'Eight-Year Rule' Changes Proposed for U.C. Lecturer Position

By TOM BOLTON

A change in the definition of the lecturer position at the University of California will occur, perhaps as early as July, 1979, if the recommendations of a statewide committee evaluating the University's "eight-year rule" are implemented.

Formed by U.C. President David Saxon, the statewide committee was charged with studying "possible revision of policy relating to the eight year rule." Under current standards, U.C. instructors and faculty must be given Security of Employment (SOE) by the end of their eighth year or face termination of employment.

Major impetus for the study came last year when the State Legislature, during U.C. budget hearings, questioned the propriety of the eight year rule. After learning that Michael Fernandez, a lecturer in the EOP Compensatory Writing Program at UCSB, had been denied SOE despite apparently "excellent" work, members of the Assembly Ways and Means Subcommittee on Education held up approval of a $600,000 augmentation to the U.C. budget for upgrading of non-ladder and minority faculty.

Subcommittee member Teresa Hughes (D-Los Angeles) capsulized the view held by many state legislators at the time when she said, "I don't think we can continue to grant them money carte blanche while this is happening to people who are supposed to be helped by the money."

Currently there are three categories under which academic personnel are classified: ladder faculty, lecturers, and "irregulars." Ladder faculty includes the ranks of instructor through full professor; they must theoretically prove themselves both as teachers and as researchers in order to gain SOE. Lecturers are hired only as teachers and are not expected to show research in order to be granted SOE. Irregulars include clinical and in-residence researchers and instructors.

A fourth category known as "Instructor" was recommended by the committee, largely to clarify the University's expectations for its lecturer personnel.

According to Dr. Ed Blakely, assistant vice president for academic and staff personnel relations, the lecturer category was "meant to be a teaching and performance series."

"Lecturers should be judged on their teaching quality and their contribution to teaching," Blakely continued. "They should know they have a chance for SOE. There should be no artificial barriers to advancement."

Blakely reported that if the proposed plan is implemented, "instructors" will be hired on a temporary basis with the clear

County Supervisors Place Moratorium On Local Condominium Conversions

By JOHN LEE

The Santa Barbara Board of Supervisors narrowly passed an emergency amendment which clamps a 120 day moratorium on all condominium conversions in the County yesterday.

An urgency ordinance needs the approval of at least four out of five supervisors in order to pass. "Swing vote" David Yager abstained from voting, saying "I just can't get past the first clause." Yager assiduously objected to a statement contained in the start of Supervisor Bill Wallace's amendment to article 21 of the County Code.

Yager contended that the wording of the amendment makes it seem like the problem of condominium conversions has just sprung up like a mushroom, while in fact the cause of the problem was faulty planning on the part of the County over a period of years.

Condominium conversions are a subject of grave concern on the part of many people in the community. "People are scared to death," commented Wallace as the supervisors discussed the urgency measure following a battery of presentations from concerned special interest groups and members of the public. "People don't want the owner to know they're signing the petitions."

Wallace said that renters were scratching their names off petitions against conversion that were being circulated by concerned groups, for fear of retaliation from apartment landlords.

Amy Hodget of Isla Vista City Council told the Board, "Ninety percent of Isla Vista people rent, the loss of any apartments will displace existing tenants, putting pressure on other renters, raising all of our rent!"

"It is similar to raising the enrollment at UCSB," continued Hodget, "we feel it is increasing moderate cost housing at the expense of low cost rentals."

Supervisor Harrel Fletcher qualified his vote in favor of the moratorium saying, "I do feel for the renters, the elderly, and students. It bothers me that we have allowed this to occur. If we had built according to our needs, we wouldn't have these abnormal rents on the South Coast."

Senior citizen groups were vehemently opposed to being, in their opinion, squeezed out of their rentals and into the street by landlords like Michael Tombs, who would like to convert his Pacific Oaks and Encino Meadows apartment complexes. Said Tombs, "Some will have to move, but others will create vacancies." Tombs added that no one would be evicted to make space for condominium purchasers.

Threatened Veto Holds Up Student Transition Bill

By DICK BUFORD

SACRAMENTO—Under the threat of a Governor's veto, the Assembly Monday held up appropriations of a bill that would spend over $600 thousand to help low-income high school and community college students make the often difficult transition to four-year colleges and universities.

The bill, A.B. 507, now goes to a conference committee, where legislators will negotiate with representatives of the Governor's office over funding of the program.

In brief, the bill would set up tutorial and other "inter-institutional programs," including financial aid, aimed at increasing the access of disadvantaged students to four-year colleges.

Authored by Assemblyman Vic Fazio (D-Sacramento), the measure passed the full Senate Thursday by a lopsided 35-0 vote. The Senate sent the bill to the Assembly for concurrence on minor Senate amendments.

The bill had previously passed the Assembly by a vote of 69-0.

But Bob Moore, a special assistant in the Governor's office, indicated that the State Department of Finance has objected to the bill's budget.

That department has recommended that the program be funded from existing educational opportunity budgets already available at community colleges and four-year colleges and universities.

Governor Brown has in the past vetoed other new educational appropriations on the grounds that money for the programs was already available in existing budgets.

The bill was originally sponsored by the U.C. Student Lobby.

Phylise Smith, the student lobbyist closest to the bill, indicated that retention of the budget appropriation was critical.

