new nuclear plants should not be in California's future, and that alternate ways of supplying energy should be used. Garamendi is in favor of the Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant going on line, "if it meets stringent safety checks....We are committed to that source."

Garamendi is opposed to the Peripheral Canal, and is "working on alternatives," such as water reclamation, and is involved in legislation to save Lake Tahoe and Mono Lake.

When asked about the possibility of establishing tuition in the U.C. system, Garamendi, a U.C. Berkeley graduate, said that he was strongly opposed to that, adding that the university system is an important resource for the state, providing "many technical breakthroughs," and must be supported.

In a statement released by Garamendi yesterday, he stated his standings on several important issues. "I want to push for stricter discipline in public schools," he said, "with renewed emphasis on basic education in the lower grades and more programs in the upper grades tailored to vocational needs."

On the issue of crime, he said that "we must have a hard-nosed attitude toward criminals. Give police the tools to do their jobs, but stress crime prevention strategies that recognize the underlying causes of criminal behavior."

Admitting that many people have never heard of him, Garamendi believes that by the time the primary comes, his name "will be a household word." He is structuring his campaign "so it is based on people." He believes that he should "raise people first, and then raise money."

SAN FRANCISCO— In the ongoing controversy about video-recorders, a federal attorney warned Wednesday that people who sell or lease equipment designed to intercept the signals of subscription television services may be prosecuted.

LOS GATOS— Medfly project officials said Wednesday they suspect that a hoax may be responsible for forcing extension of a controversial pesticide spraying program over part of San Mateo County. The deputy manager for the Mediterranean fruit fly eradication team said, "There's a strong suspicion that spraying there is unnecessary."

LOS ANGELES— A new breed of builder will emerge from the ruins of the current housing market to provide consumers with the kind of homes they really want according to a real estate analyst.

NATION

WASHINGTON— The Nuclear Regulatory Commission voted four to one yesterday to suspend the low power testing license for The Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant near San Luis Obispo.

The vote by the commission came at a closed hearing hours after a congressional subcommittee meeting at which new questions were raised concerning the safety of nuclear power. The commission said it will require verification of earthquake protection equipment before reissuing the license. According to NRC Chairman Nunzio Palladino, the commission was unanimous in their view that fuel loading should not take place until seismic verification can be completed.

The suspension of the permit will undoubtedly be regarded as a victory for nuclear power opponents, particularly those who participated in a two week blockade at the plant earlier this year.

Depot Moved to Preserve History

By ANDY NORTHEAD
Nexus Staff Writer

Goleta's historic Southern Pacific train depot, long out of use, was moved to a new site adjacent to the Stow House earlier this week in order to preserve its historic significance.

The move of the depot is being undertaken by the relocation committee of Goleta Beautiful, and by the Institute of American Research with financial aid from various foundations.

"The building must be moved for its own preservation. If it were left where it is, it would eventually be torn down, or destroyed by vandals," Linda Dicks of the Institute said.

Preservation of the Goleta train depot is important due to its significance as an historic landmark. The 80 year old building is one of the oldest standing buildings in Goleta. The depot was believed to have been built around March or April of 1901, however, due to missing issues of the Santa Barbara News-Press, the exact date of the building's construction is unknown.

"Station 7/22," as it was listed in the Southern Pacific records, was built on land that was bought by the Kellogg family in the late 1800's. The Kellogg's company allowed the Southern Pacific rail company to build and operate a train depot to service the Goleta area.

Southern Pacific operated the Goleta train depot for more than 70 years, but eventually abandoned the depot in the early 1970s. With the abandonment by Southern Pacific, the depot went back under ownership of the Kellogg's company. Since Kellogg's had no use for the building, it was to eventually be torn down, until it was saved by the Institute for American Research and Goleta Beautiful, who arranged to have the depot moved off of its previous location near the tracks at the end of Kellogg Avenue.

policy — specifically to ask General Haig to clarify his pursuit of military options in the area," the letter states.

According to the sources, the Times article noted that the U.S. Defense Department has opposed use of American forces in Central America or the Caribbean. The department, the article states, claims that, "almost all of the possible military actions are not likely to be successful," because of various domestic and foreign political factors.

