

Governor's Proposal: Raise U.C. Fees $150

By BARRY SHELBY
Sacramento Correspondent

Keeping true to his promise of not raising taxes in California, Governor George Deukmejian released a 1983-84 budget yesterday which advocates raising student fees at all levels of education while denying cost of living increases for some welfare recipients.

In order to reduce spending of state general funds but maintain current budget levels, Deukmejian proposed that U.C. students pay an additional $150 a year, while fees for California State University students would increase by $230 a year, and community college students would pay a $50 per semester fee.

Deukmejian's plan also calls for some of the fee increases to be redirected into the financial aid program in an attempt to prevent lower income students from leaving U.C. and state universities. No such financial program, however, was suggested for the state's community colleges.

"In devising the higher education portion of the budget, we wanted to maintain the quality of the system," Department of Finance Director Michael Franchetti said. "But once again, recognizing the fact that we are faced with a fiscal crisis, we also had to make cuts as best we could."

"We have an excellent system of education and it is not unreasonable to ask those people who are actively receiving that education to share somewhat in the burden of maintaining that high level," Franchetti said.

Those Californians who receive welfare payments as part of the state's Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs would receive no cost of living increase next year, thus helping the state save about $400 million in the 1983-84 budget. For the elderly, Deukmejian's budget provides an increase of 2.1 percent to compensate for cost of living increases.

Deukmejian told a joint session of the legislature, "I propose to use the 1983-84 budget as the vehicle to reduce the remainder of this year's deficit. In preparing the budget, we have achieved reductions in spending sufficient to provide us with a balanced budget which includes a projected total reserve of $800 million."

While Republican legislators applauded Deukmejian's austere budget proposals, Democrats from both houses were clearly dissatisfied with the budget decisions proposed by the new governor.

"Nobody around here wants taxes, but his proposal is inadequate," Senate Majority Leader John Garamendi (D-Walnut Grove) said. "(Deukmejian) is at least half short by his own admission and to roll the rest of the deficit over is to borrow on a hope that the economy will be better next year. I don't think the Democrats are willing to do that."

Garamendi commented that "it's interesting that the only tax he is proposing is on students. It is wrong and inappropriate."

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos (D-San Jose) said, "It is his (Deukmejian's) job to give us a plan that will save us from bankruptcy this year. He has not done that. It is irresponsible to carry the deficit over until next year."

While Vasconcellos, chair of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, was primarily concerned with an immediate solution for this year's budget crisis, he also advised students throughout the state to organize and fight the governor's budget proposal for next year.

"It's time for students to stand up and mobilize, to become very political and educate the legislature on their desires for public higher education," he said.

Senate Speaker Pro-Tem David Roberti was highly critical of Deukmejian's projection of at least a 2 percent growth in the state's economy next year.

"The whole idea of balancing the budget upon some projected or high-in-the-sky growth is fallacious," he said. "Even in Washington, the president's best economic advisers are predicting a long, continuous recession....Nothing has happened in the last year to presume any kind of increased growth rate," the Los Angeles Democrat said.

"Rather than float a tax on oil companies or on industries that haven't received any new taxes in a long time...we're going to tell the old folks that they'll only get 2 percent this year. In the long run, having the deficit compete with legitimate programs such as higher education and aid to the elderly is going to be very detrimental," Roberti said.

In defense of Deukmejian, Senate Minority Leader William Campbell (R-Whittier) called the governor's deficit financing plan a realistic solution to the state's current economic woes.

Board Of Supervisors Votes To Oppose LNG Terminal Decision

By BARBARA POSTMAN
Nexus Copy Editor

The Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors voted yesterday to support local landowners in their protest against the recent California Public Utilities Commission decision to allow the banking of Pt. Conception as a liquified natural gas site.

Introduced by Supervisor Bill

Wallace, the proposal, which passed 4-1, supports the protests filed by the Hollister and Bixby ranches which call for an appeal of the PUC decision to allow Western LNG Terminal Associates to construct an LNG plant at Pt. Conception at some future date.

Western filed a notice of election with the PUC which stated that it "elects not to pursue a final permit at this time" to build a plant at Pt.

