Miss Ellen Bowers Receives 1953 La Cumbre Dedication

Announcement was made last night at the annual awards assembly that the 1953 La Cumbre was dedicated to Miss Ellen E. Bowers.

Miss Bowers, who holds an administrative position as assistant to the Dean of Women, has participated in Santa Barbara College life both on administrative and student levels. In her administrative position, she counsels women students, takes care of exchange housing, and serves on many administrative committees. On the student level, she is adviser to Phrateres, is a faculty representative on the Associated Students Council and works with students on all social events, and serves as faculty representative on Associated Students Committees, such as the Activities Control Board.

Her contributions to student life, made in addition to her indirect contributions through her administrative position have gained the appreciation of the students, expressed through the dedication of the 1953 La Cumbre.

New IFC Award Given At Awards Assembly

The Inter-Fraternity Council Achievement Award which was presented at the annual Awards Assembly marks the end of a year's study into the idea of presenting an award to the fraternity which makes the greatest all-around contribution to the fraternity system.

The award was first proposed in the spring of 1952 by Joe Costantino, then IFC president. At that time it was felt that extensive research should be conducted to determine the best possible method of valuating a fraternity's contribution.

Many schools, including Stanford, San Jose, Berkeley, UCLA, and USC, were contacted for information that would enable the judging committee to select the fraternity with the greatest all-around activities. It was finally decided to divide the judging into four categories: Athletics, student body activities, social activities, and public relations and awards. Each section is worth a maximum of 100 points and the fraternity with the highest over-all total will win the award.

Judging this semester will be a committee consisting of Elmer Bleidestel, spring president of IFC; Dale Humphries, vice president; Dr. Lyle Reynolds, dean of men; Dr. Theodore Harder, director of athletics; Miss Helen Sweet, dean of women; and Ted Troy, associated students president.

The new IFC Achievement Award trophy is a perpetual award to be presented each year.

VETERANS

Veterans under P.L. 550 and CVEI (State) should report to the Office of the Dean of Men before leaving campus after final examinations to sign their pay vouchers in order to get their checks for June.

P.L. 346 veterans should also call at the above office if they wish their terminal checks sent to some other address than their current one.

Wyles Library Gift Accepted by Regents

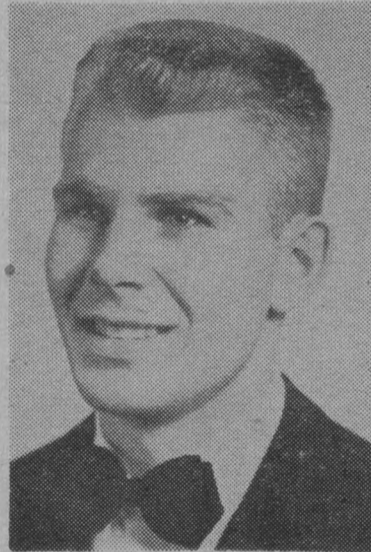

The regents of the University of California have accepted a $2500 gift from the William Wyles Library Board for Santa Barbara College. This gift will be used for the purchase of books, periodicals, manuscripts, microfilm and other items for the William Wyles Collection at the Santa Barbara College library.

The materials purchased this year from this gift will reflect the specialized and broad knowledge of Jay Monaghan, appointed in February as consultant to the Wyles Collection, according to Librarian Donald C. Davidson.

Monaghan has been working closely with Hobart F. Berolzheimer, acquisitions librarian, in checking holdings and recommending purchases of materials on Lincoln and western expansion both before and during the Civil War. Monaghan's relationship with other specialized collections has resulted in an accelerated receipt of materials which are unusually hard to find and which will greatly enrich the collection here.

The forthcoming move to the library building now under construction on the new campus at Goleta will aid in the adequate display and storage of the Wyles Collection. Special rooms are provided in the new structure for this valuable historical collection.

At their meeting, held Friday on the UC San Francisco campus, the Regents accepted a total of $696,602.12 in gifts and pledges for the entire University.

