Commission Holds ARCO EIR Decision Until March

(Editor's Note: Due to the large turnout and emotional testimony at yesterday's State Lands Commission hearing, a second article will appear in Friday's Nexus to relate comments not published in today's article as a result of space limitations.)

By Larry Speer
County Editor

The State Lands Commission postponed certification of the final environmental impact report for ARCO's Coal Oil Point Project at a hearing Wednesday in Santa Barbara.

The hearing was the second opportunity in the last two weeks for local citizens to comment on ARCO's plan to develop offshore oil leases directly adjacent to UCSB and Isla Vista.

Yesterday's hearing occurred after local residents demanded an opportunity to comment on the final draft of the EIR. Approximately 40 people testified in the first four-hour session yesterday. The Board of Supervisors' hearing room was overflowing with people, partly due to approximately 45 UCSB students who traveled to the hearing in Associated Students-sponsored buses.

Most public opinion was similar to the testimony given at the previous hearing, where speakers strongly opposed ARCO. Third District Supervisor Bill Wallace, Santa Barbara Mayor Sheila Lodge, UCSB Interim Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich, area residents, professors and students all attacked portions of the EIR and the project itself.

Yesterday's testimony follows a seven-hour hearing on the EIR's preliminary draft Jan. 13, heard by State Lands Commission members Lt. Gov. Leo T. McCarthy, State Controller Gray Davis and Deputy Finance Department director Nancy Ordway, who represents Finance Department director (See ARCO, p.5)

Reagan-proposed Financial Aid Cut May Drastically Affect Middle-class Students

By Sheryl Nelson
Reporter

If President Reagan's proposed 45-percent reduction in student financial aid assistance is approved by Congress, students could experience a dramatic decrease in the amount of aid and loan money they receive.

The proposal "eliminates campus-based programs such as work-study, supplement grants and national direct student loans," UCSB financial aid director Michael Alexander said. "An income-contingent loan program would also be added and loan payments would be based on the student's earnings after graduation from college," he explained.

In addition, $1.1 billion would be cut from Pell Grants and $1.9 billion would be taken from Guaranteed Student Loans, Alexander said. "There would also be an interest subsidy, and interest rates would increase," he added.

According to Alexander, approximately 7,000 UCSB students would lose or see reduction in their financial aid. "Even though UCSB is a relatively low-cost school, we would be impacted. No one earning over $20,000 a year would be eligible for the Pell Grant, so only the very low-income would receive aid," he said.

California's university system requires federal funding, said Karen Strickland, legislative assistant to California U.S. Sen. Pete Wilson. Congress has contravened every proposal to cut education in recent years.

"In all likelihood, these funds will be restored," Strickland predicted. (See AID CUTS, p.5)

Give Life — UCSB sophomore Karen Broome donates one of 135 units of blood raised in Wednesday's Tri-Counties Blood Bank campus blood drive. Although the amount raised was less than last quarter's drive, organizers called the day a huge success.

ISVT Leaving Town; Zuma Beach Considered

By Noah Finz
Assistant County Editor

For the first time in 10 years, the Inter-Sorority Volleyball Tournament will not be held in Santa Barbara.

At the end of last summer, the Santa Barbara City Council passed legislation banning East Beach events having more than 5,000 people in attendance, Mayor Sheila Lodge said. This policy was a direct result of the event, she added.

"It was totally disruptive to the area, and it doesn't do anything for Santa Barbara. Last year it just got too big. A crowd like that cannot even get anywhere near the courts," Lodge claimed.

"Basically we just outgrew ourselves," ISVT Chair Steve Savinski said. "It started for just sororities at UCSB and kept growing every year. Last year there were just too many problems."

The sponsor of the event, the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, said it was not expecting the event to be prohibited from the beach. "It was a shock. We were all pretty upset about it," Savinski said.

"Last year was just the last straw," Lodge explained. "People were defecating and urinating all over, destroying private property."

According to Savinski, members of Lambda Chi Alpha have not given up the idea of holding the event. They are currently looking into making Zuma Beach in Malibu the new location, he said.

"We would like to prove that we can put on a responsible event in Los Angeles. After we prove this, maybe eventually we could move it back up to Santa Barbara," he added.

Whether the event will be held at Zuma Beach will be decided at a meeting tomorrow between Lambda Chi Alpha representatives and the Malibu Sheriff's Department.

"Basically we just outgrew ourselves. It started for just sororities at UCSB and kept growing every year. Last year there were just too many problems."

— Steve Savinski

The department's main consideration is the amount of security required, said Lt. Jerry Konklin. "We also have to consider the kind of crowd that they anticipate. We will also take into consideration what happened in Huntington Beach last year," he said, referring to the rioting that occurred there during the annual Ocean Pacific Pro Surfing Championship.

Lambda Chi Alpha needs only to be granted permission by the Sheriff's Department to secure a permit for the use of the beach, Department of Beaches and Harbors agent Gene Shimazaki said.

"The cost of the permit is 10 percent of the gross receipts plus a $250 deposit which is refundable. They are also required to have $1 million of general liability insurance," Shimazaki said.

If the event is held in Malibu, alcohol will be prohibited from the beach. "We don't plan to promote any parties," Savinski said.

Bob Buchanon, lieutenant of the Los Angeles County lifeguards, has already been notified of the event. "We will have to bring out extra restroom facilities, and depending on the weather, more lifeguards. There will also have to be an increase in law enforcement."

"We really enjoy having these types of events. I hope that everyone has a good time," Buchanon said.

In the event that Lambda Chi Alpha cannot secure a permit for Zuma Beach, "we will have to regroup and put ISVT on hold for a year," Savinski said.

Last year the event raised $13,000, all of which was donated to the Special Olympics. "This year we hope to make $20,000, which will also be donated to charity," he added.

"The amount of money they raised is not worth it," Lodge asserted. It costs us a great deal of money for police enforcement," she said.