"We have been working on this bill for two years, and in that time the appropriation has been lowered from $900 thousand to the present $600 thousand... We feel that some money must remain in the bill for the pilot projects to be effective."

Smith also objected to an effort on the part of community college officials to take over administration of the aid program from the Student Aid Commission, a move which she thinks would handicap the program.

As written, the bill would set up a new 15-member advisory committee within the commission to administer the program's funds.

Details of the legislation will be negotiated in a conference committee meeting scheduled for Wednesday.

UCSD Students Challenge University's Health Plan

By WILLIAM KREBS

A student health insurance plan that pays for abortion services has been challenged in court by three students at UC San Diego.

The students claim that the plan constitutes religious discrimination, since all three students are Catholics with ethical objections to abortion.

If successful, the students' lawsuit would compel the University to register the students with only partial payment of the health insurance fee. Another section of the complaint that the students filed asks the court to declare the entire UC fee system unconstitutional. The University has until Feb. 15 to respond to the students' complaint, which was filed Dec. 12 of last year.

The San Diego health plan is a group major medical insurance plan which covers students for $1500 in major hospital expenses or outpatient care. It supplements the UCSD Student Health Center and the optional student health insurance. Abortions paid for by the plan are performed by off-campus abortion clinics, rather than at the Health Center itself.

After learning the details for the insurance plan, Albin Rhomberg, Margaret Patton, and Susan Erzinger informed the University that they had placed their Reg. fees in trust. The money was to be turned over to the University when, "...it is publicly established that no portion of the mandatory Registration fee is being or can be used, directly or indirectly, to pay for abortions."

The University advised the students to pay their Reg. fees under protest and discuss the problem with the Reg. fee advisory committee. When the students refused to pay, the University cancelled their Fall Quarter Registrations.

LOS ANGELES — Utility rates don't always have to go up each time the telephone, electric, gas or water companies say it's time to pay more. A bill already approved by the California Assembly would create a private agency called the "Small Utility Consumer Action Group." It would represent residential customers and small businessmen in rate setting procedures before regulatory bodies.

LOS ANGELES — Governor Brown has declared much of Southern California a disaster area because of devastation from a series of rainstorms, damage totaling about $43 million. Brown says the state of emergency will be effective in the counties of Los Angeles, Ventura, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Kern and Tulare. Brown is also asking that President Carter declare that a major disaster exists in California.

SIERRA NEVADAS — With almost two feet of fresh snow in the 24 hours ending yesterday morning, snow depth in the Sierra Nevada is reported to be deeper than at any time since the record winter of 1969. At the National Weather Service station at Norden, 170 inches are reported on the ground, travelers' advisories remain in effect and chains are required on all cars.

SAN DIEGO — The churning Pacific Ocean is storm tossing baby sea lions onto land in San Diego. Sea World Marine Park reports 10 of these babies have been found since Friday. Several are ill and injured from a battering on the rocks.

The Nation

WASHINGTON D.C. — Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater has called on President Carter to "act in the best interest of the public" and use the Taft-Hartley Act to suspend the 70 day old coal strike. United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller says his miners would probably ignore an attempt by the government to get them back to work.

NEW ORLEANS — An American Bar Association committee has a suggestion on how to reconcile the fair trial and the free press. It wants the Association to lobby for the repeal of federal restrictions on media coverage in the courtroom.

WASHINGTON D.C. — Conservative opponents of the Panama Canal treaty say they're determined to use their influence to dash the presidential hopes of any Republican who backs the accord. According to Terry Dolan of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, Tennessee Senator Howard Baker's presidential chances are "done."

CANTON, OHIO — A presidential task force is sending technical experts to Ohio to coordinate electricity sharing. Coal supplies are low due to the record long coal strike. President Carter has declared a state of emergency in Ohio and says he has asked his cabinet to plan for moving coal to areas where shortages are critical.

VATICAN CITY — Egyptian President Sadat concluded his eight-nation diplomatic offensive for his Mideast peace moves yesterday with a long audience with Pope Paul. The Pontiff praised Sadat's peace initiative.

JERUSALEM — Israeli Prime Minister Begin adopted a conciliatory tone toward the United States yesterday after stern weekend criticism. Begin remarked that he looks forward to the return of U.S. mediators in Cairo and Jerusalem. He commented that the recent disagreement would not "impair the very deep friendship between the United States and Israel."

NAPLES — A U.S. Navy spokesman in Naples announced yesterday a military plane from the aircraft carrier "U.S.S. Nimitz" accidentally dropped a 500 pound bomb on an inhabited area of the Italian island of Sardinia during exercises Saturday. The spokesman, Lieutenant Commander James Harness said there were no damages or injuries.

BONN — Some news reports in West Germany are saying that the Carter administration is so irritated at West Germany that some American officials are questioning whether an economic summit meeting planned for next July will do any good. The U.S. wants Germany to speed its economic growth so more American goods will be bought by the West Germans but Chancellor Schmidt has refused.

Servomation Signs Contract Result: Higher Food Prices

By PAUL GLASSER

If you were planning on quenching your thirst with a Coke, you should keep in mind that the price of soft drinks in vending machines on campus have gone up five cents.

As a matter of fact, most of the prices on food, candy, and cigarettes have risen since Servomation signed its new contract with the UCen food services and residence halls.