30 -- 30 -- 30

This is the time of the year when the editor says farewell and thanks everyone for all the assistance; I shall not be an exception. For me it's been a wonderful year, full of trials and experiences. I have learned a great deal about El Gaucho, and also about people.

I think I have had one of the best staffs in my three years of experience on the paper. I could not have managed without their cooperation and helpfulness, and now I want to thank them for everything. But there are three people I want to thank particularly.

Bob Alford, our director of publications who left yesterday for another job, taught me most of what I have learned about newspaper work. He has helped me with everything from forming policies to writing sports copy for El Gaucho. He has always been willing to give any assistance needed.

Dr. Graham Wilson has taught me to observe everything from the placing of a comma to happenings in world affairs. His advice has helped me immeasurably, and I only wish he were going to be here next year so that more students could have the opportunity to take newswriting from him.

It would have been hard to get along without Nancy McKee, who has done just about everything there is to do on the staff. And I appreciate especially her willingness to listen to my troubles and her ability to give sound advice.

Besides these three, there are many others. Just read through the staff box above. Every one of those listed has done a good job. Then there are the many students who contributed news to us, and also George Obern for his news releases, Mrs. Zane for pictures, Mr. Madden for painting the office, and Mr. Rood and the printers for putting up with me for a whole year.

Putting out El Gaucho is by no means a one-man operation; it takes the work of many, many people, and I appreciate all the assistance I received. Again I say thank you.

ON UP THE HILL - To Boredom . . .

By Djaughe (pronounced Joe)

I wandered into the Men's Room in the Administration Building the other day looking for someone upon whom I could press a few personal opinions. I spied a meek looking fellow who was combing his hair in a most suspicious manner—he was parting it on the left side (every good American knows that anything left of center is subversive).

I grabbed him by the shirt front, backed him up against the wall and snarled into his face, "I filled out the evaluation sheet on women which appeared in that yellow El Gaucho three weeks ago and you're going to listen to what I've got to say."

He trembled a little (I like to see people tremble) and muttered something unintelligible. I continued to grip him in a vise-like fist (I am strong because I am unsullied with such decadent tripe as an open mind).

"Listen, buddy. I know you've had to listen to my sophomoric blabber for lo, these many semesters. I know you don't think I'm amusing, but that doesn't matter, because I think so and that's all that's important. But you are obviously a stupid fellow and I am going to give you the benefit of my superior intellect. I am going to tell you the kind of a girl you should look for."

He was almost prostrate with fear by now (I like to scare people), so I proceeded.

"Every fellow should find a girl who likes the finer things in life. Like The Saturday Evening Post and the Los Angeles Examiner and Norman Rockwell and Fulton Lewis, Jr. Like Little Orphan Annie and Gregory Peck and the Reader's Digest.

"Someone who hit you in the teeth with the skillet and apologize so sweetly you don't mind. Someone who is smart enough to realize exactly what your intellect is and yet dumb enough to let you keep on thinking you're brilliant."

"Someone who is clever enough to become a minor league eclectic like I am—by reading book reviews in the New Yorker, remembering conversations of others and passing along the thoughts as my own. Someone who can become an intellectual name-dropper—if you spout a few names like Plato and Bach and Cezanne no one will think to question your knowledge, but just assume you really know what you're talking about.

By this time the fellow had fainted from boredom, but I didn't care. I had succeeded in imposing my ideas on him.

And my girl was standing outside the window listening. I had been public in my profession of affection and that's all I really wanted to do in the first place. Who cares about good taste?

UP ON THE HILL . . . by Joe Costantino

I walked around this campus UP ON THE HILL thinking of the days, nights, and hours that will be left behind soon. It was hard to stand there and look at the buildings without sensing the pageant of people and events that have gone by since that first September day in 1946 when I stood in line with 2300 other students waiting to register. Two ex-GI's had brought their sleeping bags that September and camped out in front of the entrance to the Women's Gym where the registration line was to start. It took three days to register and sign up for classes in those days—three days if you were lucky.

Those were the days of the vets, and I was one of them—just three days out of the Air Force, and wondering if I could once again learn to study.

A lot of people began parading across the gym lawn as I stood there. People who have been some of the greatest persons I have ever known.