However, accelerated plans within the State Department have reportedly included the compilation of a memorandum mainly by one department counselor, according to officials in the Times article. The memorandum reportedly suggests greater U.S. involvement in El Salvador to confront alleged Cuban and Russian involvement in the area. Nonmilitary proposals for the area may include

Honors

Editor, Daily Nexus:

During the week of Nov. 2-6, Mortar Board asked students to name their favorite social science professor. We received over 250 votes, nominating 87 different professors in 9 related fields. Several professors received numerous votes; many students indicated similar impressions and preferences. We are pleased to announce the November Professor of the Month: John D. Baldwin.

Dr. Baldwin has been a respected professor of sociology here at UCSB since 1967. He received his Ph.D. from John Hopkins University and specializes in behavioral sociology, social psychology and animal behavior. He is currently teaching Soc. 2 and co-lecturing Soc. 152, Human Sexuality, one of the most popular courses on campus. He will be offering Soc. 142 (Socialization) and Soc. 152 next quarter.

Students chose Dr. Baldwin for his enthusiasm toward and knowledge of the subject matter. He is an inspirational and resourceful professor as well as a dynamic and stimulating lecturer. Students feel he lectures for their benefit, making classes relevant, interesting, and applicable. They look forward to his classes and leave with a good feeling.

The professor will be giving a lecture to Mortar Board at the beginning of the quarter. A topic will be chosen then, and all interested students are welcome.

Conversion

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I would like to respond to Wednesday's article on the quarter/semester issue and also to clarify a couple of things.

It has to be noted that there is a number of graduate students who do not have a preference for either system because their research or study is on an independent and individual time schedule that won't be affected by either system.

GSA is concerned that the T.A. policy will be changed in a way that the T.A.'s do not suffer from any disadvantages compared to the current policy. GSA wants to be involved when a new policy is worked out.

Furthermore, I would like to give a few comments to the conversion issue. The article's "con" argument that "depth is not a function of the time period but rather of the faculty members' course organization...able to expand courses to two quarters" names an illusory

De facto, two-quarter courses are hardly given at all, but this is not due to the faculty's disinterest but due to the quarter system. Two-quarter courses must, in any case, still conform to the rapid pace of the quarter system, and therefore cannot provide the profundity and continuity of a semester class.

Health

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I am writing in response to Katy Park's rather facetious editorial on her experience at SHS, featured in the 11/4-81 Nexus. It appears Ms. Parks was not happy with her visit, not everyone is; however, her article contained several misconceptions regarding health and health care at SHS which should be addressed.

As Patient Advocate at the Health Center and as a student who sometimes utilizes their services, I am perhaps in a position to evaluate SHS from a more objective position than Ms. Parks. I emphasize objective — I do not work for the Health Center but with the staff and fellow students as a liaison and trouble shooter. The usual avenue for complaints is through me or the Student Health Advisory Committee. If Ms. Parks had taken the time to utilize one of these channels she would have obtained satisfactory and logical explanations for the procedures she encountered during her visit and learned some valuable health education in the process.

The SHS is designed to provide clinical services to people who need to be seen by a health practitioner and provide educational services for those people who can effectively help themselves. It is primarily for this reason that the self-help cold clinic was developed. Ms. Parks was right on one account, there is no cure for the common cold. However, as most medications providing symptomatic relief can be bought over the counter, there is no need to see a physician. The trained student volunteer at the cold clinic is there to help you select an appropriate medication (many are free) and to help screen out other causes for your discomfort by taking a temperature and, if requested, a throat culture. If an abnormal temp is shown, which might indicate a more serious condition, the student is referred to the Walk-In Clinic. True, one must fill out a Form 7 (this takes approximately 10 seconds) and there might or might not be a wait, as students are taken on a first come basis (excluding emergencies). At the Walk-In Clinic, the student is seen by the most appropriate

Editor, Daily Nexus:

People have a strong sense that the future of mankind and the world is in a very precarious state. No convincing of the seriousness of the matter is really necessary for those of us who know a little about world issues. We need only to take note of our resistance and discomfort whenever the topic of nuclear war comes up. We know that the world is troubled and we are afraid and anxious. This is a given, it is within us all. Yet we suppress and ignore the fear, primarily concentrating on our daily goals and activities.