Conception, but it "further elects to retain the conditional permit." The notice allows Western to retain the authority of deciding when the plant is built.

The Pt. Conception site was originally the fourth place choice for an LNG plant in California. Wallace explained that it was "put ahead of the others for expediency and if it is banked, it will exclude consideration of the other sites."

The county should have land-use authority, Wallace said, as opposed to Western or the PUC. In his letter to the board, Wallace stated, "The state Legislature bypassed our planning powers because they were told that the need for LNG was eminent. Now we are told that LNG may be needed sometime in the future — if ever." At Monday's meeting, he explained that the need for LNG had been "an emergency situation," but now "it is no longer needed."

One of the points of protest was the fact that the PUC decision allowed Pt. Conception to be permanently zoned as a viable site for the LNG terminal. Supervisor Toru Miyoshi supported the proposal because, he said, "the indefinite time period is intolerable."

Supervisor De Wayne Holmdahl was the only dissenter because, he explained, "we (the present board members) will not be around 15 to 20 years down the road."

Attorney Bill Marking, representing the Bixby ranch, said "the PUC didn't have the authority to give Western LNG the election." Also speaking in favor of the proposal, Marc McGinnes of the Environmental Defense Center said the county "needs to take action to preserve traditional land use authority."

Western LNG was represented by Arthur Heinzel who asked the board to "preserve the status quo." He said, "Leave things as they are. We know it's (the LNG plant) not needed now, but it may be at some future date."

Both Heinzel and Wallace said the proposal was not a question of whether or not the board supports the construction of the plant, but whether Western or the county should have authority over the way the land is used.

County Sues State Over Offshore Oil Tract Leases

By GREGORY MCMORROW
Nexus Staff Writer

Santa Barbara County is suing the state Lands Commission to block its decision to lease eight tracts of land between Pt. Conception and Pt. Arguello, until a proper consideration of possible damage to the environment is completed.

The county contends that the environmental impact report filed by the commission, which was required by law, is inadequate because it does not assess the potential damage to the environment correctly and provide alternatives which could limit and/or eliminate any environmental damage which might result from offshore oil drilling.

"They admitted that there is going to be water and air quality damage. When they made their decision, they either did not consider it (the damage), or if they did, the evidence was so overwhelming that it (the decision) was an abuse of discretion," Marvin Levin, chief assistant to county counsel, said.

Counsel for the state Lands Commission, contacted in Sacramento, said that Levin's charges were erroneous. "I believe that the EIR will stand on its own and it is one of the most comprehensive ever done in that area," Bob Hight, chief counsel for the Lands Commission, said.

The suit, which will be filed within the next two weeks, also charges that the State Lands Commission did not entirely adhere to legal requirements in the drafting of the environmental impact report.

"We are going to sue because they did not consider environmental factors to the degree they are required to by law," Levin said.

Hight answered Levin's charge, stating that "the commission believes that it acted legally and it is prepared to defend the action."

Levin said the inadequacy of the report could be attributed to the commission's inexperience in the formulation of environmental impact statements in this area. This lease would represent the first offshore oil site leased off Santa Barbara County since 1969.

"They're inexperienced; their staff people have not had to prepare (environmental impact) reports. I don't think there is an ulterior motive, but I think the Lands Commission is eager to lease this land. They want those bucks as fast as they can get them," Levin said.

Hight expressed dismay at Levin's conclusion. "The commission's staff has done 10 to 15 EIRs in that area. I think that amounts to more than anyone anywhere in the world has done," Hight said.

The county is concerned that the increased drilling and associated activities will damage the environment in various ways including oil spills, increase of muds into the ocean from the drilling and dredging, air pollution and garbage which will be discarded from the oil platforms.

"There is a multitude of spills which occur worldwide. Offshore and onshore drilling result in spills. The more you drill, the more you produce the likelihood of oil spills," Levin said.

Hight noted that the report has provided for potential damage to the environment and that before any drilling takes place on any tract of land, a further "site specific" environmental impact report will have to be drafted.

The tracts of land which are under consideration for leasing total approximately 40,000 acres and are located within the three mile limit between Pt. Conception and Pt. Arguello.