I could almost picture Merlin Quo once again hurrying across the grass with his graphic camera in one hand, and a raft of flash bulbs in the other. He was the enigmatic Chinese boy who first brought me into the school's social circle and gave me my first start in student body affairs. A lot of other people have left their footprints on the campus here. Stan Becker—an artist with more ideas than any other one person I have ever known. A guy who slouched around campus knocking off little cartoons of scenes of our campus that most of us never bothered to see—scenes that were truer than life could be.

Walt Lee—a disillusioned, sometimes morose, GI who was one of the finest human beings I have ever known. A guy left with the scars of malaria, jungle warfare, and the memories of too many patrols against the Japs, and too many girls who never really understood.

Walt Beaver and Walt Arndt—two guys who could do just about anything. They wrote funny stories, acted in plays, wrote radio scripts, and made the El Gaucho office the scene of many happy hours.

And all the El Gaucho editors I wrote for, argued with, misunderstood and caused innumerable headaches. Freddie Burroughs, Chuck Bates, Tom Lyle, Bugs Battelle, Phyllis Pitroff, Bob Tomlinson, Bob Alford, and Georgia Baciu.

And the girls from the "old days"—those great Alpha Theta's and Delta Zeta's. . . Marianna Richardson, Frances Karpe, Patty Parslow, "Mike" Melvin, Barbara Rush, Junie Marie Davidson, Del Tatum and the Tau Gams, The Sigma Delta's, the Phi Kappa Sigmas, the Gamma Delta Chi's, the DSE's. All sororities from the "old days."

I looked over at the Ad building and I remembered too many Galloping Gauchos, Roadrunner Reviews, Assemblies, Rallies, and plays that have gone across the boards. Hamlet; George Washington Slept Here; Ah, Wilderness; and all the great speech people too. Paul Kliss, Dean Dillman, Noni Williams, Arndt, Beaver, and Alan Robb.

And while I'm digging around these embers of days that are now just memories—I'd like to give my thanks to the many teachers who have opened the whole field of knowledge up for me. Especially I'd like to thank four people who made the greatest impression. First of all, Dr. Palmer and Speech II class. The day I stood on quaking knees and gave my first speech he said, "Costantino, you have the worst enunciation, attack, and rhythm I have ever heard." And how he worked to change those.

Then there was Dr. Quimby's Oral Reading Class that opened another important door for me. The many things I learned from him that I don't think he realized he was teaching me. And how I learned that it isn't really how you say it, but what you are saying that really counts. After that class I learned to be able to forget technique so I could speak directly from inside, saying what I felt most deeply.

Mrs. Haight and her Short Story class—the one that has increased my appreciation of all literature by about 2000%. And Dr. Adams, the professor who taught me how important it really is to know how little we really do know. And who also taught me to learn to think and analyze for myself the things that were written in books.

And while I'm talking about faculty, my thanks to Dr. Reynolds, Dr. Jacobs, Dean Sweet, and the Provost for being more than patient and understanding in times of trouble.

I also can feel the many wordless ideas that have been implanted inside me by the people that I had selected as models and guides for my college career—Don Marquart, Dick Church, Al Rasmussen, and the men I worked with in IFC—Ed McCann, Bill Cunningham, Bill Tierney, Elmer Bliedistel, Art Clark, Don Sherwin, Roy Barringer, and Marc Wallace—some of the greatest leaders you could find on any campus.

I can remember all the football games, the pledge ditches, the fraternity parties, the formals, the dances, the beach time, the hours in the library, the conventions, trips, and basketball games I played in, the games I watched, and the track, tennis, and volleyball events.

And most of all, the many people I have forgotten to name, but who will be invisible strings tying my memories to this campus UP ON THE HILL.

President Sproul, Provost Williams Explain Benefit in Attending Santa Barbara College

Special to El Gaucho—

Provost J. Harold Williams, in a statement issued to El Gaucho this week, reminded students that Santa Barbara College is desirous of increasing the enrollment and would welcome new students who meet the entrance requirements. He urged, however, that students get accurate information on these entrance requirements from the catalog when encouraging their friends to come to Santa Barbara College.