"I think that Zuma Beach is better," Sgt. Ron Hurd of the Isla Vista Foot Patrol said. "It is one less big weekend for us, which costs a little bit less for overtime."

A crowd of 20,000 people will be expected this year if the Malibu Sheriff's Department gives the fraternity the okay, Savinski predicted.

"These guys seem real responsible. I don't think that we are going to have any problems," Konklin said.

Filipino Troops Fire Tear Gas as Warning to Holed-up Rebels

MANILA, Philippines — Government troops fired warning shots of tear gas tonight at more than 200 rebels holding a walled broadcast center in suburban Manila after they ignored an ultimatum to surrender.

"Don't let this get worse, declare your surrender," an officer shouted through a bullhorn. "The Filipino people are asking you to please think this over thoroughly so we can solve this problem. We beseech you to come out."

The center was the last position held by rebels linked to deposed President Ferdinand Marcos who attempted a pre-dawn coup Tuesday, the most serious challenge by right-wing military members since Corazon Aquino came to power 11 months ago.

The commander of the 1,000 government troops surrounding the studios of Channel 7 and DZBB radio station in Quezon City told the rebels to surrender within 30 minutes.

Five tear gas canisters were fired at the compound after the deadline passed in what an officer described as a warning. There was no indication the rebels were about to surrender.

Mrs. Aquino has vowed to punish all those who participated in the failed coup, which involved attempted takeovers of other media and military facilities around Manila.

Anglican Envoy Waite Missing Eight Days; UK Begins Search

BEIRUT, Lebanon — British diplomats ventured into Moslem West Beirut seeking clues to whether hostage negotiator Terry Waite had become the latest kidnap victim.

Nothing has been heard from Waite, who was last seen eight days ago when he left his hotel in West Beirut for secret talks with Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem group that holds two Americans.

A report Monday night by Kuwait's official news agency KUNA said the kidnapers bargaining with Waite had placed him under house arrest in a secret location after negotiations "snerled." It quoted unidentified sources close to the talks.

Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, spiritual head of the Anglican Church, said he had no direct evidence to confirm the report, but was "greatly concerned."

In Britain, the Foreign Office said late Tuesday that British diplomats had traveled to West Beirut trying to follow up leads on Waite, without success.

All Quiet on Iran-Iraq Warfront; No New Offensives Reported

FISH LAKE, Iranian-Occupied Iraq — Earthen walls built by since-retreated Iraqi defenders are among the few landmarks on the bleak, muddy plain Iran captured in its drive into southern Iraq.

Artillery shells fired by Iraqi defenders further inside Iraq sent up geysers of water and mud in Fish Lake, a manmade body of water that served as an Iraqi defense just inside the border. Other shells exploded on land with a loud crack and dark plumes of smoke.

Foreign journalists made a brief tour of the captured zone Monday, watching as Iran's Revolutionary Guards worked feverishly to reshape the fortifications left behind by the Iraqis.

Iranian commanders say about 60 square miles of Iraqi territory has been taken during the offensive, named Karbala-5 by the Iranians. Iran quickly advanced to within six miles of Basra, a major port city on the Shaat-al-Arab waterway that leads north into Iraq from the Persian Gulf.

In the past 10 days, however, the two sides have reported little significant movement in their front lines despite heavy fighting.

Reagan Talks About Iran Arms; Democrats Still Not Satisfied

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, saying "I took a risk ... it did not work," has appealed to Congress to put aside its preoccupation with the Iran-contra controversy, but the Democrats say he still must clear away the sense of mistrust the affair has evoked.

Reagan used his sixth annual report on his view of the nation Tuesday night to briefly express regret over the failed initiative that involved selling arms to Iran and then plead: "Now ladies and gentlemen of the Congress, why don't we get to work?"

It was a speech marked by Reagan's characteristic optimism, cheerfulness, nostalgia and patriotism, but a few moments later, Democrats were on the television screens with their response, insisting on answers to their questions about Iran.

On other matters, the president deplored the deficit but rejected a tax increase to reduce it as "shopworn," and called for a system of insurance to shelter Americans from catastrophic health bills and a reworking of the nation's "welfare monster."

Reagan also said that "the world is a safer place" because of the big Pentagon buildup. He also vowed not to bargain away the Star Wars missile defense program.

But when the president had finished, the Democrats talked mostly of the arms sale.

"The sale of arms to Iran — in direct contradiction to our stated foreign policy — raises real questions about trust," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va. "But it also raises real doubts about competence."

"The administration has the obligation to tell 'we the people' exactly what led to the arms-for-hostage deal — and what happened to accountability in the White House," Byrd said.

State Department Prepares to Block U.S. Travel to Lebanon

WASHINGTON — The State Department is set to announce restrictions on travel to Lebanon to try to force remaining U.S. citizens to leave the country and to discourage other Americans from going there, a U.S. official said today.

Exceptions to the passport restrictions will be made for the families of the eight Americans held hostage by terrorist groups in the Middle Eastern country. Journalists and others may also apply for special permission to go there.

Otherwise, U.S. passports will no longer be valid for travel in Lebanon, the official, who demanded anonymity, told the Associated Press. He said the estimated 1,500 U.S. citizens in the country will be given a brief period to leave before their passports also become invalid.

An announcement is expected at the State Department in midafternoon. Only travel to Libya is similarly restricted.

The U.S. action restricting travel represents an admission by Washington that it can no longer protect Americans in the country.

Accused American Spy Returns to U.S. from Nicaragua Prison

MIAMI — Sam Wesley Hall, a self-styled soldier of fortune accused of spying in Nicaragua, flew home to the United States today after telling the Nicaraguan people he was sorry he "tried to ambush them."

Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, was in Miami today to greet his brother, said Michael Gessel, a spokesman in the Ohio congressman's office.

"I have just one thing to say to the Nicaraguan people," the 49-year-old Hall told reporters before boarding a flight to Costa Rica this morning after being released from custody. "I'm sorry I tried to ambush them."

The Sandinistas say Hall was released because he is mentally unstable.