The county decided to file suit after the Lands Commission voted to lease the land on Dec. 23. Under the present proposal, the state would lease the tracts of land to oil companies, which would share the profits from the drilling.

The state would receive a minimum of 65 percent of the profits from two of the tracts, and 50 percent from the rest. The state would also require that the oil companies provide insurance totaling over $80 million to protect sea animals and to add an incentive to reduce oil spills.

The oil industry announced in 1982 that the oil finds off the Goleta-Gaviota coast are the biggest discovered in the United States since the Alaskan discoveries made in the '70s.

Israeli Proposal

In Khalde, Lebanon, the United States made another proposal to Israel and Lebanon Monday and President Reagan sent special envoy Philip C. Habib back to the Middle East to try to break the deadlock over an agenda for the troop withdrawal talks. There were indications Reagan was getting impatient with Israel's insistence that an Israeli-Lebanese political settlement be given priority over the withdrawal of Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian troops from Lebanon. An Israeli spokesman said the Lebanese at the fifth session of the talks rejected U.S. proposals made at the fourth meeting last Thursday. But a joint statement by the three delegations said "new proposals on an agreed agenda were submitted today and will be presented to the governments of Israel and Lebanon." Habib told reporters Reagan "emphasized the importance he attaches to achieving the prompt withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon. It is a disappointment to all of us that more headway has not been made."

In El Salvador, leftist guerrillas opened a new offensive Monday at a time when the military is deeply divided over Colonel Sigifredo Ochoa Perez's rebellion against the high command. The guerrillas' clandestine Radio Venceremos announced the offensive over the weekend and two soldiers were reported killed and a dozen civilians wounded in new fighting after a one-week lull. Some 300,000 people in three provinces were without electricity because of rebels attacks Sunday and Monday. Ochoa defied the order Thursday night and sealed off Cabanas province where he is military commander, demanding the resignation of Garcia whom he accused of corruption and inefficiency. Ochoa is believed to represent conservative interests who oppose the social reforms instituted by the government and supported by the armed forces in an effort to retain U.S. aid and defuse popular support for the guerrillas.

In London, eight of 10 women who tried electric shock treatment to reduce pain during childbirth said the new method was successful, the Sunday Times reported. Doctors at Hammersmith hospital who are developing the technique hope it will enable them to use fewer drugs during childbirth, the paper Times said. In the new technique, weak current is applied through four pads fixed on either side of the spine above and below the waist, causing endorphins, natural painkillers, to be released by the woman's body. Developers of the treatment say there is no danger involved.

In Sao Paulo, Brazil, two hundred police stormed the Franco da Rocha state mental hospital to crush a rebellion and breakout attempt, killing six inmates and a hostage, authorities said Monday. The asylum's patients are all convicted criminals or suspects referred by judges for testing of their mental competency to stand trial.

Reagan's Budget

President Reagan is giving serious thought to seeking higher taxes for 1985 and beyond to bring the government's burgeoning budget deficits under control, administration sources said on Monday. One source, said Reagan appeared receptive in general to the tax ideal in a meeting with senior advisers and ordered the Treasury Department for specific proposals. Reagan, facing awesome deficits that could swell from a record $200 billion in 1984 to nearly $300 billion by 1988, also was considering proposals for reducing his military spending plans, freezing spending for certain non-military programs and helping the unemployed. Reagan, under intense pressure from his advisers and political allies to trim his record defense budget, scheduled separate meetings Monday to deal with that issue. Several aides said they were hopeful Reagan would approve a modest cut for 1984 and larger reductions in his military buildup plans for 1985 through 1988.

In Washington, a federal grand jury is investigating allegations that five or six members of the House of Representatives have been using marijuana or cocaine, according to The New York Times. One of those under investigation is former California Rep. Barry M. Goldwater Jr., according to senior law enforcement officials familiar with the inquiry, the Times said Saturday.