Servomation has a contract that entitles it to have the only vending machines on campus for two years. Every two years the contract is put out to bid. Servomation just signed the contract about a month ago.

Bob Lorden, Executive Director of Associated Students and Director of the UCen, explained that Servomation is chosen "based on the service they can provide, costs of the products, and the amount the food service and residence halls receive in commissions."

Lorden later clarified that it was not only the commissions that were involved in the decision, "It's the ability of the company to service the account."

The commissions received from the vending machines go to the UCen food service, except for the machines in the dormitories. The residence halls retain their commissions to sponsor student activities.

"A high percentage of profits goes to the university and sponsors student activities," said John Hamilton, General Manager of Servomation. "Each commodity carries a return to the university."

The total profit return to the university from all the products sold in the vending machines "averages somewhere around 15 percent," said Lorden.

Hamilton attributed the price increase on vending items as a result of putting brand new equipment on campus. There is the cost of keeping the machines running which includes both service men and electricity, and the price Servomation has to pay for the products has increased.

"We are limited in that we can only raise our prices in 5 cents increments," Hamilton said. "We might want to raise the price of a product by a penny or two, but we can't."

According to Lorden, there are about three vending companies in the area now that compete for the account. "This is a prime account," he said. "It's a prestige account and helps build other accounts."

There is a special committee, composed of UCen and residence hall people, that set up the contract with the vending machine company.

"We are never completely satisfied," said Lorden. "We try to get the best vending company we can. The problem is that there are not many people in the vending business. Over the years we have had over a dozen vending companies on campus."

Seven years ago UCLA found an alternative to contracting with a vending company. The university decided to buy it's own machines and run there own vending operations.

"We all agree it's better," says Don Findley, Executive Director of Associated Students at UCLA. "The net profitability is 15 to 20 percent."

"We are doing very well," commented Fred Cornman, UCLA vending manager. "When we contracted with ARA (a vending company), people weren't satisfied. Now everybody is using our machines with few complaints."

UCLA has had no major problems with their vending operations, which is one of the keys to its success. But there are other factors essential for a well run vending business such as good manager and machines that are replaced in key spots around the campus.

"Investment is the big problem," says Cornman. "Whether a vending operation is profitable depends on how much revenue you make per machine. Machines run $1500 to $3000 dollars a piece."

Findley, when asked if it would be profitable for UCSB to run its own vending operations responded, "Yes, if it was up to me, I'd try to take over and run them."

This is something to think about next time you pay 40 cents for a Zinger!

A UCSB co-ed casually accosts a drink machine as yet unaware of the ramifications of her action. Thousands of transactions such as this one occur everyday, making this a profitable business. Some of the revenue generated in this manner is fed back to the residents in various forms.

Carter College Plan Needs Our Support

Jimmy Carter has offered up a plan that could be of some interest to many students here at UCSB. It will pass out $250 a year to college students from middle-income families.

According to the Los Angeles Times the benefit would apply to families making $16,000 - $25,000 annually. This will be the first time that students from families making more than the minimum mentioned above will be eligible for scholarships.

Additional benefits will arise from the proposal as it expands eligibility for lower-income students and contains a type of "work-study" program.

We are sure that there is no need to expound on the virtues of such a program to our readers, but we hope you will let some of your elected representatives know how you feel about this subject.

A Plea For Valentines

In the pantheon of holidays there are the obvious major events, festive occasions of such magnitude that we are required to change our lifestyles for them. Christmas, the Fourth of July, and New Year's Day are days that make us notice that they are special.

Not so with Valentine's Day. Offices and factories are still open; there isn't a national Presidential Valentine to compete with the national Christmas tree. It's just another day. With the exception of sending a card or some flowers to our significant other (as the Psych majors would say), we are allowed to pretty much go about our regular schedule.

There have been recent attempts to change this, to upgrade the status of Valentine's Day to a major holiday. In the last few years we've been treated to television specials, Valentine's department store sales, the usual accouterments of American celebrations. This season you could buy Valentine's cards in December.

We are a little distressed at all this. Frankly, the idea of a holiday when you can relax, when you don't have to do anything out of the ordinary, appeals to us. Rather than going over the river and through the woods to visit Grandmother just because it's Valentine's Day we'd like to sit back after classes and maybe hoist a beer or two in honor of St. Valentine. Not that we have anything against Grandmother, but why do we have to visit for some special reason? Why not go when the mood strikes?

Part of the problem with Valentine's Day is the theme. Everybody knows that the day is about love, sort of a testimonial to Cupid — which is too bad. Why do we need a special day to think about love? Wouldn't it be alright if we just went ahead and expressed those tender emotions when we felt like it, without worrying about what day it is?

If the powers that be (those who have a commercial stake in the transformation of Valentine's Day) would let it alone, we might be left with a day that lets us celebrate the existence of something kind of nice, without getting all bent out of shape.

Who Shut Down Printshop?

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In reply to Michelle Togut's rife (Feb. 8-78) "Personnel Snags Cause Shutdown of A.S. Printshop." First of all it should have read "Egotists Causes Shutdown of Who's Printshop?" Secondly, I want to admonish the Nexus for not printing the whole story. You have repeatedly quoted Jeff Loeb and his biased opinion, yet have failed to point out that Mr. Loeb doesn't care about the A.S. Printshop. Let me attempt to explain some of the misconstrued facts left out in the course of the NNexus' coverage of the "Printshop Controversy."