The knowledge of the various dangers of nuclear arms becomes the subject of rationality: "I can't really do anything about it so I should try to make a good life for myself and my family," or, "people against military build-up are radical and foolish, I want no association with them." We have reasons why we should not be afraid, why it is not necessary, yet the uneasiness remains. The fear is buried, hence the feelings have no outlet, no freedom to be exposed, played with, and integrated into our lives. It is this fear, anxiety and discomfort that, when suppressed, can lead to an increase in anger, frustration, and a feeling of impotence.

We cannot wait for pamphlets to come to our door to realize how "wrong" the nuclear race is and then act upon it. We health practitioner, which is not always a male physician. The staff includes female physicians, nurse practitioners, nurses, and hospital assistants. All students who use SHS are requested to have a medical history on file and from time to time this should be updated. This history is perhaps the single most important tool the patient can provide the practitioner.

I encourage students to develop their own opinions of SHS by utilizing the services when needed and not relying on the experiences of others. If you are dissatisfied or confused about an aspect of your treatment, come see me, visit a SHAC meeting, or ask your practitioner at the

do not need more reasons in order to act, we know and feel the insanity of it. We must only be willing to allow ourselves to feel that it indeed affects us, that it threatens us, that it has to do with our lives. This involves integrity, not because emotions are hard to deal with in themselves, but that the feeling can only surface when we can have it as a part of our lives and when we are willing to talk about it, understand it and have it be with us.

Acting out against nuclear proliferation is surrounded with considerations, excuses and reasons for doing otherwise. We are constrained by our rationality from the free expression of not only our emotions but of our living, our doingness. It is clear that the state of our world is one of emergency, yet we have rationalized ourselves out of a real willingness and need to contribute consciously towards an end to these troubles.

What I am saying is that in our hearts we know that nuclear war is not appropriate, yet our reasons have led us to avoid our feelings; to hide them and devalue them. The intent of these words has been since the outset to speak out on one certainty: that we all have the power to act on this issue.

Editor, Daily Nexus:

If ignorance is bliss, many of us, myself included, have been walking around in a blissful state for quite some time. I became painfully aware of this fact when I attended the National Convocation on the Threat of Nuclear War, which was held on campus Nov. 11. Granted, I have always opposed the nuclear industry; however, I never before realized the enormity of the threat posed by nuclear weapons.

Upon seeing the films and listening to the speakers, I was hit full force by the urgency of our present situation. It definitely was not a pleasant experience, but I realize that it really is necessary to scare people sometimes in order to motivate them into action. Bravo to all those who were involved in this much-needed event!

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Last Wednesday (Nov. 11) people were awakened to the grim reality of nuclear war. The natural reaction to this reality is "Arms Control!" Arms control seems to be the only answer, but is it realistic? Unfortunately, nuclear technology is here to stay and we cannot make everyone forget  $E=mc^2$  squared, or wish it away.

As for the hardware, if it takes only 400 warheads to do the job and there are at least 25,000 warheads in the U.S. alone, we would have to destroy at least 24,600 warheads before we even start to make an impact. And by what means do we destroy them? Besides, it would take one hell of a battle to get the powerful generals in the pentagon to give up their toys.

Even if through public outrage we manage to slam on the brakes right now, the momentum of the arms race itself would skid us into a nuclear war. What I am saying is that it is inevitable. It doesn't take genius to see this, all one has to do is open their eyes to historical trends and present situations. The human population has greatly exceeded the carrying capacity of our planet and any population biologist can tell you what happens when this occurs.

It will happen and I say this not only realistically but, from a nonanthropocentric perspective, optimistically. It is a fact that we have evolved from the primordial ooze of our mother earth. In our growth, we have gradually harnessed greater amounts of energy and created more and more sophisticated tools to be used in destroying not only ourselves but our environment as well.

