EAT AT JOE'S

536 State Street
966-4638

Joe's on State Street downtown has a double personality. By day, the place has such history. It's probably one of the oldest buildings in Santa Barbara with real people (not students) working there. They feed you in these big comfortable booths with all the regulars sitting at the bar. They all really do know each others' names here! I saw a couple meeting in the corner, buddies talk the latest baseball statistics and my friend and I chilled in a booth consuming good food and strong drinks. Joe's is widely known for its strong drinks!

At night, the place takes on a different mood, and it's hoppin'. Then folks that actually graduated from UCSB and have real jobs go there after work, all dressed up and lookin' good. What struck me the most was how good everyone looked, and then it was Joe's mudslide (Did I mention that it's my drink of choice?).

Be it day or night, it's high time for everybody to do something grown-up and go to Joe's.

PARADISE CAFE

702 Anacapa Street
962-4416

Seductively hidden just off of State Street is Paradise Cafe. I always drove by the place on the way to the parking lots and all, but it took me too long to stop in. Finally, after hearing many good things about it, I dragged my roommate downtown and partook of the experience of Paradise.

Before I go on, I must explain that my roommate and I have lived together for four weeks now, and we had not once spent a moment together that was not watching television. I wasn't sure we could actually converse without the stimulation of the bright moving lights. But fortunately, we had this menu to peruse, great food to eat and beautiful scenery to admire. In fact, we passed the outdoors test with flying colors. There was never an uncomfortable silence, as a large part of our conversation was to debate whether or not to get two helpings of chocolate cake. We were full, but it looked so good and we didn't want to leave ... ever. As I was saying in so many words, Paradise Cafe is good. Check it out sometime.

ZELO'S

630 State Street
966-5792

Okay, I know that Zelo is kinda on the upside of State and all, a little further away from the bar trends than you may have considered venturing, but I think you're really missing out. I went there on a Thursday night around dinner time and found it to be a great deal classier than I had expected. The lighting is low, the food damn tasty, and there's real art on the walls. It's such an artsy place that they actually have gallery openings for the artists they displayed.

By the way, I mentioned food, and it's really fancy food, too — delectables far beyond the Isla Vista norm. The best part is that after you chow, the dance floor breaks loose. Flashing lights and colors bathe the interior in a mood that gets you moving. There's a stage and bars — c'mon, we know we love the cages — and theme nights (i.e. '80s music, remember? That stuff we can't get enough of).

Check it out! Stop doing the same old, same old, and put a little class in your life. Put a little Zelo in your life.

TOP TEN

Reasons Why the Monkey Serial Does not Appear in Today's Weekend Guide, Its Rightful Home

10. The Daily Nexus advertising department didn't get it.
9. This week's edition was accidentally laminated for added protection.
8. John's laptop is broken and the story is inside.
7. Our loyal college readers prefer a list of the reasons rather than getting them in the context of an entertaining, enlightening short story.
6. Our loyal college viewers prefer moving pictures to text.
5. Due to erosion, Monkey fell over the cliff into the Pacific Ocean.
4. The Artweek editors found everything that John writes to be so damn cool that they started seeing things from the last Monkey.
3. Monkey found the meaning of life and stopped looking in interesting ways.
2. Students were so offended that they canceled their free subscription.
1. Monkey was protested against.

(your favorite overheard snippets)

Two people on the sidelines at the demonstration in Storke Plaza yesterday:

"Hey, man, I didn't really want to ditch class for a protest, man, I wanted to ditch class to go surf and smoke bowls like the Nexus said everyone else was going to."

"But you don't even surf, dude."

"Well, I'm not getting stoned just sitting here chanting and holding a joint in my pocket."

"Don't you support ethnic minorities in their struggle against the Great White Satan?"

"But it's mex weed, bro."

"Oh, then it's OK ... let's spark it up on the way to the chancellor's office."

Two guys in an econ class last Tuesday:

"Hey, what's up, didn't I see you at a preparty keg last weekend?"

"Yeah, I think you were my roommate's date. Good to see you, actually, cause her sorority sisters are sitting right over there and with you between us, I can pretend we're having a conversation without being completely obvious that I'm looking at them instead."

"Where?" (swivels head frantically)

"Aw, man! They saw you! You fucked it up!"

"Well, anyways ... yeah, I think I know them."