First, the beginning of Jan. saw the A.S. Printshop without a supervisor. Rebecca Price had refused to return to work after the Fall Break because she was performing duties that she wasn't being rightfully paid for. It seems that she was classified three steps lower than the previous supervisor (a male, paid about $6.50 an hour). Becky was receiving about $4.50 an hour for the same duties.

Becky asked for a reclassification and higher wages because she felt (and rightly so) that the Printshop had operated in the black, and therefore had met up to the standards of her contract. In the mean time the A.S. Leg Council, being uninformed of the circumstances, were not sure what was to be done.

Self appointed representative Bob Wilkenson thought it time to act; he informed the A.S. Printshop workers that "They" were going to close the shop, and that if we didn't cooperate the police would remove us from the shop. Needless to say this was quite a joke, since the Council hadn't even met on the matter.

Secondly, since the Printshop was without a Supervisor, we, the students, formed the 'A.S. Printshop Workers Committee,' and began the first collective to operate as an A.S. service. Trouble again was in the making however, because Jeff Loeb, Bob Wilkenson, and Bob Lorden wanted one of the Printshop workers to take on the job as Acting Supervisor until the matter could be settled (with an increase in wages to $4.00 an hr. course). Well the Printshop committee refused maneuver because we saw this increase in pay as a bribe. At the A.S. Council meeting (Jan. 11-78) the council voted (11-2) that the Printshop Workers Committee could continue in operation as a collective. (Incidentally the two votes against came from Jeff Loeb & Bob Wilkenson — does that tell you anything?). The A.S. Leg Council appointed a committee to meet with the Printshop representative and to report back in three weeks; for two full weeks, the A.S. Committee (headed under the auspices of Bob Wilkenson) didn't meet at all.

Our Printshop Committee had decided that we wanted a professional auditor to perform the inventory so that no one would question its outcome. However, Mr. Loeb informed us that an annual audit had already been taken so that we would have to do it ourselves. In effort we were faced with two choices, we could either close down the shop for one whole day or spend a Saturday taking inventory. We chose the latter because we wanted to keep the shop open for student use.

Here is the clincher, we gave an open invitation to all A.S. Council members to attend and help in the inventory. Jeff Loeb replied, "... I don't do manual labor, only mental labor." Bob Wilkenson said, "... I'm going to Los Angeles, I have to get my travel pay somehow!" In fact, only one member of the A.S. Council bothered, and he was on the Special Committee.

Now, to top it all off Mental Whiz-Kid Loeb has the unmitigated audacity to say "... there are discrepancies between the inventory done by the Printshop, and what would be considered accurate inventory." Furthermore, this guy alludes that "... they may not have known which things to include, or known how to value the inventory. And another inventory is being recommended." What? This time Mr. Loeb you have gone too far. I think that you have finally exceeded your mental capabilities.

If you were so concerned about the accuracy of our inventory you should have had your butt there when it was taken. Listen, pompous despot, you're not the only one that is capable of computations. For someone who only uses his brain you sure know how to use your mouth, not to mention your foot. At least we had the concern to spend one of our Saturdays to settle the matter.

My last complaint deals with our reprimand for not returning to work. Jeff, take your reprimand and bite down hard. If you think that you can threaten us you're under delusions of grandeur.

In conclusion I have an open (Please turn to p.5, col.2)

Singers Want Space!!!

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Is it too much to ask that our student paper include in it a single article about a campus performance group and its upcoming European concert tour group since 1959 that has toured four continents, been on radio and television and has been heard and enjoyed by nearly one million people, namely the UCSB Chamber Singers?

Last week I inquired of your Arts Editor, Mr. Mike Pullen, as to whether we can have some publicity, i.e., some sort of feature article to let students know a little bit about us and our European tour plans. For example, the Chamber Singers are the only group from California, and probably the U.S., to be invited to compete in the International Choral Festival sponsored by Great Britain and host town of Langthlin, Wales. To my amazement Mr. Pullen hadn't even heard of the Chamber Singers, let alone its reputation or concert plans. In fact, he said that there was no way he could help, claiming that our efforts were not significant and that the Arts section was virtually filled up through March.

Mr. Pullen, I am curious as to your priorities and the priorities of the Daily Nexus concerning domestic talent. If I wanted to read about Fleetwood Mac's threat to breakup or Dolly Parton's comments about Billy Carter I'd check our Variety or Rona Barrett's gossip mags.

Besides looking without, try looking within. There are many worthy local talents, be it music or the arts, that need your publicity and recognition.

Barry Brucker

Arts Editor Mike Pullen replies:

Your criticism is well taken but allow me to clarify my side. At the time I spoke to Mr. Brucker it looked like the Arts section would be booked up the next two weeks due to a fall off in ad sales. Our policy is "all the news that fits" and since Brucker told me that the tour wasn't until late spring it seemed that there was ample time for future coverage. At any rate, I didn't rule out a story this quarter.

As for the comment about local talent coverage, it should be noted that the week Brucker's group didn't get in the section, there was a positive story about three Music Dept. events.

Workers Explain Closing

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Due to the occurrences of the past five weeks, the A.S. Print Shop Workers Committee felt it necessary to deliver this statement to A.S. Leg Council and to the public.