Look at what we have done to our mother! We have poisoned her water. We have contaminated her air. We have scarred her face! Perhaps a nuclear war is exactly what we deserve. Maybe it is nature's way of erasing a bad mistake. Hopefully no organism such as Homo Sapiens will ever evolve again.

Disagree

Editor, Daily Nexus:

This is in response to an editorial column written by Martin Cothran (11-18-81).

The Cothran editorial gave the misguided view that there are two sides with respect to arms control and reduction. This is, in fact, not true. There is an alternative to total unilateral disarmament and an alternative to an increased buildup of $1.5 trillion to military proposed by Reagan.

This is the position of reducing the nuclear arsenal to the point where the United States has a second strike capability of inflicting total destruction on the Soviet Union. In this scenario, even if the United States were struck by a surprise Soviet first strike attack, the U.S. fleet of 41 missile-carrying submarines and air force bombers could wage total destruction on the Soviet Union.

Reduction also maintains security the best, since it doesn't give one nation's nuclear superpower force obvious domination, and it doesn't instigate an action-reaction nuclear arms buildup which (both in number and in technology) has been never-ending since the '60s.

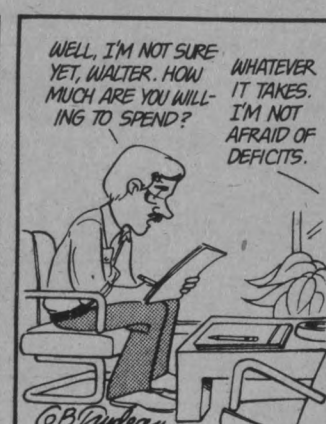

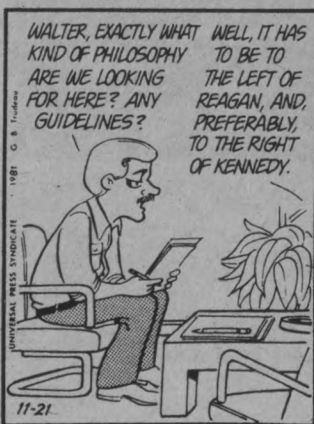

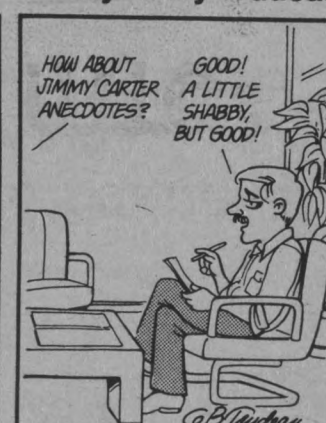

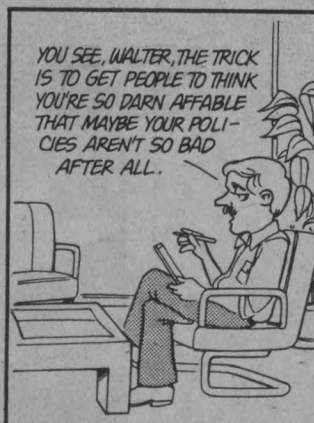

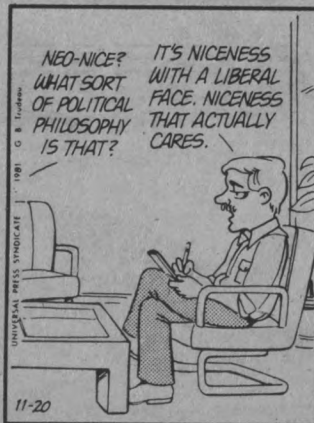

The reduction in nuclear weapons by the United States to a second strike capability, together with a declaration that we would not use them first, would turn the tide and help the cohesiveness of the NATO alliance significantly. On top of this, with just a fraction of the $1.5 trillion Reagan intends on spending for nuclear weapons and the military, the United States could build its conventional forces to a deterrent level in Western Europe.

Thus a reduction to a second strike capability would not only be a move of increased security, but would put pressure on the Soviets to respond and start the arms reduction process bilaterally.

Military Escalation...

UCSB biology professor Ellis Englesberg, a liaison to the nationwide chapter of FACHRES, said, "If enough noise is made by concerned people, the military options planned by Haig will be forestalled."