Physicians Sue State Over Cuts in Medi-Cal Program Paybacks

SACRAMENTO — The California Medical Association has gone to court to try to block Gov. George Deukmejian's planned cuts in payments to doctors and others who serve Medi-Cal patients.

Claiming the cuts are illegal, the doctors' group filed its suit Tuesday at the Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

It is the second suit filed in less than a week against the 10 percent cuts scheduled to take effect next week. Last Friday, the California Pharmacists Association filed a separate suit.

State officials declined to comment on both suits. "As a matter of policy we do not comment on pending litigation," said Department of Health Services spokesman Bill Ihle.

CMA President-elect Frederick Armstrong of San Jose said the suit on behalf of 60,000 California physicians alleges, among other things, that the cuts are being made without the required public hearings.

Armstrong also said that if more physicians withdraw from the Medi-Cal program because of the cuts, California may fall below the minimum federal requirements to provide needy citizens with equal access to health care, jeopardizing federal Medi-Cal funds.

The federal government reimburses the state for roughly half of the $5 billion annual cost of the health care program for 3 million welfare recipients and other low-income Californians.

Moving to offset part of projected $280 million deficit in the massive health program, Deukmejian ordered 10 percent cuts beginning Feb. 1 in rates the state reimburses physicians, pharmacists and other health-care providers for treatment of Medi-Cal patients.

Those cuts, expected to reduce state costs by $18.7 million over the remaining five months of the 1986-87 fiscal year, would be followed by yet still-unspecified reforms intended to cut $150 million in the 1987-88 fiscal year.

EPA Denies Request for More Dumping of Sewage in Ocean

LOS ANGELES — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has denied a request by county sanitation officials to continue dumping partially treated sewage in the Pacific Ocean.

Environmentalists praised the decision, which follows EPA rejection of similar requests by sewage officials in the cities of Los Angeles and Oxnard.

"It's wonderful," said Dorothy Green, president of Heal the Bay. "I think it sets a precedent for the rest of the state. I hope we can keep the pressure on so no waivers are granted."

The County Sanitation Districts, an independent agency providing sewage service to most county areas outside the city of Los Angeles, must decide within 45 days whether to appeal the decision, which could require sanitation officials to spend about $200 million to expand treatment systems at the Carson plant.

The waiver would have allowed part of the 260 million gallons of sewage treated daily at the Carson Plant to be discharged into the ocean at the Palos Verdes Peninsula without undergoing full treatment.

Preliminary Hearing Waived in Ongoing Ferdinandson Case

By Steven Elzer
Contributing Editor

It was a quick day in court Wednesday for Holger Chris Ferdinandson, the UCSB facilities management administrator accused of 11 counts of felony embezzlement from UCSB.

Ferdinandson waived his right to a preliminary hearing before South Coast Municipal Court Judge Joseph Lodge in a proceeding that lasted less than three minutes. He is now scheduled to appear in Superior Court on Feb. 11.

Ferdinandson and his attorney, Terry Cannon, are working actively with Deputy District Attorney Patrick McKinley in hopes of arranging a plea bargain. The preliminary hearing, a formalized fact-finding process conducted to ascertain if the case is strong enough to proceed to trial, was waived because most of the evidence is contained in verifiable documents.

"This is a paper case, a document case," Cannon said, explaining "if we don't strike a bargain" it will become necessary to take the case to trial. And that is an option Cannon would rather avoid.

Ferdinandson could spend a maximum of 10 years in state prison, Cannon said. Through a negotiated plea bargain, "we hope to cut that substantially," he said.

Additionally, a court could fine up to $10,000 for each of the 11 counts.

"He's probably going to have to spend some time in state prison," the defense attorney said, noting the length of the term will likely be "several years." Ferdinandson is aware of his potential prison exposure.

He had no comment as he left the courtroom Wednesday morning. Cannon has said that Ferdinandson is in a position to corroborate evidence which the district attorney has in regards to former UCSB Chancellor Robert Huttenback and several of the local contractors arrested in connection with the case.

Both attorneys agreed that allegations against Ferdinandson don't really involve Huttenback, except peripherally. "The Huttenback case is basically separate from Chris' case. Huttenback made his own bed and now he's going to have to lie in it.... He's exposed, no doubt about it," Cannon said.

McKinley declined to comment about the investigation of the former chancellor and his wife Freda, except to say that the investigation is continuing.

Ferdinandson remains suspended from his job as manager of operations and maintenance. He was placed on "investigatory leave without pay, effective Jan. 5," according to UCSB public information representative Joan Magruder.

Union Activist Nowicki Relates Story of '30s Labor Movement

By Celia Alario
Reporter, and
Anne Claridy
Staff Writer

Former union organizer Stella Nowicki, using her 40 years of union activism as an example, told a packed Buchanan Hall audience how to improve workers' social, political and economic status Tuesday night.

Nowicki worked in Chicago's slaughterhouses in the 1930s and helped organize her co-workers into unions to fight for safety regulations, racial and sexual equality, and workers' compensation.

In the award-winning film documentary "Union Maids," shown prior to Nowicki's lecture, Nowicki recalled working at incredible speeds and in tremendous danger for 14 hours per day, with the constant threat of injury due to unsafe machinery.

"The worst thing about the work is that the work was so monotonous," Nowicki explained. "We stood for long hours and we couldn't talk. I was gregarious, and when I tried to talk, the foreman would yell at me and tell me to shut up."

Driven with desire to improve conditions and demand fair treatment of employees, Nowicki and others circulated an underground leaflet titled "Yards-Worker."

Her perseverance later resulted in formation of the Congress of Industrial Organizations in 1935. As president of the 5,000-member Stockyard Workers' Union chapter in Chicago, Nowicki was singled out as the only woman on the board. These achievements, however, were not without struggle, she explained.

"When discouraged, I relied on the union members for support I could not get at home," she said.

According to Nowicki, union meetings served as a way for workers to voice complaints about their job, and as a way to plan their course of action. "Meetings were extremely important. We felt that we each had a moral responsibility to each other and to exercise our citizenship," she said.