In Washington, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker on Monday recommended a rule requiring family planning clinics supported by federal funds to notify parents of minors who receive birth control pills, diaphragms or intrauterine devices. The Planned Parenthood Federation of America immediately moved in U.S. District Court to block implementation of the rule, which still must be approved by the Office of Management and Budget. Critics charged that the regulation would not promote parent-child discussion about sex. "We are afraid that the minor will simply proceed to have sex without protection and the result would be unwanted pregnancies leading to abortion or out-of-wedlock pregnancies that the minor would not be able to handle," said a Planned Parenthood representative.

In Ossining, N.Y., rebellious inmates threw away some of their clubs Monday at the old Sing Sing prison, and state officials said hours later they believed they had "come to terms" with the prisoners for release of 17 guards held hostage.

In Kansas City, Montana, a federal trial aimed at finding out who was responsible for the collapse of sky walks at the Hyatt Regency Hotel was cancelled Monday after victims agreed to a $10 million settlement. The tentative agreement provides a way of resolving the last six lawsuits remaining in federal court.

Student Fees to Increase

In Sacramento, Gov. George Deukmejian's proposed $25.7 billion budget for 1983-84 may not include new taxes, but it contains $204.2 million in fee increases for students at the state's public colleges and universities. Public schools would get a 6 percent general education increase, but would get no increases for a variety of special programs, including bilingual education. The proposed fees would amount to $150 a year at the University of California, $230 a year at the California State University and $100 a year for full-time students and $60 for part-timers at the community colleges. In addition, both UC and CSU are considering sizable one-time fee increases for this spring to meet Deukmejian's emergency 2 percent cutback order of last week.

In Palo Alto, Calif., an experimental machine that may be capable of detecting life far outside our solar system is under construction at Stanford University. Known as a "multi spectrum analyzer," university experts hope the powerful device will permit them to hear signals from intelligent life elsewhere in the Milky Way galaxy.

In Mammoth Lakes, the earth shuddered for the fifth straight day in the High Sierra Monday, but scientists said earthquake activity was dwindling and might be reducing the potential risk of volcanic activity.

In Redwood City, the Sequoia Union High School District plans to allow students to pursue one of three different kinds of diplomas geared toward varying degrees of difficulty: an academic diploma, a regular high school diploma or a vocational-basic skills diploma. California law now allows only the regular diploma.

UCSB Professor Receives Award For Achievements In Philosophy

By ALISON GIESE
Nexus Staff Writer

Herbert Fingarette, UCSB professor of philosophy, has been named as the first recipient of the Romanell-Phi Beta Kappa Professorship in Philosophy for the academic year 1983-84.

As a recipient of the award, Fingarette will receive a stipend of $6,000, and will give three special lectures open to the general public as well as to the academic community.

"I won the award primarily for recognition of past achievements in philosophy," Fingarette said. "The only thing involved will be giving three lectures. It is mainly the honor of having been selected from among philosophers around the country."

To qualify for the award, Fingarette had to be nominated by Chancellor Robert Huttenback. In addition, there had to be a Phi Beta Kappa chapter located at the university. Fingarette estimated that he was selected from several hundred candidates for the award.

In nominating Fingarette for the Romanell Professorship, Huttenback referred to him as "The quintessential scholar, who, though extremely distinguished in philosophy, concerns himself with that discipline's implications for the whole human endeavor."

Fingarette commented, "I believe that in selecting me for the award they were particularly interested in the humanities breadth of a person's work."

Although the exact time, place and topics of the lectures are not officially set, they will probably be given in the spring of 1984 at UCSB.

"My lectures will reflect my work in philosophy. I will be addressing an intellectual, though not specialized audience. It will be a chance to express some of my ideas and to explain the work in philosophy I have done," he said.

Since beginning his career at UCSB in 1948, Fingarette has written numerous books and major papers on philosophical psychology, psychoanalysis, ethics and religion; law, forensic psychiatry, and philosophy; and Confucius and Chinese philosophy. He has also done major studies on the philosophical and legal aspects of privacy and on the legal approach to problems of insanity, intoxication, alcoholism, addiction, and other forms of mental disability, and their relationship to moral intuition.

One of Fingarette's major areas of study has been the philosophy of the mind. His book, The Self in Transformation published in 1963, examines extensive psychoanalytic, personal and religious development.