"We accuse the A.S. Leg Council of:

"(1) having shown no interest and taken no action to protect the Print Shop as a student service. Council showed no initiative in reopening the shop at the beginning of this quarter and it was only at the insistence of the Print Shop workers that even an interim solution was arrived at.

"(2) Supposedly responsible members of this Council have treated Print Shop workers in an insulting manner. In their deliberations, workers have been reduced to items on an inventory sheet to be manipulated as their whim and self-interest dictated.

"(3) The Ad Hoc Committee set up by the Council dealt in secret and failed to meet with the Print Shop workers until formal protest was made to the Council as a whole.

"(4) When Leg Council was informed that they may be a party to sex discrimination, they failed to take any positive or investigative action. Rather, the Council denied the charge. This is clearly in contradiction with the interests of all students and particularly women and minority students.

"(5) Jeff Loeb has most recently attempted to intimidate workers to return to work under unsafe and illegal working conditions. Bob Wilkinson's dealings with the A.S. Print Shop workers can only be characterized as immature and authoritarian."

The Council on Feb. 8th refused to address itself to these charges or discuss the minimum conditions necessary to restore the Print Shop to full service. It is now clear that the Leg Council will continue in its attempts to close A.S.

Printing and as that Council has shown a complete lack of integrity the A.S. Print Shop workers can no longer be a party to their manipulations. We have been forced by Leg Council's actions and inaction to resign.

Tonight's meeting will be chaired by citizen Tom Guelcher, and your feelings and input will be asked on the big bus issue in I.V., on next quarter's allocation of the Community Improvement Tax and for recommendations for the I.V. element to the Santa Barbara County General Plan.

Here is your opportunity to give your ideas, comments and feelings on issues that do affect your life in I.V. Everyone who attends has a vote. If you are the type who feels frustrated on what's happening or not happening, why don't you stop by and give your piece of mind to your elected representatives and your fellow community members. Come listen, participate, yell, cry, scream or just agree, but please come, because without your energy, we can't settle these issues. And on behalf of my colleagues and constituents, have a Happy Valentine's Day.

Loeb Blamed by Worker

(Continued from p.4) note to the students. Last year the A.S. Leg Council voted themselves money. This year they are thinking about voting themselves of their fees paid. This dividend is because they are so diligently protecting and representing you as students. (Sic). Now, I ask you, do you feel that you are being represented? For myself, and most of the other Printshop workers there is a contradiction in the phrase "represented." I feel ripped off and alienated by the same members who are supposed to be on my side. (P.S. This letter is not directed at all members of the A.S. Leg Council. A few of you have stood up for us as students and as the Printshop Workers Committee. However, I still feel that you are being used by the members who have so pompously elevated themselves to act as guiding lights of the A.S. Leg Council).

Gauchos Defeat Air Force As Schatz, Clough Key Win

By LANI JORDAN

The UCSB's women's gymnastic team walked away with a decisive victory over the team from US Air Force Academy Friday night in Rob Gym.

The men's team, however, was not as successful, losing to both USC and the Air Force Academy as the latter dominated men's competition.

The women's team defeated Air Force 120.70 points to 115.15 in what was a large jump in the score as compared to other meets. Head Coach Nanette Schnaible said that most of the women improved their scores, but admitted that the meet might have been slightly overscored. Outstanding performances Friday night were given by Katie Clough, who placed fourth, and Denise Guigliemulli, who finished first on vault. In the bars event UCSB took first and second place with Clough scoring 7.55 and Karla Schatz scoring 7.95. Clough and Schatz again placed in the beam routine, taking fifth and second place, respectively.

In the floor exercise event Renee Aufer dazzled the crowd with her amusing mime routine. This earned her first place with an all-time season high score of 8.3. Schnaible felt that with improved tumbling runs Aufer could make it to the Regionals. Schatz finished fourth and Clough took fifth place in floor exercise.

Placing first all-around for the evening was Schatz with a high score of 30.75, followed by 30.65 and second place to Clough. Third and fourth places went to Air Force, while Aufer took fifth.

Results of the men's competition saw the Air Force Academy capturing first place with 202.30 points, followed by USC scoring 194.0. Although UCSB trailed far behind with 147.75 points, Coach Art Aldritt commented, "We weren't displeased with the results."

Thirteen of the scores showed improvement over the last meet, while many of the men hit their highest scores of the season.

Team captain Allen Cashen scored his highest this season with a score of 8.4. Capturing a tie for fourth place in floor exercise was Jeff Bettman, who also hit his season's highest score of 8.55. Mike Sasaki tied his season high of 8.7, giving him third place.

Thus, the men's team showed considerable improvement in three of the six events including floor exercise and rings, where four out of five improved their scores, and vaulting three out of five improved.

Men Cap Dual Season with Two Wins Over Opponents

UCSB's men's swimming team finished their dual meet season in fine fashion, disposing of San Jose State and the Aquabears in a double-dual meet last Friday.

Competing under threatening skies that yielded rain just once during the fast meet, the Gauchos whipped the Spartans, as expected, 73-27. Against the Aquabears, a strong group of high school AAU swimmers, the club won 53-42.

"The meet was over in one and one-half hours and it was really windy and really cold," noted head coach Gregg Wilson. With the less than pleasing weather, the times of some of the Gauchos were not as pleasing, but Wilson said, "I was satisfied with most of them."