As a secretary at the University of Chicago, Nowicki has worked to organize 1,800 clericals. By promoting stable work forces and rules applying to all employees, she is still working to make changes in the unions, which she believes are far too conservative and not interested enough in organizing workers.

"We have to address problems in the work force. Child care for working women of our country is essential. Unions were pushing for this back in World War II. Some unions do provide child care, but more need to. If women with children have to work, then where are the day-care facilities?" she demanded.

The Reagan administration, with its cuts in education and union funds, has been a catalyst for unionism. "Reagan has thrown us together. People are forming citizens' action groups. The situation looks good, but we have to push toward directly what we want," she said.

"We have to get involved, but it is not always easy. Learn all you can and just don't give up," she

"We have to address problems in the work force. Child care for working women of our country is essential. Unions were pushing for this back in World War II."

told the audience. "If someone says an organization is bad, most of the time it is because no one is doing anything."

Nowicki believes that mass movements for social change must be a joint effort of organizers and those they want to organize. "It becomes a ripple effect. What each one does to participate in some social program makes a difference. We start development and growth as human beings," she claimed.

Associated Students Lobby director Ken Greenstein believes Nowicki's visit to UCSB was helpful for younger activists. "She's had some positive things to say about the transformation of society and I think she's accomplished a lot for workers with her activism and hard work," he said.

Panel Examining UCSB Facility Rental Policy

By Tonya Graham
News Editor

The Regulations Review Panel will conduct a hearing Monday, Feb. 2 to hear testimony from members of campus groups affected by the recent enforcement of a UCSB facility rental charge.

The policy change, enacted Fall Quarter, only affects religious and campaigning political organizations. Such groups must now pay $8.42 per hour to use campus facilities for anything above "incidental and occasional use," currently defined as once per quarter. The charge does not apply to use of the UCen, because it has its own regulations.

The Activities Planning Center began charging the groups after complaints arose about the university indirectly subsidizing religious and political activities by letting the groups use facilities free of charge, APC director Naomi Johnson explained.

Campus regulations require that, because "the university must remain neutral on religious and political matters," it must therefore "not subsidize political or religious activities.... Thus special arrangements may be necessary to assure that such activities/programs be produced at no cost to the campus."

Johnson, who felt "uncomfortable" with the regulation, wrote a letter to Dean of Students Leslie Lawson, who chairs the review panel, asking that the panel examine the regulation. She asked that the panel develop a definition of what constitutes "occasional and incidental use," as well as define "university facilities."

The panel also received a letter from Ron Smith, minister for Campus Advance for Christ, asking the university to reconsider its decision to charge the groups. He believes the fee is unconstitutional.

At its first meeting of the quarter, the panel set a time for Monday's hearing and developed a list of invitations for people who will give testimony.

Smith will present evidence at the hearing from a Supreme Court case, Widmar vs. Vincent, in which the Supreme Court ruled in favor of a student group at the University of Missouri that had been denied the right to hold meetings on campus.

The Supreme Court said that the university was denying the group its constitutional right to freedom of speech. The court said religious groups should not be treated differently than other campus groups.

Two other representatives from religious groups are expected to speak at the hearing. Johnson said she will also make an appearance.

ARCO

Wallace asked the commission for an extension on the date set for certification of the EIR, prompting Davis to reschedule the next hearing to within the first 10 days of March.

ARCO's original proposal was for three double-platform complexes and offshore processing of the oil and gas taken from the leases, as was recommended in the preliminary EIR. The proposal has been subsequently changed to ask for permission to process oil from single platforms onshore, but residents still object to pipelines issuing from the wells.

The county, the university and ARCO all agree that a single co-mingled pipeline combining crude oil from several different wells to the onshore site is the most environmentally sound plan to transport oil onshore. The state opposes this plan because there is no foolproof way to measure the oil from each company's wells, and therefore there is no way to measure exact royalties.

"By the meeting in Santa Barbara in March, we will have had time to deal with some of these problems, such as the co-mingling issue," Davis said.

Wallace also reiterated the county's desire to remove Platform Heron, the portion of the project closest to I.V., from the plan. "The county stresses that Heron be eliminated," he said amidst boisterous cheers from the students in the hearing room.

Lodge called offshore drilling unfair to Santa Barbara. "We receive no revenues, only negative impacts on air quality and tourism," she said. "Our economy is based on retirement, tourism and high-tech industry, all of which are negatively impacted by offshore oil."

Aldrich, in UCSB's response to the EIR, attacked portions of it that deal with air quality. Two UC Riverside professors reviewed portions of the report about odors from different chemicals and disputed the information given, Aldrich said.

"The university's primary goal is the 'no-project' alternative," Aldrich said, again to loud applause from students. "The final EIR illustrates the fact that many questions are unanswered, and further study is warranted," he said.

ARCO regulatory and permitting director Richard Ranger addressed several issues from the last hearing. There will be no flaring to test wells or during normal operations, he said. "The platforms will be designed so flaring is not necessary," but flaring will still be used in "emergency situations," he said.

Ranger also discussed ARCO's plans to limit noise caused by the project, and announced there will be no discharges of muds or cuttings from Platform Heron. Ranger did not apply this pledge to either of the other two platforms.

Strickland said. "However, it is not a primary reason to cut loans," she added.

Many students expressed dissatisfaction with the proposed budget cuts.

"It would be a discouragement in applying for college if there was reduction of financial aid," UCSB sophomore Markeysha Lawrence said.

Freshman Marshall Altman agreed. "Students are the future of the country and it would be a waste if they are unable to go on to higher education because they can't afford it," he said.

"With all the emphasis on defense spending ... I feel that education is as important as defending the country," Lawrence said.

Students should express their opposition to the proposed financial aid cuts to members of Congress, Alexander emphasized. "In the seven years Reagan has been in office, education has not been a priority.... We need less money spent on defense and more on American students," he said.