"I studied psychoanalytic material because I felt philosophy alone was too thin in its human content. Psychoanalysis had much to say on ethical problems," Fingarette explained.

Fingarette's work in psychoanalysis opened him up to Eastern thought. He has presented major papers on Confucius, and delivered lectures on Confucius, Lao Tzu and the Book of Job. His work led to a 1971 Harvard University appointment as a William James lecturer in religion, and a Stanford University appointment as an Evans-Wentz lecturer in Oriental religions.

"I am well known in the field of ancient Chinese classical philosophy," Fingarette said. "I taught myself Chinese for the work. Not too long ago I published a major book on the Book of Job, and am presently writing on the Bhagavad Gita."

In the area of psychiatry and law, Fingarette has written a book, The Meaning of Criminal Insanity. His major contributions in the leading law journals on legal aspects of addiction, alcoholism, and mental disabilities earned him the chance to be the principle speaker at the plenary session of the American Academy of Law and Psychiatry.

He has also done extensive research on addiction at the Royal Psychiatric Hospital in England, has studied English law extensively, and served as president of the American Philosophy Association, Pacific Division.

'Dangerous' Container Is No Threat, Say Officials

An unidentified 55-gallon barrel that was washed up on Santa Barbara Shores beach this morning is in no way a threat to the safety of the surrounding environment or to nearby inhabitants, according to the Santa Barbara Fire Department.

Apparently, the barrel had a warning label, but investigation revealed that its contents were not dangerous.

The barrel was first reported to a fire department hotline as a potential hazard. Fire Station 11 on Hollister Ave. responded and alerted the Coast Guard and the Environmental Health Agency. The area around the barrel on the beach was blocked off from public access and an investigation proceeded.

"Because of the potential hazards every precaution was taken to keep the situation under control," Jim Trask, fire department public information officer, stated.

The content of the barrel was discovered to be waste oil that had fallen off a private boat. "Apparently the barrel had been floating around in the surf and then washed itself on the beach," Trask said. "The whole event really came to nothing."

Lieutenant Dyer of the Coast Guard explained that a private fishing boat, the Blue Jay, went aground in the area. In the process of getting the boat back into commission, the barrel was removed, but it was never loaded back onto the vessel.

"The barrel is not radiological. It contains some oil sludge and it's not dangerous. The barrel washed ashore, and suddenly information got to us and the public that it was radioactive," Lodge said. "We're going out today to check it out further but the scare is really unnecessary."

Trask responded similarly, "It is just a false alert. Everybody can go home now."

Reg Fees

Can you imagine paying over $500 each quarter to enroll in the University of California? If you can't, then you're in for a shock this spring, because that is exactly what students will be required to pay.

This requirement comes not from the vote of the people, not from the state legislature, and not from money-hungry U.C. administrators. Rather, it comes from newly-elected Governor George Deukmejian, a man who, moments after his inauguration, bypassed not just public opinion but the entire state legislature by ordering a 2 percent budget cut.

The result is that U.C. suddenly finds itself without $23 million. And, in keeping with what has become an unofficial university policy over the past five years, the administration will force students to absorb this loss by tacking on a "one-time" surcharge of $100 to Spring Quarter registration fees.

To many students, the phrase "one-time" may ring a bell. For that's precisely what the university claimed the $25 surcharge attached to last Spring Quarter's registration would be. But that surcharge has slyly become part of our permanent fees.

When is this nonsense going to stop? When will the government and the U.C. administration realize that students are not walking Versateller machines, ready and willing to dole out money on command?

Sadly, the answer to these questions may be "never". Or at least not during the period of "Duke" in office. As if he hasn't already done enough damage, the Governor announced yesterday in his budget presentation his advocacy for a $150 increase in U.C. student registration fees during the 1983-1984 fiscal year.

There comes a time when people and things reach a saturation point. Students have now reached this point with full force. No one denies that these are hard times. But the government and the U.C. administration must dig deeper and find other more acceptable areas to bear the budget cuts than students' pockets.

Buy Back

Too many UCSB students have experienced the frustration of seeing their $100 investment for textbooks resold to bookstores for petty change after only ten short weeks.

