Chritton and Caddell Agree U.S. 'Weaker'

Speakers Claim Nation Taking Wrong Direction

By Patrick Whalen
News Editor

Renowned political strategist Patrick Caddell returned to UCSB Monday and joined Central Intelligence Agency officer-in-residence George A. Chritton Jr. in a dialogue that sought to examine the causes behind what Caddell termed a "considerably weaker America."

Appearing before about 80 people in Phelps 1260, the controversial pair spoke of a damaging shift in the nation's direction over the past 20 years, a shift that has had negative effects on the country's economic, social and political systems.

To alleviate the problem before it reaches an insurmountable level, both stressed a rethinking of current American values and a return of a "power to the people" type of movement.

Citing the trillion-dollar federal deficit, the profusion of foreign investors in the American economic marketplace, and a widening gap between "those who govern America and those who are governed," Caddell, a lecturer at UCSB last spring, declared that "if you look at (American) society, you will find that there are some very threadbare patches there.... We have a situation of real decline and stagnation."

He added that the "ultimate key" in solving the dilemma is "power to the people."

Chritton, who preceded the dialogue addressed some of the concerns associated with his university affiliation, underscored UCSB's own CIA officer-in-residence, George A. Chritton Jr., looks on as political strategist Patrick Caddell discusses the current corruption in American politics.

Caddell's views, saying that "in a democracy, we basically get the government we deserve."

If students are dissatisfied and want to change the government, "(you should) start now while you're in college.... If we don't get the best people into government and politics, we'll be worse off than we are now," Chritton said.

Aside from challenging students to get politically active, neither claimed to have solutions to these (See FORUM, p.4)

Bias Claimed in Arguments Presented for Election Issues

By Ben Sullivan
Campus Editor

Some student government officials have accused the Campus Elections Commission of placing strong biases into the "key arguments" that were released this week as an aid to voters on the three measures appearing in today's special election.

Paul Scriven, an election commission member, said the group was politically neutral and has "bent over backwards" to present strong and fair arguments both for and against" each of the three issues, but other students have expressed outrage at what they perceive to be "obvious bias" in the arguments' wording.

"It's obvious that these arguments are leaning one way," Associated Students Lobby Director Jaime Acton said. "I'm outraged."

Acton believes the arguments present a bias toward passage of two of the proposals that would make assessment of mandatory independent fees, and adjustment and increases of A.S. fees, easier. In such cases, the approval rate would be changed from two-thirds of 20 percent of the student population to 50 percent-plus-one of 27 percent of the student population.

Further assessment of such fees would be required for the financing of proposals that may appear in the Spring Quarter election, including expansion of the UCen, the building of a recreational/sports center and the increasing of student financial support of the UCSB Childcare Center.

"It's very apparent that they want a simple, easy process for passing campus (fees)," Acton said.

Responded Scriven, "there really was no bias and ... we did a good job of being neutral."

However, UCen Governance Board member Marc Evans also believes that the commission's set of arguments "strongly favors the pro-50 percent-plus-one vote" for independent mandatory fees. He also said that by combining the 27 percent turn-out rate requirement with that of the simple majority, the election process might be (See ELECTION, p.3)

Dole Takes Two States, Democrats Split

From the Associated Press

Sen. Bob Dole scored an impressive victory in both the South Dakota primary and Minnesota caucuses Tuesday night, defeating former television evangelist Pat Robertson and leaving Vice President George Bush far behind.

Rep. Richard Gephardt won the South Dakota race on the Democratic side and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis won the Minnesota Democratic caucuses Tuesday night in a demonstration of voter appeal outside his native New England.

Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon were locked in a tight race for second place in Minnesota.

Bush, coming in fourth behind Rep. Jack Kemp in Minnesota, virtually conceded defeat in advance in both Midwestern states, putting up little effort and focusing instead on the South.

Tuesday's voting gave the field of presidential hopefuls a chance to show electoral strength before the Southern festival of primaries and caucuses known as Super Tuesday on March 8. And Dole, bouncing back from a drubbing at Bush's hands last week in New Hampshire, was making the most of it in his Midwestern home-ground.

In returns from 80 percent of South Dakota's 1,151 precincts, Dole had 36,789 or 56 percent of the vote, compared to 19 percent for former television evangelist Pat Robertson and 18 percent for Bush. Rep. Jack Kemp trailed with 5 percent.