Paul Goodridge was the Gaucho's only double winner as he captured the 50 and 100 yard freestyles. In the shorter race he clocked a 22.4, while being timed in 49.7 in the 100.

Brent Krantz and Mike Newman also did their usual strong efforts. Krantz swam a 2:01.6 enroute to a first in the 200 backstroke. Newman captured the 200 free in 1:45.8. Each was a member of the winning 400 Medley relay.

For the Aquabears, sophomore Frank Dinkle had a big afternoon winning two races, the 500 and 1000 free. In the 500 he turned 4:49.4 while claiming the 1000 free in an effort of 9:47.0.

Wilson was quite impressed with Dinkle, whom he believes is the club's best swimmer. "As a freshman last year he was a high school All-American in the 500 free. This year he again will be a high school All-American."

This coming weekend UCSB will be hosting the Gold Coast Championships, a two-day affair that pits many of the top Southern California Junior Colleges against the freshmen and sophomores of UCSB's squad.

Swimmers to Take on USC In Last Dual Meet of Year

With the conference championships just two days away, the women's swimming team must clear one last hurdle with a dual meet this afternoon against USC.

It will be the season's final home dual meet for the Gauchos, who are currently unbeaten in nine meets thus far. USC is ranked number two in the nation and was scheduled to meet UCSB earlier in the season, but the meet had to be re-scheduled after each club was beset with illness.

This time around the meet will be lacking some importance, as UCSB will be looking towards the SCAA championships beginning on Thursday.

Head coach Suzie Dressler admitted the timing was not really good and is hoping, win or lose, that the meet will not affect the swimmers' attitude a great deal.

The meet begins at 3:00 in the Campus pool.

Russell, Varga All-SCAA

UCSB's Joan Russell and Sue Varga were named to the All Southern California Athletic Association volleyball team.

Russell, a senior middle blocker, was recently voted the team's most valuable player. Head coach Kathy Gregory said of her star, "she was probably the most valuable player in the league. Replacing Joan is our number one priority for next year."

Varga is a freshman setter from Rolling Hills. She has played some of her best volleyball in crucial league contests. Gregory said, "Sue will be in better condition next year, and will be even better than she was this year."

Women's Gymnastics Squad Relies on Quartet's Success

By LANI JORDAN

At any given gymnastics meet, any one of four of the women competing all-around could be expected to place highest. They probably train and worry more than the specialists because they are expected to do well in all four events: floor exercise, balance beam, vaulting, and uneven parallel bars.

This year's four all-rounders are Renee Auker, Karla Schatz, Enita Mullen, and Katie Clough.

Auker, a senior, is the only veteran of the group and is this year's team captain. Her self-confident nature is well-balanced by her modesty and concern for the team's enjoyment in what she calls "not only a sport but an art."

Her responsibilities as team captain are primarily to set a good example and keep everyone's spirits lifted. It is a young team, so Auker is looked upon for support. She considers her position more of an honorary title and comments that, "I look at myself more as being a team member, rather than leader."

Auker's outside interests include the theatre and a special interest in creative dramatics with children. Her theatrics occasionally show up in her floor exercise routine in the form of mime.

The other three women are freshmen. Karla Schatz is from Pasadena, and has four years of competition behind her on her high school team, where she began in the novice division. Schatz's enthusiasm for gymnastics is evident, as she considers herself a very active person and would rather "spend more time in the gym working out than sitting around bored."

Her close friend Enita Mullen also shows the energetic quality that is so much a part of competition. Though Mullen only began gymnastics at Alameda High School, she has enjoyed acrobatics since the sixth grade. Her other interests include running, which helps her endurance, as well as dance and art.

Katie Clough began competing for a local YMCA when she was in eighth grade. Clough participated on Woodside High's gymnastic team for two years, but was forced to stop competing her junior year due to an injury. Her interest in athletics extends to many water sports, especially scuba-diving. Though her major is undeclared, she is interested in oceanography.

Interestingly, none of the women felt the gymnastic team was a determinant in coming to UCSB. As Schatz stated, "The team was not a primary factor, but I knew I wanted to continue competing."

The competition is a little more intense for someone competing all-around. "You worry more and sometimes take it too seriously," says Mullen, who finds herself constantly pacing back and forth at the meets. Auker and Clough also feel the added pressure, whereas Schatz feels more relaxed and gets rid of anxieties by sitting by herself.

Mullen forces herself "to think of performing rather than competing," Schatz adds, "It's easier to play to an audience than to a judge." Auker feels that competing all-around makes on a better, well-rounded gymnast.

