Phun Phood Phact!

Did you know that when making ice cream, people often put salt in with the ice used to cool the mixing container? Why? What about freon? Explain. How come they use salt, when everyone has a freezer anyway? Do you make homemade ice cream? Explain. Relate this to another topic we have discussed this quarter.

The dance floor at Zelo. Your chances of finding it empty, on any good night, are right around zero. Not only does Zelo cook, it rocks.

GERRY MELENDEZ/Daily Nexus

You Want Friendly?

By Bunyan Valentine

Some people you just can't reach. Like maybe the hostess at one of those open-all-night chain restaurants, a Howard Johnson's or something. Or maybe the parking ticket guy who really doesn't seem to understand that you were just going to be on campus for a few minutes, and he really shouldn't be writing you that citation. Or your parents. You know, that sort of thing.

But if you're looking to escape that "I'm sorry, those are the rules" philosophy toward interpersonal relationships, you could always go down to Zelo.

At Zelo, you can dance with abandon. You can crack dumb jokes to the bartender. You can relax, slide down in your chair and not feel too slouchy, if you know what I mean.

For me and Alejandro, Zelo has always been that kind of place. Like the other day, we went in there to catch a bite to eat before the restaurant underwent its miraculous, Jekyll/Hyde (minus the bad parts) conversion into one of downtown's hippest nightclubs.

See, Alejandro and me, we wanted to have a couple cigarettes before dinner. Now I'm not saying you should smoke or anything, or that you have to if you want unbelievable service, but they were darn accommodating. See, Alejandro, he says to the hostess, "The only imperative is that we could have a cigarette," which means, essentially: "Smoking, please." And well, the front area was almost full, and there we didn't want to foul up anybody else's dinner, so the hostess, she says, "OK, hold on a minute."

Next thing we know, she's setting up a table in the middle of the dance floor in back, getting us chairs and a little candle in a jar and the whole business. Boom, table, just like that.

Needless to say, me and Alejandro were pretty impressed that someone would go to all that trouble just to accommodate an annoying habit. So there we were, beaming in contentment, sitting in the middle of an empty dance floor, drinking coffee. Boom, coffee, just like that.

All this isn't to say that you really want to get a table in the middle of the dance floor. It's just an example of how gosh darn friendly they are there, get it? I mean, if you're in the front section, in one of those booths or at a table beneath the nouveau-nouveau art all over the walls, you're in the lap of luxury. But maybe you want just that little extra something, you know you'll get it.

The good stuff at Zelo though — and I mean the good stuff — isn't so much the smiley-faced people or the chattery, fun-night-out atmosphere as the food. Zelo whips up a plateful of pasta quick and uh-huh delicious. Boom, plate full of pasta, just like that.

Boom, scallops and multi-colored ravioli, just like that.

And they've got specials all the time. Maybe you don't have that much money. Well, how's about $6.95 for all pasta dishes on Tuesday? With pesto and pine nuts and garlic and everything else you thought ought to be on your fettucine? That's what they thought.

Or maybe you're going to splurge, like I did, and land yourself a plate of steaming seafood ravioli, topped with scallops and shrimp and even some fresh spinach, all of it soaking quietly in a tangy but soft-spoken orange sauce.

Boom, scallops and multicolored ravioli, just like that.

And don't tell me Zelo doesn't know Santa Barbara. They've got vegetarian dishes left and right, just waiting for someone to pick them like so many cute puppies at the pet store. Lasagna, for instance, so rich and full of low-cholesterol goodness. They've also done up the meat dishes, from steak to chicken, with enough finesse to tempt even the most deliberate herbivore. Like turkey sausage in with your curly pasta under a hearty red sauce, for instance.

And do not get me started about the poppy seed-speckled honey mustard dressing. If I have to, I'll get into what it does to a salad of fresh baby greens, squash, tomato and a slice of jicama, but I'm not sure simple words do it justice. Boom, tang-y, just like that.

Zelo is located at 630 State St. in Santa Barbara. Price range: $6-13. Open for dinner from 5:30-9:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, and until 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. Phone 966-5792.

STAY HOME!

With Valentino's unbelievably healthy take-n-bake pizza, you can indulge your conscience and your palate

By Marsha Miller

Like a lot of Californians, I'm into the whole health thing. No crazy diets, just good, pure health. With my resolution for clean living, I thought I'd never taste pizza again — but then I found Valentino's Take 'N Bake Pizza, and I think I'm in love.

I'd heard about the place awhile ago — its right over there on Hollister — but never tried it until just last night. See, when I heard they had "healthy" pizza, I figured it'd be that diet stuff that tastes like cardboard. Boy, was I wrong!

The dough, it melts in your mouth. And you can tell all the toppings are fresh. I also found out that they use low-fat mozzarella cheese at Valentino's (and tons of it), as well as a scrumptious marinated sauce that doesn't contain any oils or fats. I tell you, with my two loves — pizza and health — this was the place for me.

Getting my third love, my boyfriend, to try it out was another matter. He's a real fast food type of guy, you know, likes anything dipped in grease. So he was even more skeptical than I when he heard about a healthy pizza. "Healthy pizza? Ha!"

