Time was, and it wasn’t so long ago, that The Sizzler was a notorious steakhouse, with pictures of cattle on the wall to boast the dynamic duo of Hibachi Chicken and Malibu Chicken, along with the other dinner side dishes, of course being on the salad bar.

And remember, too, that The Sizzler is the family restaurant that thinks about the individual on a tight regiment or on the go. That’s where the entire come in. Try the Sirloin Steak, or perhaps a Malibu Chicken entreé with perhaps a salad for just the right afternoon lunch before tackling the rest of the workday.

As for the individual in mind, The Sizzler also has a comfortably priced senior citizen’s menu. Because of its variety of menu items, the Sizzler is really ideal for almost any occasion. An affordable treat, and don’t forget the salad bar.

In Spanish, La Gordita means ‘the fat lady,’ and in Goleta this is especially true.

La Gordita Restaurant, located at 560 A Hollister Avenue in nearby Goleta is one of those places every person either in or traveling through the Santa Barbara area should make a sincere effort to see and enjoy.

More in the line of the best Mexican food in the area, La Gordita offers the hungry fighter tasty food at extremely reasonable prices and a relaxed atmosphere that immediately makes the customer feel at home.

Sandra, the friendly proprietress of La Gordita, lets you know right away that this is her place and that she takes the happiness of her customers as a serious responsibility. On the chalkboard menu adjacent to the kitchen is the creto that food should be enjoyed the way you want it, and that they will make every effort to go the extra culinary mile in pleasing the customer.

With a variety of Mexican fare ranging from fajitas to tacos to burritos to tamales, La Gordita tempts the eyes and stomach, for the very food you see being colorfully right behind the counter will soon end up on your plate and in your mouth.

Especially good is the restaurant’s Fajitas con Guacamole y Tortillas. Diced up with grilled onions, salsa, tasty guacamole and of course hot tortillas, the meal not only satisfies your hunger, but let’s you get into the act by combining the ingredients just the way you like them. Not a huge chiltepe fan, I chose to go easy on the salsa and heavy on the guacamole.

The Verdugo Ranchos, a combination of grilled chicken marinated in chilies, with cilantro and onions, all wrapped up in homemade tortillas, is a satisfying choice as is the Georgia Special. Don’t ask, just go see for yourself.

The homestyle decor of La Gordita lends itself to contrast with western-style restaurants, with miniatureucci decorating the bare wood tables.

In addition to food, La Gordita offers a wide variety of domestic and imported beers for those of age, and a selection of natural softdrinks as well.

Sitting in La Gordita one soon sees that this is a place with a reputation, an numerous regular customers routinely walk in a chat with Sandra. Always quick with a joke and a smile, she completes the setting, and is an integral part to the La Gordita experience as is the food and drink. So try something new, take a chance. Good things come to the adventurous and those for whom breaking their normal dining routine, La Gordita offers a change of pace both pleasantly and gastronomically satisfying. Bon appetit!

Pescado’s

Pescado, of course, means fish in Spanish. And Pescado restaurant at 5782 Hollister in Goleta offers some enticing and decidedly different dishes and specialties blending the worlds of traditional Mexican food such as tacos, burritos and quesadillas with fresh seafood deliciously enough to turn high the most fuddy-duddy of gourmets from either side of the spectrum.

Have you ever considered a seafood burrito or fish taco? Well, these two oddities come on the same platter in one of Pescado’s many unique combination plates. For $5.95, the hungry hobo or smurf or sailor for that matter can have the aforementioned along with black beans and sliced jicama. A culinary fiesta.

Or, would you believe a shark tostada and swordfish taco combination? And the list doesn’t stop. Pictures, if you will, a lobster taco alongside a shrimp taco, with the black beans and sliced jicama, of course. And Pescado would dare not neglect those who prefer the more tried and tested Mexican dishes such as carne asada burritos and chicken tacos, at $6.25 per combo.

Fajitas, what about fajitas? one may ask. Just try any of the char-broiled morsels of the day over a soft tortilla along with all your favorite fajita fixings — the dishes, which range between $6.00 and $8.00, feature avocado, black beans, cheese, salsa, sour cream and cabbage.

The array of appetizers is similarly eclectic and positively traditional. Try the Mexican shrimp cocktail which is full of tomatoes and onions and sipes delicately mixed and chilled to become the perfect prelude to the main course. There is also everyone’s favorite, fresh fried zucchini and what Mexican restaurat could be called such without nachos — only Pescado’s nacho appetizer plate has black beans. Wow.

To complement the dinner, the menu also features soups such as homemade chowder (white) and several choices of main course. To complement the dinner, the menu also features soups such as homemade chowder (white) and several choices of main course.