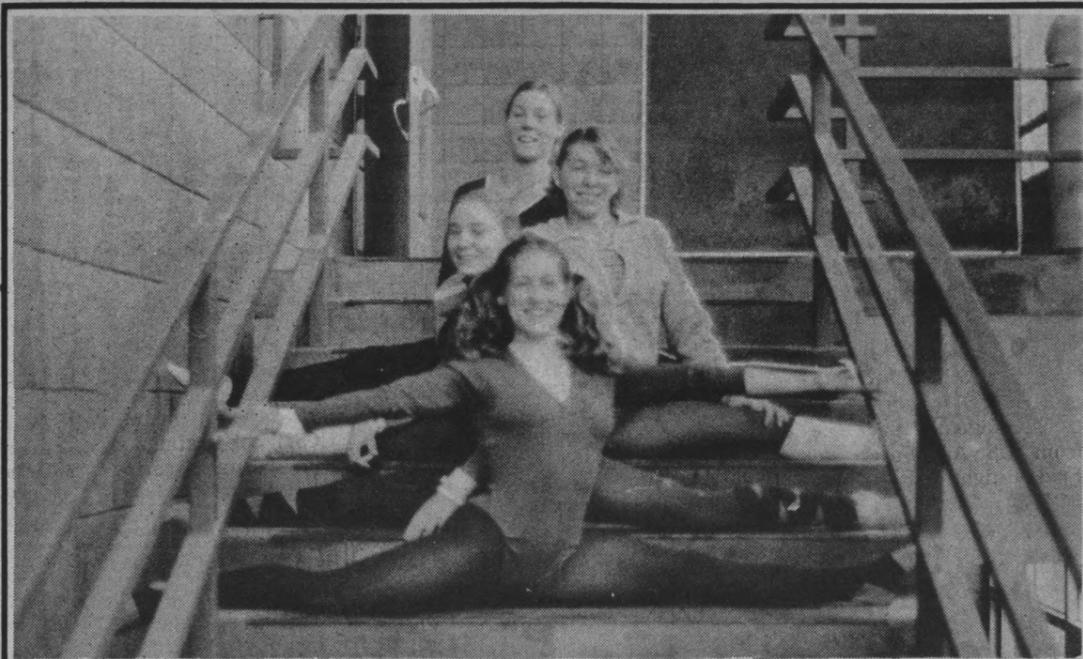

All of the women have set personal goals for themselves this season. Schatz's main concern is with cleaning up her routine and getting more advanced moves.

Mullen feels her beam routine needs to become more polished, and would like to relax more in beam competition. "I can play to an audience during floor exercise, and bars and vault go by so fast I don't have time to panic, but the beam..." Clough is concerned over relaxing too. She says, "In competition I don't perform as well as I'm capable of performing because I'm too nervous."

Team captain Auker is less concerned with personal gains, and wants to see each gymnast profit from "this character-building experience." She feels they all can learn a lot about self-discipline, cooperation, and human relationships in general.

When discussing the team itself, it was apparent that it is a very close group of women, who are genuinely interested in each other's progress.

Auker sums it up well when she says, "Point total isn't everything. Our emphasis is on cooperation as well as competition."

RENEE AUKER, ENITA MULLEN, KARLA SCHATZ, AND KATIE CLOUGH, bottom to top, are one of the reasons the women's gymnastic team has enjoyed some success so far this season. All four compete at all-rounders, and except for Auker, all are freshmen. (Photo by Karl Mondon)

Five Veterans Make Puailoa Optimistic For Golf Season

By GREG HALADAY

Musing over a fifth place finish last season in the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference (PCAA), UCSB's rookie golf coach Scott Puailoa feels that this year's team is "a little stronger."

The reason for Puailoa's optimism: five of last season's seven touring players (six regulars and an alternate) are returning. This quintet includes junior Mike Wolseley, sophomore Adam Kayson, senior Scott McBeath, senior Dave Bush, and junior K.C. Corcoran.

Puailoa's optimism is somewhat restrained; UCSB is a member of the PCAA, which is consistently the most competitive golf conference on the west coast. Last year, according to Puailoa, the PCAA might well have been the nation's toughest league. San Jose State was 1977's PCAA titlist. In addition to being a member of a challenging conference, UCSB will be without the services of last year's top two players, both of whom have graduated.

Mike Wolseley played as the number three man last season, and is this year's top-seeded Gaucho. Wolseley's presence adds a cosmopolitan touch to the team, as the junior is a transplanted Irishman from Belfast.

Ten to twelve tournaments will be played this season, in addition to six matches. The matches are meaningless, explained Puailoa. Matches are arranged primarily to keep the team sharp between tournaments. Probable match opponents are Cal State Northridge, USC, and UCLA. In other words, "tournaments are everything," as Puailoa observed. Teams competing in such tournaments are awarded points on the basis of how they place in the final standings for the event. The accumulation of high-point totals can mean a trip to the NCAA nationals at the end of the season. No Gaucho individual player or team has recently participated in the Nationals.

This year is Puailoa's first as the UCSB golf coach. A graduate of Santa Barbara's San Marcos High School, Puailoa attended the University of the Pacific in Stockton, where he played both golf and football. He graduated last May. Now twenty-four years old, Puailoa works at Montecito's Valley Club as a golf assistant and serves as the football coach at San Marcos High. Puailoa has been playing golf for sixteen years. He taught at the Billy Casper Golf Camp in San Diego for a period of four years. Turning professional is a possibility, Puailoa said, but not an immediate goal.

Puailoa stated that he hopes he can "add something to the team"; ideally that something would be an invitation to the NCAA Nationals. Regardless of how well the team performs this year, the new coach has expressed a desire to retain his position at UCSB for an extended period of time.

UCSD Student Health Plan . . .

On Dec. 12 of last year, the students sued the University. In their complaint, Erzinger, Rhomberg and Patton charged that the mandatory insurance plan violated their Constitutional rights on two grounds. The complaint alleged that the students had moral objections to abortions and that all of the students were barred as Catholics from participating in abortions. The complaint also claimed that the University had no right to charge fees that were used strictly for education.