In an effort to offset this infuriating phenomenon, the Associated Students have organized a cooperative book service. Sellers are allowed to set their own price, and if sold, collect all but ten percent of the funds.

The organization has been criticized by both Campus Bookstore and UCen management as having the potential for providing competition and detracting from used book sales. To these claims UCSB students can only applaud.

For too long the Campus and I.V. Bookstores have held a monopoly over resales, allowing the student no alternative but to accept the sum given, or hopefully wait for a better price when the course is offered again.

Campus Bookstore manager Ken Bowers states that used book sales cover the operating costs that are not met by new sales. This comes as no surprise to the student, who sees his text reappear on the shelf at a later date for multiple times the value it was resold at. One must ask how other commercial bookstores which don't operate with used texts cover their costs?

The Campus Bookstore hires a private contractor to deal with resales, while the A.S. book service is run by volunteers, collecting only a ten percent service fee. In today's belt-tightening economy, the money generated by A.S. through a successful business would help offset their ailing budget, which in turn directly profits students.

With proper advertisement, and student support, the A.S. book service can help students obtain a fair return on their book expenses, rather than having to settle for what others deem a "fair" price.

Bikes

Editor, Daily Nexus:

There has been much comment as of late concerning bike paths, bike riders, and bike accidents. The discussion of pedestrians and their involvement in the daily bicycle fiasco on campus, though, has been limited to treating them as targets for sadistic and homicidal bicycle riders. I therefore wish to add several unsafe pedestrian maneuvers to the list of unsafe bicycle maneuvers published by the Nexus on January 6: the Walk Along the Bike Path as if it Were a Sidewalk Strut; the Cross Anywhere You Please Move; and, most importantly, the Start to Cross, See a Bike Coming, Panic, and Freeze Death Dance. Perhaps if we, as pedestrians, could learn to cross the bike paths quickly and safely, we could put a few mortuaries out of business.

Sports

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I am writing in regards to the profound insight provided by Gary Migdol in the Jan. 4 issue of the Nexus. Admittedly there are those people whose dogmatism regarding sports lacks intelligent reasoning. Armed with this outlook, I examined Mr. Migdol's New Year's resolutions for a fresh look into this matter. And what did I find? Nothing! A few interesting tidbits come into mind...

What premises support his conclusion that "people from the Bay Area just don't know that much about sports?"

Does the fact that he is the sports editor do that? I hope not. Or is this a feeble thrust made by a man unable to provide more intelligent rebuttal for his cause? Certainly this is a most perplexing statement.

From what position could his statements about "narrow-minded Northerners" and "imbeciles" have been made? It seems that two kinds of people can make such a generalization; the all-knowing or the ignorant. Because no single entity can know everything, we should expect that neither does he. Thus option two appears quite appropriate. According to Webster's dictionary, imbecile denotes "a feeble-minded person. A dolt." Well, Mr. Migdol, we are not mentally deficient, neither are you nor anyone else attending this institute of higher education. So perhaps you could redefine your bigoted generalities regarding Northerners or be prepared to intelligently back them up.

In addition, a relabeling might well be in order for those insistent few who persist upon saying that "L.A. sucks." Certainly a "narrow-minded Northerner" or "imbecile" will not do the job. Think harder but don't degrade the rest of us.

What kind of insolence is the statement "L.A. is far and above the more prolific city in sports?" It seems that two months ago Mr. Migdol did not hesitate to laud Steve and Eric Price, Chris Winzein and Scott Grasinger of our renowned soccer team. Well, hate to say this, but these people are from the Bay Area.

In conclusion, I would like to provide my own insight. It appears that Mr. Migdol's resolutions are little more than a front put on by a frustrated man unable to effectively vent his emotions any other way. One comment for Mr. Migdol: It is perfectly fine to vent your feelings, but to do so at the expense of this newspaper, the southerners which you claim to represent, and yes even yourself, will do nothing but earn you contempt from everybody involved.

So, felicitations on your newfound burden, enjoy your year and possibly accept a New Year's suggestion from me...

Next year keep your resolutions to yourself.