With 83 percent of the Democratic precincts reporting in South Dakota, Gephardt had 23,849 or 45 percent and Dukakis 15,600 or 30 percent. The also-rans were Sen. Albert Gore Jr. at 9 percent and Gary Hart at 7 percent. Jesse Jackson had 5 percent, as did Sen. Paul Simon, fighting for survival in the Democratic race.

Gephardt and Dukakis were both well-pleased.

Dukakis said he had run well "right in the backyard of both Gephardt" and Sen. Paul Simon. "If we can continue to do consistently well as we did tonight, we're going to win this nomination for the presidency," he said.

Higgins' Kidnappers Captured, UN Seeks Iranian, Syrian Help

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The main Shiite Moslem militia has caught three gunmen who kidnapped a U.S. Marine officer serving with the United Nations, but not the mastermind of the abduction, security sources said Tuesday.

The United Nations has approached Iran, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, which have influence in Lebanon, seeking help in the search for Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, U.N. spokesman Mario Zamorano said in New York.

Zamorano said the contacts were made by Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding, who was in the region when Higgins was kidnapped last Wednesday. The 43-year-old Marine from Danville, Ky., is a decorated Vietnam veteran and was an aide to former U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

The relatively moderate Shiite militia Amal has seized 42 suspects in a clamp down on Shiite fundamentalists since Higgins was abducted near Tyre, 50 miles south of Beirut, an Amal spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

Shultz Cites 'Clear' Commitment by Soviets to Leave Afghanistan

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Tuesday the Soviet Union has made a "very clear" commitment to withdraw its troops from Afghanistan, even though no firm timetable has been announced.

U.S. sources said the Red Army had begun preparations to leave. Soviet soldiers were sent to Afghanistan in December 1979 and an estimated 115,000 are in the country helping the Communist government fight Moslem insurgents.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization officials who attended a closed meeting with Shultz described him as hopeful of a Soviet withdrawal, but said he did not mention specific evidence that preparations were under way.

Shultz told reporters, when asked why he was optimistic about Soviet intentions: "Their statements are very clear and very public and unequivocal, unadorned."

Two Arabs Killed; Palestinians Reported Buried Alive in Mud

JERUSALEM — Police detained a Jewish settler accused of fatally shooting a 13-year-old Arab girl Tuesday in the occupied West Bank, and troops shot and killed a second Palestinian, the army said.

An Arab teenager in the occupied Gaza Strip accused Israeli soldiers of burying him and a companion alive in a beach near the town of Khan Yunis last week. The army said it was investigating.

It was the second alleged case of live burial by soldiers. Four Arabs from the West Bank village of Kfar Salem said soldiers used a bulldozer to bury them in mud and sand earlier this month. The army arrested two soldiers and said more would be detained.

U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz leaves Washington on Wednesday for a five-day round of shuttle diplomacy to launch a new peace initiative.

U.S. Ambassador to Ireland is Greeted by Surprise by Villagers

DUBLIN, Ireland — U.S. Ambassador to Ireland Margaret Heckler prayed at the churchyard where her grandparents are buried and visited the cottage where her father lived before he emigrated to the United States.

The visit by Heckler was supposed to be a secret, but people in Ballysteen, a village of 200 people near the River Shannon 14 miles west of Limerick, found out in time to spruce up the ancestral cottage.

Hijacker's Confession, Illegally Obtained by FBI, Thrown Out

WASHINGTON — The FBI illegally obtained a suspected Shiite Lebanese terrorist's confession to leading a 1985 airplane hijacking during "relentless interrogation" that violated his rights, a judge ruled Tuesday.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker suppressed oral and written confessions that Fawaz Younis gave to agents after he was lured aboard an FBI-chartered yacht in the Mediterranean last Sept. 13.

Parker ruled the statements were inadmissible as evidence because Younis was denied his constitutional protection against self-incrimination and his right to legal counsel during four days of questioning aboard a Navy ship in the Mediterranean.

"Somewhere along the way, in its zeal and determination to indict and prosecute an alleged hostage-taker and hijacker under recent congressional enactments, and in securing Fawaz Younis' written confession, the FBI failed to comply fully with constitutional restraints and precedential Supreme Court decisions," Parker said in a 47-page opinion.