Students planning to enter Santa Barbara College for the first time next fall should begin making plans for application very soon, he stated. The deadline of Aug. 15 has been set for the submission of applications and credentials to the registrar for admission next fall.

He pointed out that regular admission requirements, however, are not required for the forthcoming six-week summer session scheduled from June 29 to Aug. 8. This not only offers a continuation of the student's educational program but provides the freshman student with an opportunity to become acclimated to college academic life.

President Robert Gordon Sproul is also encouraging students planning to attend the University of California to consider carefully the relative merits of its small campuses, including Santa Barbara College.

"No large university can match the virtues and advantages of the best small liberal arts colleges in the field of their special interests," he said, "just as no small college can hope to provide the wide range of offerings and opportunities that the University of California on its major campuses spreads before each of its students."

The decision on the part of The Regents of the University to take over Santa Barbara College, and to establish a college of letters and science at Riverside and Davis, was based upon the need for increased facilities to take care of a flood of students now moving up through the elementary and secondary schools, and upon a desire to provide small colleges at strategic points in the state to balance the large campuses at Berkeley and Los Angeles, and give young people of California a greater variety of opportunities.

"Each of these colleges—one at Riverside and one at Santa Barbara—has its own special character, but both emphasize in their organization smaller class enrollments, a closer relationship between student and teacher, new techniques of laboratory and classroom instruction, and a better integration of knowledge to produce well-rounded graduates.

"All courses offered on these campuses, as on all eight campuses, will be of University of California quality, and the graduates of the colleges will merit and receive regular University of California degrees," he concluded.

Registrar Explains Student Probation And Reinstatement at Santa Barbara College

The results of the psychological examinations for entering students show that students at Santa Barbara College rate as high as those in four-year colleges throughout the nation. But a comparison of the "flunk rates" shows that ours is not as high as that of many other institutions. Some state institutions are required by law to admit all or nearly all high school graduates. In these instances, academic failure is apt to be at a very high rate. Often as many as half of the freshman class fail. Santa Barbara College has selective admission; that is, an applicant must meet certain subject patterns and scholarship standards in order to be admitted. Such selectivity tends to reduce the number of scholastic deficiencies.

Students involved in scholastic difficulties are given careful guidance in order to assure their best welfare and that of the college. Regulations are found in the General Catalogue (p. 33-34, 1953-54 edition), and should be thoroughly studied. Early warning is to the student's advantage, since he then has a good chance to improve his grade-point average.

Sigma Kappa Officers Installed Recently

At a recent ceremony Sigma Kappa installed the officers for the Fall term. Shirley Anderson was installed as president by out-going President Harriet Nichols. Shirley, a junior, is an Art major from Arcadia and has been active in Junior Panhellenic.

The following elected officers were also installed: first vice-president, Joan McCullough; second vice-president, Priscilla Simms; recording secretary, Frances Lach; corresponding secretary, Joyce Moffat, and registrar, Jo Ann Stanley.

Editors Hold Workshop For Journalism Students

Journalism and its phases on campus were discussed at the journalism workshop held last Wednesday.

Sue Bullis, editor of the 1953 La Cumbre; Georgia Baciú, editor of the 1952-1953 El Gaucho; and Lois Jaral, editor of the 1952-1953 Student Directory were speakers. Positions and opportunities in journalism on this campus were topics covered.

The event was sponsored by Alpha Phi Gamma to foster journalism on campus.

Bodies Politic

Political science majors total 63, of which 46 are men and 17, women.

In general, a student with low scholarship either will be placed on probation or will be subject to dismissal. A student placed on probation, for grades slightly under a "C" average, will be required to take a reduced unit load the following semester. A student may be on probation and still be very near a "C" average. At Santa Barbara a student is placed on probation who has less scholastic deficiency than those who are placed on probation on many campuses, chiefly because it is believed that a student needs to be warned early of need to raise his grade-point average and not after his scholastic status becomes so hazardously low that recovery is almost impossible. The great majority of students at Santa Barbara College on probation achieve regular status after one semester on probation.