AID CUTS

"The media covers this subject and unfortunately a lot of people assume that these proposals have been enacted," Alexander explained. "The proposition simply does not stand a chance with a Democratic-controlled Congress."

Santa Barbara Congressman Robert Lagomarsino, who has just received a summary of the proposed budget, supports the president's proposal. "Education assistance should be targeted to the most disadvantaged," Lagomarsino's legislative aid Nancy Page said.

"There needs to be a shift from direct grant aid to guaranteed loans. But the final vote won't be until Congress reviews the proposition, since specific cuts may be changed from the president's proposal," she added.

Past student failure to pay back student loans has caused some concern, "but there has been a drop in the defaulting rate,"

HOMOSEXUALITY IS IT NATURAL?

- A PAID ADVERTISEMENT -

Homosexuality has emerged as a major social issue of our society. Today we have been asked to take a stand on this issue by those who have called today "Gay Jeans Day." Because we do not feel that the wearing of apparel can adequately express our opinion, we are using this forum to express our view of homosexuality and homosexuals.

HOMOSEXUALITY

Most, if not all of us, desire to be accepted by those whom we care about. Acceptance by others tends to make us feel good about ourselves, a kind of validation that we are worthwhile, even important. In this way many seek fulfillment. All of us feel emptiness from time to time and a need to fill it with something significant and meaningful. We talk about "finding ourselves" or "discovering the real me" in an effort to understand who we are.

We hold that meaning, significance and fulfillment come from recognizing our purpose and then living it. Being what we were meant to be, being what we were created to be, is the key to happiness, fulfillment, peace, joy and love. We believe that to understand who we were meant to be we must look to the Creator. If you want to know what life is about, who best to turn to than the Author of Life himself? To our great delight, we have found that He is more than willing to explain life to us and reveal to us what our purpose is, what we were created to be. So willing, that He sent His Son to demonstrate meaningful life and make meaningful life possible.

He has said very clearly that homosexuality is not part of what we were created for*, that it is in fact destructive to our very existence. It is not because of a violation of some law or rule that we see homosexuality is wrong, but because it does not lead to the fulfillment of our purpose. According to the One who ordered life, homosexuality is not a natural part of life.

HOMOSEXUALS

Although we can not accept homosexuality as a natural part of life, we have a deep compassion and concern for homosexuals. We share with you a desire for meaningful relationships and fulfilled lives. Unless, however, we are in relationship not only with people, but also with our Creator we can not know ultimate fulfillment. Jesus summed up the purpose of our lives by saying we should seek to love God and love our fellow man. If we seek only relationships with people we will not know completeness because God is the only one who brings fulfillment and meaning to our lives. He seeks to be in relationship with us to that He can reveal to us what life is all about. He even sent His Son to make that relationship possible. Our concern for homosexuals is that you are on a path which will ultimately bring loneliness and emptiness. Our desire for you is that you may come to know the grace of God and the joy of relationship with Him. The good news is that God loves you, and desires meaningful relationship with you. We will not be wearing jeans today, for we can not accept homosexuality, but know that our love and concern for you is genuine and from the heart.

State of Emergency

Editorial

Remember France a few months ago? Hundreds of thousands of students and supporters marched in the streets protesting newly imposed, stringent university entrance requirements. In demonstrations that captured global attention, the French rejected the notion of higher education for a select few.

In the United States, the president has just proposed a sweeping 45-percent cut in federal financial aid programs. His plan calls for Congress to eliminate work study, supplemental grants and national direct student loans. Pell Grants and Guaranteed Student Loans would be drastically reduced and interest rates on loans would increase.

If aid is hard to find and loans impossible to receive, many people will not be able to afford higher education. School for the select few could become a reality in Reagan's Amerika. The new elite class of higher education would consist of the children of the wealthy and the children of the poor.

Should Congress pass Reagan's proposal, 7,000 UCSB students would either face severe reductions in aid or lose their financial assistance altogether. Such a situation would be catastrophic. Students must act now if this proposal is to be defeated.

Despite party differences, California's two U.S. senators agree on this issue: both completely oppose the cuts. Unfortunately, Robert Lagomarsino, the person who represents Santa Barbara's interests in the House of Representatives, will once again vote on Reagan's coattails. We need to make one thing unequivocally clear to him: either support equal access to education or we will do everything in our power to throw him out of office.

The problem is the current administration's misconception of student life. In the eyes of Reagan, Lagomarsino and other supporters of the proposal, financial aid recipients drive BMWs, buy expensive stereos and vacation in the tropics. Such a stereotype allows the White House to justify the illusion that students will find money elsewhere.

Anyone believing students can find alternative funding is not aware that all aid recipients already scramble to cover what their financial aid packages refer to as "unmet need," the difference between expenses and available money. For some students this is as high as $2,500 a year already. With further aid reductions, many students will have no alternative but to drop out of school.

Obviously, it is time to set Reagan straight. The proposed cuts are unacceptable, preposterous and detrimental to the good of the nation. Cutting financial aid by 45 percent and making loans difficult to obtain translates into education for the few.

Reagan's actions call for nothing short of a student revolution of proportions no less than those in France. It is up to students to prevent Congress from accepting Reagan's proposal. Two years ago, student leaders across the nation organized to oppose similar cuts. Their efforts were only partially successful. This time, they must be more effective. In keeping with their present policy of activism, UCSB student leaders should take decisive steps to make the student voice heard. Whatever their methods, they must make known the student outrage. Reagan's threat puts us in a state of emergency. We must respond.

The New Soviet Image Gives Rise

Jonathan Witcher

The Soviets are at it again. With Mikhail Gorbachev at the helm, they are launching another all-out offensive. This time, however, it's not against Eastern Europe, or China, or even Afghanistan.

No, this offensive is quite a bit different than what we have seen in the past. Gone are the days when Russia's influence rested solely on military might. No longer will rubles be heedlessly poured into faraway drains. Lessons have been learned and priorities are being changed.