The Jam

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I am writing in regard to your Jan. 6 article by Rob Noxious on the Jam. Noxious states that the Jam has been mislabeled as a "mod" (short for modernist) band and that it was much to their chargin that a modernist revival sprang up in Great Britain in late 1978. The writer obviously lacks familiarity with the Jam and has done little research on the band.

Paul Weller has listed modernism as one of his major influences in interviews. In fact, Weller has written about when as a schoolboy he became interested in the modernists of the '60s and bought a Rickenbacker guitar (favored by the mod forerunner of the Who — the High Numbers), a three button suit, a Lambretta scooter and cut his hair in the style favored by Steve Marriot of the Small Faces, an early mod band.

Their choice of the mod style was not due to an aversion to punk (Weller was a fan of the Sex Pistols) but because the style appealed to all the members of the band (though Foxton and Buckler never got into the modern lifestyle as much as Weller did). The Jam continued to show mod influence on their album All Mod Cons where the record label is an RAF bullseye (popularized by the pop art conscious Who and shared by mod bands like Britain's Chords and America's Targets) and the inner sleeve contains a drawing of a Lambretta scooter (the type that Weller used to ride to the mods' hallowed ground of Brighton).

The Jam were glad when their fans began dressing in the mod style but became disillusioned with the English mod revival when it became commercialized and violent whereupon Paul Weller argued with mod revivalist Ian Page in the newspapers over the true meaning of modernism. When asked about the mod revival in Southern California, Paul Weller wished them good luck and advised them not to make the mistakes that the British mods had and to always look to the future like the early modernists did.

The Jam was a great band that was far more than a mod band but there is no question that their music and style have been heavily influenced by mod and they in turn have had a heavy influence on the mod movement. The Jam's last single was not "The Bitterest Pill" as Noxious stated but "Beat Surrender" and its widespread appeal shows the Jam's progression into a mainstream musical force that will be greatly missed.

Men's Swimming Show Their Power Gauchos Take Irvine Invitational

By DAVE COOL
Nexus Sports Writer
"It had to be the best mid-season team effort I've seen in my eight years of coaching at UCSB," said Men's Swim Coach Gregg Wilson. He was referring to the Gauchos' victory in the U.C. Irvine Invitational meet last Friday and Saturday.

The final totals were UCSB-356, Cal State Northridge-277, Claremont-Mudd-243 and USC-216. Also competing in the meet were Pepperdine, Irvine, and San Diego State. The Gauchos would have scored higher had they not decided to leave before the 800 free relay, an event they probably would have won.

The team has been working out the last four weeks without a meet, and was anxious for some competition. "Bob Ward set the tempo of the meet for us by swimming an outstanding 400 I.M. We had five or six kids swim the best unshaved times of their lives," Wilson said.

Dan Tilly, the tenth fastest 200 meter butterfly in the nation last year, set a new meet record in the 100 fly with a time of 51.22. He also won the 200 fly despite being behind by almost two body lengths after the first 150 yards.

Ken Neff, who ranked 12th in the world in the 50 meter free last year came up second in the 100 yard free this weekend to teammate Tim Roach, who swam an outstanding mid-season time of 46.75.

Other winners were Ken Radtkey in the 1650 (66 laps), and the 800 free relay team of Schroeder, O'Brian, Martinez, and Per Bjorkman.

The story of this meet, however, was not the number of wins but the depth that UCSB showed in almost every event.

"We have always been a good championship team; this shows us we can also win some meets with good times in January. It was a low profile meet, but significant because of the good performances. I was really pleased with Steve Hatch and Bob Ward in the breaststroke and I.M."

Wilson said.

The meet showed that the Gauchos are right on track, and set them up for some good times next week when they travel to Pepperdine for a meet which will also include Nevada Las Vegas and the powerful Hawaii Rainbows.

Gaucha Women Hoopsters Beat Pomona-Pitzer

By BARRY EBERLING
Nexus Sports Writer

The Gauchos ran their fastbreak almost flawlessly for one three-minute stretch against Pomona-Pitzer last night. They scored nine straight points and took a 41-33 lead during this span.