The plaintiffs asked that the court order the University to admit them until their lawsuit was settled. For a final settlement, they asked to be allowed to deduct that portion of their Reg. fees that would pay for abortion services. The court was also asked to declare the Reg. fee the Ed. fee, and the Student Activities fee unconstitutional.

According to Rhomberg, Patton, and Erzinger, they originally met through Patton's mother, who has been active in San Diego pro-life groups. Although Patton and Rhomberg were continuing UCSB students, they claim that they first learned the details of the insurance plan last summer. The three joined in the protest because they had not already paid their fees when the details of the insurance plan were discovered.

The three plaintiffs claim that the UCSD student body has been sympathetic to their cause. Since the original protest started, an unofficial Human Life committee, has been formed with Rhomberg as a member. The plaintiffs also draw confidence from letters that appeared in the UCSD campus paper. "From what has appeared in the Triton Times, it seems we have pretty good support there," said Erzinger.

The students have also received some moral support from off-campus sources. Patton indicated that she had been contacted by several San Diego Right to Life groups. The San Diego Union has published editorials supporting the plaintiff's position. Americans United for Life has also expressed interest in the Erzinger case and is considering whether or not to offer legal aid.

The plaintiffs state that they have not sought organized support and they have asked that individuals interested in the case give aid as individuals.

The suit was originally filed because the plaintiffs lacked confidence in the responsiveness of the UCSD administration. According to Rhomberg, there has been some support from campus groups who wish to see the challenge to the Reg. fee allocations. Rhomberg also noted that relations between the Reg. fee advisory committee and the Administration were poor during Fall Quarter, 1977.

Essentially, the plaintiffs see their case as a moral one. "We should not have to pay for abortion in order to attend UCSD," said Patton. All three plaintiffs wrote the UCSD administration at the beginning of the controversy advising the administration of their position. Although the University has expressed sympathy with this position, it has refused offers of partial fee payment.

None of the plaintiffs feel that their suit might deny abortions to San Diego students who wish them, although all three oppose abortion in general. "I doubt if that would happen very often," said Rhomberg. Rhomberg noted that Medi-Cal covers abortion for women unable to afford them.

According to the plaintiffs, they have stayed at UCSD to fight the issue out. "If I leave this place, every one at UCSD will be forced to pay, knowingly or unknowingly, for abortion," said Patton. Said Rhomberg, "If every one took that attitude, it would mean that the University was only available to those who wished to participate in abortions." Rhomberg also wishes to protect the five years he has invested in the Applied Physics and Information Sciences program.

Reportedly, several developments are pending for the plaintiffs' side of the case. Three additional students have joined the anti-abortion protest for winter Quarter, and several others are considering joining in Spring Quarter.

According to Burton Shamsky, the plaintiffs' attorney, Erzinger, Patton, and Rhomberg are also thinking about expanding the scope of their complaint. The three may decide to challenge the UCSD medical school application form, which includes questions about the applicants' feelings about abortion.

Since the filing of the suit, the plaintiffs have already gotten partial satisfaction of their complaints. In an agreement reached early in January, the University admitted Patton and Rhomberg as students without requiring payment of Reg. fees. Until the suit is settled, their fees will be held in a court trust.

The agreement also reimbursed Susan Erzinger for the $50 registration deposit she paid in April '77. Erzinger, who would have been an entering Freshman last Fall, is currently attending the University of San Diego. Her plans for the future are still uncertain.

U.C. Lecturer Position

understanding that the instructor category holds no possibility for SOE. Instructors will be allowed to work a maximum of four years, which Blakely said provides "enough time to demonstrate skills."

A key aspect of the proposed changes, according to Blakely, is the effect they will have on hiring of women and minority faculty. Presently women and minority faculty have been stifled in their attempts to gain SOE because their initial years of U.C. service, seen by Blakely as integral in the pursuit of SOE, are counted towards the eight year limit. Time served as an instructor would not, under the new plan, be counted towards the eight years.

Blakely feels this new plan will "help overcome impediments to hiring due to the current system" in addition to letting the University of California "know where it stands in terms of Affirmative Action." Current statistics are misleading, he said, because many women and minorities who are counted are not in positions where they will be directly involved in decision making processes such as the Academic Senate.

Copies of the committee's report were mailed by Saxon's office last week to campus administrators and Academic Senates. However, no public announcement has yet been forthcoming from Saxon's office, nor has the report been made available for public distribution.

Implementation of the proposed plan is not expected until students, faculty and administrators have been contacted for their input. Blakely reported that Saxon's office would take steps to implement those revisions quickly approved by all campuses, leaving points of disagreement to be worked out through "negotiations."

Finally, Blakely said that the report calls for a review of all U.C. faculty personnel who have served six years or more to see how they would be affected by the recommended changes. He said the University "didn't want anyone hurt by the implementation of new policies."

Moratorium

Michael Bennet, a resident of Pacific Oaks, refuted Tombs saying, "Mr. Tombs' assumptions are too good to be true, people will be evicted by raising of their rents." In the face of the large turn out of amendment supporters, the supervisors went down the roll call vote. As Robert Kallman voted "Aye," making the vote four out of five, he was greeted with a wave of applause.