Indeed, the Kremlin is starting to re-examine its view of the rest of the world. Fortunately for them, they have a charismatic and imaginative leader who is far better equipped than his predecessors to generate this "new political thinking."

As one might expect, the motives behind this latest "offensive" are primarily economic. A sluggish Soviet economy has choked off aid to Soviet footholds in Asia, Africa, and Central America. It seems Brezhnev's policy of exporting revolution has not been paying off. The words of Lenin and Marx are carrying far less weight than those of local tribal leaders and imams. So instead of using sheer military might to exert influence, Gorbachev is trying something new — public relations.

With a smile and a handshake, the Soviet Union is hoping to shed its cold, hard image of the past. Bright Soviet Ambassadors, armed with a bit of sophistication, are scattered around the globe like corporate sales representatives. Foreign Minister Edward Shevardnadze, in particular, has travelled tirelessly. Are these the same Communists who have repeatedly aggravated cold war tensions? What should be our response to the moratorium on nuclear testing, the release of political dissidents, the proposed withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan, and the opening up of some sectors of the Soviet economy to capitalism?

In today's world of intelligence and counterintelligence it is vitally important to remember that things are not always as they seem. No one knows this better than the people in the highest echelons of government. The Soviets have become quite adept at deceit — and even our own nation has been prone to put up false fronts on occasion. As a result, it is dangerously naive to take things at face value.

For example, when Gorbachev ended dissident Andrei Sakharov's internal exile, it wasn't so much an effort to expound Soviet humanitarianism as it was an attempt to gain access to Western technology. Gorbachev realizes that the post-industrial era (Alvin Toffler's "Third Wave") is upon us and he will do whatever he can to modernize the Soviet system — even if it means releasing an outspoken but highly respected scientist.

Similarly, the Kremlin hopes to improve its standing with Third World nations (as well as

Go Gauchos!

On Jan. 15, the Runnin' Rebels of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas were here to play UCSB. Yes, the number one team in the nation, here, against our Gauchos: the unknown and small-time college basketball team. Everyone wrote us off and hoped that we would not get blown out by 30 points.

But the "unknowns" almost pulled off the biggest upset in UC Santa Barbara basketball history and maybe the biggest upset in college basketball in a couple of years.

And as I sat in the front row and watched the game, I realized that our team has enough talent to beat the Runnin' Rebels and other major college basketball teams. After Carrick DeHart put in two free throws to put us ahead, the crowd went wild. It was unbelievable how loud the 6,000 or so fans were, and it continued even as UNLV brought the ball up court.

Now, I have been to many basketball games at UCLA, USC, and the Forum, but I had never seen such a crazy and wild crowd. And the Gauchos seemed to only get better as the crowd got louder.

However, on Jan. 17 when we played UC Irvine, a measly crowd of 2000 or so showed to see us beat them by 19. I was shocked to see such a small crowd. After all, just two days before, we had been leading the number one team in the nation (something that not too many teams have done or will do this year). Now where the hell is our school spirit? It would be understandable if the Gauchos had a losing record, but we don't.

I think it is time for us as UCSB students to go to every game and support the team. It was evident at the UNLV game that if the crowd is there, the players will be more psyched to play well. Every game should be a sell out, students should line up hours before to see them. Where else can you go to a game and sit in the front row for free? If we, the students, start supporting our basketball program, then maybe we will

Brother Jed

Editor, Daily Nexus:

On Wednesday (Jan. 21), I was part of a crowd of people listening to Brother Jed and Sister Cindy rant and rave and condemn us all to hell. This made me very sad, for I heard many people reacting as if they thought this was normal Christian teaching. Let me assure you, it is not!!

As president of Gaucho Christian Fellowship, I know the Bible and what it says about how God feels about human beings. He does not hate people. He hates the evil that we all do, the destructive relationships and our own self-centeredness, but He loves us. Jesus Christ came to tell us that God loves us and wants us to live the lives that He created for us. We choose not to do what He desires and what He knows to be best for us, which is what Hell really is.

I hope that no one who listened to Jed scream was completely turned off to Christianity. No one condemns democracy because they disagree with one person who says they believe in it.

I hope that you give Christianity the same chance. There is a perfect opportunity for all of us to learn more about what the Bible says and what God says. Cliffe Knechtle will be speaking in front of the Library through Thursday, Jan. 29 from 12 p.m. to 2 p.m. He will be answering questions that anyone might have. He will not condemn, or scream at you. Please give him a chance, as well as giving Christ a chance I don't think you will be disappointed.

Our Man Chris

Editor, Daily Nexus:

RE: Chris Courter's letter of Jan. 27. Chris,

Where have you been? Your ideas and notions about women are covered with dust and mold, and believe me they are beginning to put off an awful stench:

Since you seem to base your belief of male superiority on the physiological difference between men and women, you are a clear example of a male who is letting his little head do the thinking for his big head.

Chris, you poor, misguided, ignorant slut!

BRIAN KNOTEK

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Did a member of the United Front Coalition pay Chris Courter to write his letter of January 27, "Are We Not Men?" It was, in my opinion, the clearest, most succinct expression of the need for a gender studies general education requirement that I could have imagined. So, to you, Chris, thank you for your support (however unintended), and I hope to see you in a gender studies class real soon.

YONIE HARRIS

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Dear Mr. Courter, I have just finished reading your letter and I am quite shocked. Not because of your lack of knowledge about the world, history, society, and biology, but because a University of California school would admit someone as ignorant, as idiotic as you seem to be as witnessed by your letter in Tuesday's Nexus. Mr. Courter, if "Ignorance is Bliss," you must be living in the midst of a lifelong orgasm.