Unfortunately, over eight minutes remained in the game. UCSB needed some pressure freethrows by Paula Bowen and a key bucket by Kris Kroyer to make their advantage hold up for a 60-52 victory.

Bowen hit seven charity tosses down the stretch, two coming after the Stagehands had moved within five points. Kroyer rebounded Bowen's only miss for a lay-up that iced the contest.

UCSB Hall Of Fame

3 Athletes to Be Inducted

Mike Hitchman, holder of numerous UCSB football records, Clark Chelsey, a stand track and field star during the 1960s, and Don Kelliher, a former track, football and golf standout, have been voted into the UCSB Hall of Fame in a vote conducted by the UCSB Alumni Association Hall of Fame Committee.

All three former Gauchos stars will be inducted during halftime ceremonies of the UCSB-Cal State Fullerton basketball game on Saturday, Feb. 12.

In addition, former UCSB All-American swimmer Bruce Stahl will be honored as the Alumni Athlete of the Year. Current All-American Gauch swimmer Ken Neff will receive the David A. Pollock Award, given to a UCSB student-athlete on the basis of superior athletic achievement within the past year.

Former UCSB Athletic Director M.S. "Doc" Kelliher will be honored for Outstanding Achievement in the Field of Athletics. This honor is given to an alumnus for athletic achievement after graduation or leaving the university.

Frank Swain, UCSB's

official basketball scorer for 21 years and an active baseball booster, and Jim Campbell, owner of All-American Sporting Goods, will be honored for their community sport of UCSB Athletics.

A brunch and dinner banquet are scheduled on February 12. Contact Janice Pegram in the UCSB Alumni Association Office at 961-2288.

Hitchman, who played from 1964-67, is regarded as one of the best quarterbacks to play at UCSB. He holds eight school records including most passes, touchdowns, and yards gained in career. He gained numerous post-season honors.

Chelsey was an All-American in the shot put and discus during the 1967-68 seasons. He placed second in the discus and fifth in the shot put despite a painful hand injury at the NCAA's. Chelsey still holds the school record in the shot put at 57.7.

Kelliher was captain of the 1957 Gauch track and field team, and Most Valuable Athlete in 1958. His most memorable event was defeating UCLA's Olympic Decathlon Champion, Rafer

Johnson, in the javelin in a double dual meet in 1957. He also played on the football and golf teams.

Stahl was an all-American and school record holder for the swimming and diving team. He recently represented the United States in three prestigious international swimming meets. He currently holds two American swim records, and is also a former American and world record holder in the long course 50 meter freestyle.

Doc Kelliher was UCSB's Athletic Director from 1958 to 1961. He was an outstanding all-around athlete during his undergraduate days at then Santa Barbara State College. He later served in the armed forces, taught around the world and numerous articles were published in distinguished periodicals.

Neff was the 1982 PCAA Swimmer of the Year, and an NCAA all-American in three events. Currently ranked in the Top 15 in the world in the 50 meter freestyle, Neff holds two school and conference records.

Swain has been a member of the basketball and baseball boosters groups. He helped spearhead an effort to build UCSB's $30,000 dugouts. During his 21 years as official scorer at UCSB home basketball games, he has missed only two games.

Campbell was an avid supporter of the Gauch football program.

Gauchos Win...

"We're used to shooting freethrows under pressure," Bowen said. "We do it in practice with the threat of extra laps."

So far this year, though, the Gauchos' free throw shooting hasn't won them many games.

"I think the players have been frustrated because the free throw percentages haven't been so good," coach Bobbi Bonace said. "Paula did a good job of poising herself. It would have been tight down the stretch without her."

The main reason that Pomona-Pitzer was in the contest at all near the end was the shooting of Carol Ferren. The 5-8 senior had a game high 21 points.

UCSB had no standout in the statistic department. It didn't need any. With Bowen, Kroyer, and Thyra Ladyman each scoring 9 points and Lori Sanchez adding 7, it was able to win with balance.

The Gauchos will now travel to Biola to play their fourth game in five nights.

"The players are tired, but we want to win," Bonace said, remembering the Eagles' 7-2 series record against UCSB. "I think we're pretty evenly matched. We just need to play defense better."