At least some members of FACHRES maintain the current conflict in El Salvador is a civil war that pits the existing Salvadoran government, led by President Jose Napoleon Duarte, against popular guerrilla forces, and thus does not warrant foreign involvement.

Members of FACHRES further believe the situation is vaguely reminiscent of the early stage of the Vietnam war, and that U.S. policy has been established in the interests of anticommunism and the domino theory of established satellites, according to linguistics professor and FACHRES member Art Schwartz.

Because of their academic standing, FACHRES is especially concerned about the June, 1980 closing of the National University of El Salvador.

Ten days ago, Dr. Carlos Hernandez, Secretary of Planning for the university, spoke to FACHRES and other campus groups, saying that buildings formerly used as places of education are now used as military garrisons and that troops based in these former classrooms and elsewhere have slaughtered 179 teachers and 1,005 students. FACHRES is working to publicize this "tragedy," in the hope that the arousal of the American public's sentiment will help reopen the university, Schwartz said.

Interested faculty members are urged and invited to attend.

Acting Company Performs Here

Royal Shakespeare Company actors have been on campus for a week-long residency, participating in shows, recitals, and class lectures.

Sponsored by UCSB Arts and Lectures, the company's stay will culminate with the production of Borrowed Robes and Seeming Truths, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in Campbell Hall. Tonight, renowned troubadour and lutenist Martin Best will give a recital of Shakespearean and medieval songs at 8 p.m. in Campbell Hall.

Best's "A Troubadour's World" concert will highlight the music and instrumentalization of the Shakespearean era. Borrowed Robes and Seeming Truths is a compilation of excerpts from Shakespeare's masterworks; major themes from such works as Macbeth and Othello will be explored.

In a related event, Brian Cox from the National Theater of Great Britain will give readings from the works of Wordsworth, Coleridge, and De Quincy today at noon in the Main Theatre.

Girl Hoopsters Begin By Meeting Div. Two Giants

By BARRY EBERLING
Nexus Sports Writer

No one can accuse the UCSB women's basketball team of easing into their schedule. Tomorrow they'll open their season against Cal State Pomona, a team which Gauchos' head coach Bobbi Bonace thinks will win the NCAA Division II title.

She has basis for her prediction. Pomona has done a good imitation of invincibility over the last few years, winning five consecutive SCAA titles while posting a 51-1 conference mark. UCSB has never beaten the Broncos.

To reverse this trend, UCSB will have to overcome the Broncos' height advantage. With four players that are six feet or taller, the Broncos look like they come from Brobdingnag.

"They'll try to penetrate," Bonace said. "Our goal is to pressure them and to make it difficult for them to get the ball inside."

After the Broncos shoot, the Gauchos will have to clear the boards. Otherwise they may find 6-3 Lisa Ulma tipping the ball in for an easy basket.

Bonace said outstanding Pomona players include Ulmer, whom she calls a super shooter; 5-10 guard Jackie White; 5-11 guard Kelley Fraser; 6-0 forward Robin Mooneyham; and 5-10 forwards Maureen Flynn and Jeanette Tjaarda.

The current Gauchos are more disciplined and have a better team defense than the squad which lost to Pomona 76-67 and 79-67 last year, according to Bonace. But the veteran Broncos have picked up a year's experience also.

Win or lose, the Gauchos will be unable to ponder the Pomona game for long. They'll play Dominguez Hills the next evening.

"It should be pretty much a running game," Bonace said. "I think we are quicker."

Last season the Gauchos ran away from Dominguez Hills in the closing minutes for a 72-69 victory. New coach Alice Textor could modify her team's playing style, however.

The Gauchos will have exactly the same playing style as last year. They just hope it will be more polished.

UCSB will play Cal State Pomona on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Cal State Dominguez Hills on Sunday at 5:30 p.m. Both games are in Rob. Gym.

Gauchos Gossip — UCSB is without forward Nadine Ramirez until December. Ramirez set the club single season rebounding record last year... Thyra Ladyman returns to action against Pomona.

American Flavor Added to Chinese

There will be a little American flavor added to the Chinese Acrobats' performance Saturday night at the Events Center.