You mention that women are unable to decide what is important and do not have the power to get anything done. Well, let's go ask Golda Meier, Margaret Thatcher, Marie Curie, Sandra Day O'Connor, Cleopatra, Queen Elizabeth I, Queen Elizabeth II, Susan B. Anthony, Ellen Goodman, et cetera, ad nauseum, what they think of this. Are you so sure of your history that you are willing (or indeed, able) to prove to me that Queen Victoria had only a minor impact of history? Is President Aquino "able to decide what is important?" Your attitude is not just sexist, supremacist, or whatever, it shows us that you are merely a cocky, arrogant, stupid, uninformed redneck. You speak of "sheer physiological facts of life make the woman's role in the decision making process secondary to men's at any level above purely domestic." Where are these facts? Why don't you share them with us? These women that I have just mentioned are (or were) very important figures in our world.

They have accomplished things that you will probably never even be able to begin to achieve. You go to a good school. Why don't you take advantage of that fact and study some history? Or have you already (and this seems to be the case) formed your opinions in the third grade and are unwilling to change them despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary?

MITCHELL J. FIELDING

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Dear Chris Courter, This may be "mere name-calling and weeping," but we are of the opinion that the most disappointing contribution made by any woman of this century was when your mother gave birth to you and your attitude.

Spikers Open WIVA Play in Stanford

By Todd Davidson
Sportswriter

And now, the hard part begins. The UCSB men's volleyball team begins play tonight at Stanford in what is arguably the hardest conference in intercollegiate sports. The Western Intercollegiate Volleyball Association, whose first name was changed this year due to the conference's realization that Hawaii does not fall within the borders of California, currently boasts seven of the top nine Division I teams in the nation.

In Tuesday's poll, Pepperdine is number one in the nation with a 2-0 record. UCLA, currently 12-3, is second. The Gauchos have already beaten the Bruins twice, once in the All-Cal Tournament in San Diego and last weekend in the UCSB/Michelob Light College Invitational at the Events Center. USC, who beat the Gauchos to capture the Michelob tourney, is fourth.

By virtue of their strong showing over the weekend, the Gauchos are now the nation's fifth-ranked team, moving up three spots from last week. Their 12-2 record after 14 games is three wins better than last year, when, for the first time in Head Coach Ken Preston's eight-year tenure, the Gauchos failed to make the regionals.

Stanford, coming off a fifth-place finish in the tournament here last weekend, is currently ranked eighth with a 7-3 record. The UCSB's David Rottman (above) will add his excellent hitting ability in the Gauchos' quest to beat Stanford.

Cardinal, who beat the Gauchos in Palo Alto last year with a spot in the regionals at stake, features a big lineup led by middle blocker Scott Fortune. The Cardinal has additional help from its new recruits, voted the best in the nation by Volleyball Monthly.

"They're big and they have good ball control," Preston said. "They've made good progress in their program."

Senior outside hitter and All-American candidate John Kosty respects Fortune's abilities. "He is

By Scott Channon

Realistically, the UCSB basketball team could be a lot worse off at this juncture in the season. However, after losing two close road games, with four starters currently fighting the flu, things could be a whole lot better.

The Gauchos (3-4 in the PCAA, 8-8 overall) are looking to get well in a hurry tonight when they host a 7:30 p.m. game against Fresno State (2-6, 7-12), a team coming off its worst defeat in the school's history (106-58, at UNLV).

"That Vegas game was a hard one to evaluate," Gaucho Coach Jerry Pimm said. "But they (the Bulldogs) have to be upset at themselves for getting beat so badly."

The Gauchos have to be a little upset after dropping two road games by a combined score of nine points. In both losses (to San Jose State and Utah State), the score was even with two minutes to play. The Gauchos are 2-6 on the road this year, 1-3 in conference games.

The Bulldogs had to be upset at themselves last year after the Gauchos beat them, 64-48, in Fresno. Over the past nine seasons, Fresno State holds a 16-2 advantage over UCSB. But this season, the Bulldogs have experienced, relatively, a down year for a Fresno State team.

After losing three starters, this year's squad, under first-year Coach Ron Adams, is made up of mostly underclassmen. Leading the way have been sophomores

Mike Mitchell and Jervis Cole. For the Gauchos, tonight's game kicks off a two-game homestand. The Gauchos host University of the Pacific Saturday at 1 p.m. In UCSB's first conference game this season, Pacific beat the Gauchos on a last-second shot.

In the past week, forwards Khris Fortson, Brian Vaughns, Greg Trygstad, and guard Brian Shaw all came down with the flu, making practice pretty light this week. Pimm hopes that all four will see some time tonight, but he said he won't know until before the game.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT (SOMEWHERE): Tonight's game will be televised live in selected parts of the country on ESPN, but most parts will see Washington versus UCLA. Raycom is televising the game locally in Fresno, and ESPN is picking up the feed. In the areas where the UCLA game is being telecast, ESPN will be cutting into the UCSB game periodically.

BIG BLUE NIGHT: In an attempt to counteract Fresno State's Red Wave, the UCSB Athletic Department is asking all Gaucho fans to wear blue tonight. All fans have also been requested to bring a towel in an attempt to set the NCAA Towel Wave Record. And don't forget to bring your beachwear and gear, another special request from the A.D.

PARTY: Pizza Bob's is once again providing a pizza party to a special cheering group from tonight's game. The "blue-est" group will be awarded the party.

Women Hoopsters Take on PCAA Powerhouse

Needless to say, the UCSB women's basketball team will have its hands full tonight when they host the Long Beach State 49ers, ranked fifth in the nation and first in the PCAA. The game begins at 5 p.m. in the Events Center.

"This is definitely a David and Goliath contest," UCSB Head Coach Darla Wilson remarked. "They've got all the momentum in the world and we have none."

Long Beach, 17-1 overall and 8-0 in PCAA, has won 17 consecutive games, including their latest ousting of USC, 87-69 on Jan. 26. They have outscored their PCAA opponents by an average of 42 points, and shoot 52 percent from the floor and 73 percent from the free-throw line.

In retrospect, the Gauchos, 1-7 in PCAA and 4-12 overall, have dropped their last seven contests, most currently a 101-47 humiliation at the hands of Fresno State on Jan. 25. UCSB turned the ball over to the Bulldogs 27 times and shot 28 percent from the floor.