Serious deficiency subjects the student to dismissal. In such a case, the student may petition reinstatement through the Dean of Men or Women to the Committee on Reinstatement. If the petition is granted, the student contracts with the Committee to maintain a certain grade-point average. Failure to fulfill the terms of this contract nearly always results in the student's dismissal.

Santa Barbara's scholarship standards may be better understood by comparison with UCLA. In UCLA's College of Letters and Science at the end of the fall semester a year ago, 6.5% of students were subject to dismissal. At Santa Barbara last February, a year later, 5% were subject to dismissal. Other statistics from UCLA indicate that normally close to 50% of these are readmitted or continued on probation. Of the 50% at UCLA who are dismissed, about half are by action of the Dean, and half are automatic—that is, the student does not apply for reinstatement. Santa Barbara normally reinstates about 50% of those students who are subject to dismissal. Of the 50% who are dismissed, two-thirds are those who do not apply for reconsideration and one-third are those who are not considered to be able to do a creditable quality of work at the time, but who may be able to do so at a later date. On the same above dates, comparative probationary statistics for the two colleges are: UCLA, 6.7%; Santa Barbara, 9.2%.

These data would indicate that, although Santa Barbara's grading standard is high, a conservative number of students fall in the very low scholarship brackets. Of these, less than one-fifth actually have been dismissed who apply for reinstatement.

DAVE GORRIE TOPS BASEBALL STATISTICS

End of Season Finds Veteran Outfielder Sporting Fabulous .422 Batting Average

Although the Santa Barbara College baseball team has finished the schedule with a mediocre 13-17 record, there is some reason for rejoicing on the Gaucho campus. Centerfielder Dave Gorrie finished the 30-game season with a gaudy .422 batting average and topped off his CCAA year with an average of .519 in 15 conference games.

Gorrie, the senior from Pasadena, thus ends one of the most illustrious careers in Santa Barbara history. He was twice an All-CCAA selection in football and is almost assured of a spot on the mythical all-star team in baseball this year.

He slammed out eight doubles, three triples, five home runs and accounted for 37 runs batted in.

Two other All-CCAA baseball players had relatively bad years in 1953. Shortstop Bill Davis, although he proved to be the smoothest fielding shortfielder in the conference hit only .231 in CCAA play. Pitcher Jerry McIlvaine, who made the all-conference team as a sophomore in 1952, wound up with a record of 2-4 this year.

But the Gauchos did have one of the best second basemen in the league—Dave Townley. He wound up with a .311 batting average.

The Gauchos lose five men off the regular starting line-up. Gone next year will be Catcher Ray Knerr, First Baseman Ray Rubenstein, Pitcher Bob Emirhanian and Davis and Gorrie.

Emirhanian was the most effective pitcher this year. He worked 46 1-3 innings in conference play, allowed 12 earned runs for an average of 2.33 per game, walked 14, struck out 19 and won three games while losing three.

BILL DAVIS has ended a brilliant career in Gaucho athletics. A three-year letterman in both football and baseball, Davis has gained all-conference honors in both sports—in baseball in 1952 and in football the same year.

Sports Editorial

You may notice two other stories on the sports pages of El Gaucho this week—both of which, in one way or another, say goodby to men who have been vital factors in Gaucho athletics for the past few years.

Dave Gorrie and Roy Engle, one a player and the other a coach, are both leaving. Another athlete is leaving and his departure has been somewhat overlooked. Let it be said here that Bill Davis has also contributed more than his normal share to the success of recent SBC football and baseball teams. The fact that he can claim honors as both an all-conference football player and as a baseball player is testimony enough as to his worth.

Another individual is leaving, and the cries of regret are considerably less than those shed over the departure of Messrs. Gorrie, Engle and Davis. It's me (I should say it is I, but some people get annoyed when a sportswriter is grammatical).

In three years connected with Gaucho athletes, as a reporter for the local newspaper, as editor of El Gaucho and as director of publicity, I have formed a pretty definite picture of the athletic program here on the Riviera and I am going to usurp this space for a final dissertation on that subject.

I believe that the departure of Engle, Gorrie and Davis marks an end of an era for Santa Barbara—unless something changes.