We were both a little low on cash last night, though, and you can't beat the prices at Valentino's. He grudgingly agreed, so I called in our order, and we went to pick up our Take 'N Bake. The woman working there greeted us with a smile and handed us our pizza almost as soon as we walked through the door.

DAVID RUDDY/Daily Nexus

Makin' it quick, fast and good (for you)

In the car I could already tell how good it was going to be. My half, the vegetarian side, was unbelievable. It's nothing like those places that throw on a few dried-up mushrooms, onion and pepper bits, then have the nerve to call it veggie. No, sir. Valentino's vegetarian pizza is the real thing, piled high with fresh mushrooms, tomatoes, onions, bell peppers, olives and — are you ready? — zucchini. Zucchini! That's so good.

Of course I knew the real test would be Bud. I turned to him, half-expecting that "I-told-you-we-should-have-gone-to-the-grease-pit" look, but knowing at the same time that no one could mistake the tasty treat in which we were indulging. And he couldn't. No, Bud looked happier and more satisfied than a baby with a bottle.

Anyway, we got home, popped the pizza in the oven and it was ready before we knew it — just in time for "The Simpsons." The show was OK, but the pizza was divine. There's nothing like piping hot dough straight from the oven.

Did I mention that it's sugarless dough? Most places load up their stuff with so much sweetener and preservatives that it doesn't even taste like real food any more. But not at Valentino's. With Valentino's pizza, you know that every bite of the cheesy wonder is real goodness.

Valentino's is located at 4421 Hollister in Goleta. Open 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and noon until 8 p.m. on Sunday. Phone 967-7338.

Just Like It Ought to Be

It's thick when it should be thick, light when it should be light, and barring a miracle, it's just about the best Italian meal you'll get this side of Milan

By Aesop Johansson

Maxine, a friend of mine fresh in from a long voyage on the high seas, wanted to go to lunch. Which was understandable since she'd been away so long.

She said, "Let's go to lunch."

I, however, feeling a bit more like a real night out now that she was back, suggested we wait and go to dinner. "Why don't we go to dinner?" I said.

"OK," she said. So we went. After doing the Yellow Pages thing for 20 minutes, we finally settled on Chase Uptown.

Chase Uptown is like going to your favorite neighborhood Italian place for some good food. It's also like going to heaven.

As we arrived, we were met with a genuinely friendly smile and seated immediately by the hostess.

The decor inside Chase Uptown is subtly classy. Fresh lilies and candles adorn every table and the waitresses know their jobs. They have a full bar with televisions for watching sports, and a lengthy wine list, should your tastes so run.

Our waitress, Sarafina, was probably the nicest person I've ever met, next to Maxine of course, and was very attentive, in the sense that she paid us a lot of attention. But not too much attention, because that can be annoying.

As soon as we sat down, Sarafina brought us fresh bread and butter and a bowl of freshly grated parmesan cheese. Just like it should be in Italian restaurants.

Full bar? Yes, of course.

RACHEL WEILL/Daily News

Sure, it's not too imposing from the outside, but once it's inside, mmmm-mmm, you're satisfied.

Maxine had the eggplant parmigiana with a tossed salad and I had spinach ravioli in marinara sauce, also with a salad.

The salads arrived in no time. Mine was a caesar salad made with fresh ingredients and a fantastic dressing. Maxine wanted oil and vinegar and Sarafina brought her two little containers so Maxine could put just as much of each that she wanted. Like it should be.

Sarafina delivered our main course soon after we were done with our salads. Shockingly soon, actually. In addition to smelling and looking good, the dinners tasted wonderful.

"This is probably the best eggplant parmigiana I've ever had, and I've had many an eggplant parmigiana!" Maxine said.

"The dish is delicately seasoned so you don't feel like, stuffed. You just don't want to stop eating it," she added.

And I believe her. Only a fool would not: She's knows what's up now, and all that time riding the trade winds can really straighten you out.

My ravioli was cooked al dente just like all ravioli should be. All the pasta dishes come with your choice of sauces, and my marinara and spinach combination was succulent and delicious. God would like this pasta.

We finished off our meal with dessert. Maxine had cheesecake. I had a canoli.

The cheesecake, Maxine said, was excellent. Not like some cheesecakes that are really heavy and glue-like. This cheesecake, which Maxine let me try, was light and cake-like. But not too light and cake-like, you understand, it was just right. Like the kitchen in heaven would make it.

My canoli was just like canolis should be. It was both flaky and tender, and the filling was creamy and sweet. But not too sweet. It was just right. Perfect, in fact.

Chase Uptown is located at 3614 State Street in Santa Barbara. Price range: $7-15. Open 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. for lunch Monday through Saturday. Dinner starts at 4 p.m. Sunday Brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Phone 682-8218.

LOCAL COLOR

Anaconda

Prepare yourselves punk-rockers. Hometown boys, NOFX, will take the stage at the Anaconda next Sunday (May 23). Based in the Bay Area, NOFX plays punk music with occasional hints of funk, reggae, blues and more. These guys kick ass, so you'd be a fool to miss it. Opening for NOFX will be No Use For A Name and Agent 94, so be there plenty early or you'll miss out.