Sue Soffe of Agoura, California will be performing two of the five events in the newest Olympic sport, Modern Rhythmic Gymnastics. The events will include dance and acrobatics with hoop and ribbons to music. Rhythmic Gymnastics will make its Olympic debut at the 1984 games in Los Angeles as one of the two sports to be added this time around.

Currently training under Illeana Vogelaar, Soffe was selected by the IOC to perform before the largest gathering of American athletes ever at the Sports Festival of 1981 in Syracuse, New York. Before 2,700 athletes from all over the United States, Soffe displayed the talents that will be a part of Saturday's exhibition in the Events Center.

Soffe is doing some coaching herself, training juniors in dance and gymnastic at the Conejo Gymnastics Center. Her current experience should help in her pursuit of a college career in Physical Education and Telecommunications.

Rare November Meets for UCSB

By RON DICKER
Nexus Sports Editor

The only splashing of water that one usually hears at this time of year is the echoes of the waning water polo season, but this year, for the first time in the school's history, the men's swim team will have a dual meet before the turkey is carved, when they clash against San Diego State today (at San Diego) and then go to Irvine for a Saturday meet.

This year's edition of the Gauchos will have a new look, sporting a new coach and having to do without All-American sprinter Paul Goodridge.

Replacing Gregg Wilson, who recently has led his last three Gaucho squads to PCAA titles, is Larry Shofe, who last was helmsman at Old Dominion. Wilson, in case you haven't heard, has assumed duties as assistant athletic director for fund raising.

The new head coach recently discussed the state of the program that he has inherited.

"There is really no extra pressure," he said. "We lost some key people in Paul Goodridge and Dan Harvey and Ken Radtkey has decided to redshirt, but we have an excellent group of young men coming into the program and I feel that if we live up to our potential, we should be equal to or better than last year's team." A bold statement indeed, because Wilson didn't neglect going in style. Last year's team, besides winning its third consecutive conference crown, scored at the NCAA meet, set four new conference records, and had seven individual conference champions and two championship relays.

The veterans who will lead the Gauchos through a campaign in which they will face four of the top ten teams in the country are Ken Neff, a school record holder in the 100 backstroke (51.54), Greg Asplund, an NCAA qualifier in the 1500 freestyle, Rob Werner, a school record holder in the 100 breaststroke (56.92) and the Turkish Terror, Murat Ozak, possessor of the school mark in the 200 IM (1:52.82) and the PCAA champ in that event.

The list of newcomers includes Kent Davis, Joe O'Brien, Matt Lum, Bob Ward and Per Bjorkman. The first four are all high school All-Americans and Bjorkman is the 1978 junior national Swedish champion in the sprints.

The Aztecs meet is a mismatch, so expect Shofe to mix things up a bit to keep the score down.

Volleyball Pacific Next Up

By CAROL PRIETTO
Nexus Sports Writer

The UCSB women's volleyball team will be wrapping up their season in the next two weeks. They have three games remaining; one at home and two on the road.

On Saturday, Nov. 21, they will head north for a rematch with the University of the Pacific. In early October the Tigers beat the Gauchos in straight games, and UCSB will be looking to avenge the loss.

On Nov. 24, the team will travel to Pauley Pavilion to play the UCLA Bruins. The last time the two teams met, the Gauchos pulled off a four-game upset. This match could hold a lot of omens. The Bruins and the Gauchos are both top contenders for this year's national championship, which will be played at UCLA.

On Dec. 11 and 12 the Gauchos will play in the NCAA regionals, with the site being determined by where the team is seeded. Kathy Gregory, UCSB volleyball coach, said that the team will probably be seeded eighth or ninth which would mean the team would be travelling to Washington. The winners of each regional will advance the NCAA Nationals at UCLA on Dec. 18 and 19.

The team has been hit with a rash of injuries as of late. Iris Mc Donald, Cindy Cochrane, and Natalie Oana are still sidelined, but are expected to return soon. Gina De Quattro has come back from a sprained ankle sustained two weeks ago, and is expected to return to the starting lineup when the Gauchos play Pacific.