There is considerable unrest in the department of physical education and an equal amount of dissatisfaction among the athletes. There are a couple of good reasons.

The Associated Students of Santa Barbara College underwrite the athletic program—except for the coaches, who are hired by the university as regular members of the physical education department. The students are dependent upon the administration to the extent that the competence of the coaching program is entirely in the hands of University authorities and the head of the physical education department.

Engle's dismissal—and it amounted to that, no matter what you may read to the contrary, is indicative of a trend which is detrimental to the athletic program. His place on the faculty is to be taken by a man who is eminently qualified under the requirements of the University—he is a scholar, an expert in research, has a doctor's degree, and he's one of the nicest guys you'd ever want to meet. But he is not qualified to coach.

There are others in the P. E. department with the same qualifications. They are exactly what the University ordered and it is not to their discredit that they are unable to assist with the athletic program because that is not required by the authorities.

But there is a basic weakness to that procedure. Whether we like to admit it or not, the youth of America put a great deal of value on athletics. An adequate sports program is the greatest public relations medium a college can have. But now, when Santa Barbara College is crying for students, the authorities are taking a distinctly patronizing and backhand attitude toward athletics.

The athletes know what is going on. They are not happy. The days when we could depend on graduating seniors like Gorrie and Davis to "sell" Santa Barbara to high school and junior college athletes are over. The administration is unenthusiastic about athletics and that attitude is affecting the athletes themselves.

Of course the irony of the whole thing is this—if we cannot attract athletes to the college there will be no physical education department. All those beautiful doctor's degrees will be wasted on classes of two and three people.

It may be said that the students have no right to question the employment practices of the university since the latter furnishes free coaching. But I believe that, for the mutual benefit of both the administration and the student body, a more realistic attitude should be adopted. The students may get free coaching, but they also provide the athletic program which attracts students in the physical education department. It would appear quite obvious that the welfare of athletics is directly correlated with the welfare of the P. E. department.

Let it be clearly understood, before I close, that this little piece was not prompted by any specific complaint from any one individual. It is the impression derived from an intimate association with Santa Barbara College's sports scene. The protest is only the result of a desire to see Gaucho athletics prosper and grow and a belief that it is impossible under the present circumstances.

Bob Alford

ENGLE TO LEAVE SBC

Roy Engle, head baseball coach and assistant football coach at Santa Barbara College, revealed recently he has signed a contract to coach at San Diego Hoover High School next season. The former USC athlete said he didn't know what his duties would be at San Diego but that he would be assigned to the Hoover coaching staff in some capacity.

Engle has been at Santa Barbara College for five years, during which he served three seasons as head football coach, winning 14 games and losing 15. He headed the baseball team for two seasons and last year wound up in a tie for the CCAA championship with San Diego State. Last year he was backfield coach under Stan Williamson, who returned after a leave of absence during which he coached the San Diego Naval Air Station.

Engle thus returns to his alma mater, where he starred in football and baseball before enrolling at USC. He coached briefly at Hoover High before World War II, went into the Navy, and then served as an assistant coach under Jeff Cravath at USC before coming to Santa Barbara.

Engle's contract at Santa Barbara College reportedly was not renewed because of "economic" reasons and a resultant cutdown of the Gaucho physical education staff.

Williamson thus is left without an assistant for the coming football season, with the departure of Engle and the granting of a sabbatical to assistant coach Doc Kelliher.

Athletic Director Spud Harder said, however, that his department has been authorized to hire a one-year replacement of Kelliher.

 As Navigation Officer, is the pilot's guiding hand on every flight!
 As Radar Officer, is master of a new science and operator of the device that sees beyond human sight!
 As Aircraft Performance Engineer Officer, is the one who "keeps the plane flying", the man who knows his plane inside and out, who keeps it fit for the skies and sees that it stays there!

If YOU can accept a challenge like this, you'll take your place beside the best—you'll find your future in the clouds!

TO BE QUALIFIED you must be single, a citizen, between 19 and 26½ years old, have had at least 2 years of college and be in tip top physical shape. If this describes you, then YOU, too, can qualify. Today!