"Turnovers have been our nemesis all season," Wilson said. "Against Long Beach we must try to maintain composure, look before we pass, and slow down the tempo of the game. We don't want to take the quick shot."

Leading the 49ers is All-American forward Cindy Brown, with 26.7 points and 9.8 rebounds per game and guard Penny Tolner, who has averaged 21.5 points per game. —Daniel Stein

Women Netters Hope to Repeat Sterling Match

Hopefully, the UCSB women's tennis team can perform as well this Friday against San Diego State as they did last Tuesday.

The Gauchos taught the women of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo a lesson in how to play the game on Tuesday by annihilating the Mustangs, 9-0, in a match on the west courts.

This Friday the Gauchos must go head-to-head with PCAA rival San Diego State and then take on UC Irvine on Saturday.

"We are looking to play each match as well as we can," Head Coach Lisa Beritzhoff said. "We are capable of an upset."

San Diego State is ranked eighth nationally, is the PCAA defending champ, and has the top collegiate player in the country, Monique Javier. UCSB senior Lori Jonas will play Javier in Friday's match.

"Being a 'giant-killer' would be great," Jonas said. "I should not get psyched out by her ranking." —Patrick Brault a good player," Kosty said. "He has a really good arm swing and he's a good back-row hitter."

Even with Stanford's improved program the Gauchos still have an advantage over the Cardinal in quickness and experience. "We're quicker than they are," Preston explained. "We run some blocking schemes that might confuse them.

We're also more experienced; they have a lot of freshmen."

The Gauchos have the added incentive of playing the team that kept them out of the regionals for the first time since 1978. A hostile home crowd wielding bottle rockets and firecrackers harassed the Gauchos to no end, and tonight's crowd will probably offer more of the same. Motivation should not be a problem for the Gauchos.

NEW ARRIVALS AVIA AEROBIC SHOES. STRENUOUS WORKOUTS WITHOUT THE STRAIN.

You put yourself through demanding workouts, always pushing yourself to be in top condition. But the harder you work, the more protection you need. Step into AVIA aerobic shoes and protect yourself from the strain of extra effort aerobics.

AVIA aerobic shoes are biomechanically designed to safeguard against injuries. Each shoe features AVIA's patented concave cantilever outsole, which works to prevent injuries by providing superior foot stability and excellent shock absorption simultaneously.

The unique cantilever sole flares out on impact, creating superior cushioning, and directing shock away from the foot. The cantilever lugs flaring action also helps center the foot on impact for maximum stability.

AVIA aerobic shoes. For your physically demanding workouts, without the strain. ■

Can't Sit Still

Scotland's Tannahill Weavers, a traditional folk band known for their rousing, enthusiastic, straight-ahead renditions of Celtic favorites, come to Campbell Hall on Tuesday, February 3. Their traditional and modern arrangements of Scottish folk tunes — lyrical ballads, fast-paced jigs and rowdy reels — evoke the misty colors and lilting voices of the Scottish countryside.

With bagpipes, drums, flutes and fiddles, the Tannahill Weavers have introduced Scotland's thrilling music to appreciative audiences throughout North America and Europe via numerous tours, four albums released by Green Linnet Records, and repeat appearances on the public radio show "A Prairie Home Companion." The powerful fiddle of prodigy Stuart Morrison, the original songs of guitarist Roy Gul-lane, the band's lush vocal harmonies, and a tasteful integration of both the highland and small pipes into the arrangements shape the Tannahill Weavers' sound.

In addition to Morrison and Gul-lane, the Weavers include champion piper Iain MacInnes, flutist Phil Smillie and Ross Kennedy, who plays the bazouki, a lower-register, mandolin-like stringed instrument.

The Tannahill Weavers will give a free mini-performance, co-sponsored by A.S. Program Board, at noon in the UCen Pub on the day of their Campbell Hall concert.

All for One, One for All

The Arden Trio, a piano trio of lush, romantic harmonies and colorful performance styles, will be in residence at UCSB for three days, culminating in a concert in Lotte Lehmann Concert Hall on Thursday, February 12.

"The piano trio can seem an awkward ensemble," wrote a New York

Times music critic, "the keyboard overpowering its stringed partners, the cello sawing away at the bass lines and the violin distracted by soloistic escapades. But the Arden Trio seemed not to be a trio at all, but a single instrument, played with virtuosity and sensitivity."

With intelligence and passion, the Arden Trio will present a program of elegant works including Haydn's Trio in C Major, Saint-Saëns' Trio No. 2 in E minor, and Ravel's Trio in A minor, a very popular piece that was inspired by the Saint-Saëns trio.

Trio members pianist Thomas Schmidt, cellist Clay Ruede and violinist Suzanne Ornstein will participate in a number of residency activities while on campus. (For more information about free residency events, call 961-3535.)

Berlin, Jerusalem and the Moon

A Traveling Jewish Theatre, a unique California company with a penchant for experimental theatrical forms and a taste for controversial subject matter, comes to Campbell Hall on Wednesday, February 18 with an unusual play entitled Berlin, Jerusalem and the Moon. This performance is sold out.

Pulitzer Prize-winning Journalist

Seymour Hersh became recognized as America's leading investigative reporter in the 1970s, when he uncovered the My Lai massacre in Vietnam and received a Pulitzer Prize for his book, My Lai 4. Since then, he has led the way in exposing the crimes of political leaders and has received all of the major journalism awards in the U.S., including four Polk Awards for his reports on the secret bombing of Cambodia, the CIA's involvement in the overthrow of the Chilean government, the CIA's domestic spying and reports on illegal weapons sales to Libya.

Hersh will give a major lecture on the topic of "Foreign Policy and Journalism" on Monday, February 9. Recently Hersh reported that the CIA has been illegally sharing intelligence information about the African National Congress with the South African government. In his lecture, Hersh is expected to discuss this new revelation, as well as the foreign policy dilemma of the Iran-Contra arms connection.