'Quid Pro Quo' Allegedly Means 'Pay Off' to Israeli Labor Party

WASHINGTON — Independent counsel James McKay is trying to determine whether a reference to a "quid pro quo" in a memo to Attorney General Edwin Meese III refers to a payoff to the Israeli Labor Party, government sources familiar with McKay's investigation of Meese said Tuesday.

The memo from longtime Meese friend E. Robert Wallach discusses an Israeli commitment not to bomb a proposed $1 billion Iraqi oil pipeline.

"We all recognize that there would be no progress to this point" had Israeli-born Swiss oilman Bruce Rappaport "not been able to obtain the security package which involves the never-to-be-stated but fully understood quid pro quo which helped to produce that commitment," said Wallach's memo. The memo doesn't elaborate.

Reagan Taps Capitol Hill Vet to Succeed Webb as Navy Sec.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Tuesday picked a veteran Capitol Hill fighter, William L. Ball III, to step into a simmering dispute over Pentagon budget cuts as his new secretary of the Navy.

The White House said the president will nominate Ball, a former Capitol Hill aide who has been chief lobbyist for both the State Department and the White House, to succeed James Webb, who resigned as Navy secretary on Monday with a blast at Secretary of Defense Frank C. Carlucci.

"We look to Will Ball to continue working aggressively for a strong U.S. Navy," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, noting Webb's charge that Carlucci had needlessly sacrificed the administration's goal of a 600-ship fleet.

Patient Cures 'Washing Hands' Compulsion by Shooting Himself

NEW YORK — A depressed young man unable to control a compulsion to keep washing his hands put a .22-caliber rifle in his mouth, pulled the trigger, and survived with his compulsion cured.

"His IQ did not change. There was no change personality-wise. He did not become an automaton. His symptoms are gone," said his doctor, Leslie Sayom, a psychiatrist at Shaughnessy Hospital in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

Assembly Narrowly Approves Appointment of Dan Lungren

SACRAMENTO — An Assembly committee Tuesday narrowly approved Gov. George Deukmejian's appointment of Rep. Dan Lungren as state treasurer, handing the Republican congressman and governor their first victory in the heated confirmation battle.

The vote by the special Assembly Select Committee on the Office of the State Treasurer was 10-9. One Democrat, Assemblyman Dave Elder, D-Long Beach, joined nine Republicans in supporting the appointment. Nine Democrats opposed it.

The Assembly panel's vote took place five days after the Senate Rules Committee, by a 3-2 vote, recommended that the Senate reject the nomination.

Both houses are scheduled to vote on the appointment Thursday.

Deukmejian named Lungren, R-Long Beach, last year to succeed the late Jesse M. Unruh, a Democrat, as treasurer.

The attorney general and legislative counsel say that either house can veto the appointment. Deukmejian contends that both houses must reject to prevent Lungren from taking office.

Governor, Legislators to Submit $5.4 B. for State Improvements

SACRAMENTO — Gov. George Deukmejian and legislative leaders have agreed to submit a record $5.4 billion in state bond measures for roads, schools, prisons, housing, libraries and toxic cleanup programs to California voters this year.

That means that the total amount of bond proposals facing voters this year will be $6.1 billion — $3.2 billion on the June ballot and at least $2.9 billion more in November. A $776 million park bond measure qualified for the June ballot earlier through an initiative campaign.

The $6.1 billion is more than double the total of $2.75 billion in bonds submitted to California voters in June and November of 1986, which was the previous record high year.

Bathroom Executive Elected to Gay and Lesbian Board in L.A.

LOS ANGELES — A man listed as corporate president of one of the city's most popular bathhouses has been elected to the board of directors of the Gay and Lesbian Community Services Center, the largest private recipient of county AIDS-fighting money.

The election of Glenn Matsuki to the center's board fuels the controversial effort to shut the 12 bathhouses operating in the county.

Matsuki, who operates a florist shop, denied that he was president of 3 MCs Inc., the corporation that owns Mac's bathhouse.

But the Los Angeles Herald Examiner said Tuesday that corporate records maintained by the secretary of state have Matsuki listed as president, with a Los Angeles address that matches the home residence on Matsuki's Department of Motor Vehicles records.

Body Shaking After Surgery is Caused by Use of Anesthetics

SAN FRANCISCO — The post-operative shaking endured by half the 25 million people who undergo surgery each year results from the use of anesthetics, not from decreased body temperature as had been assumed, according to a study by researchers in two states.

The finding could lead to improved treatments to prevent the unpleasant and uncontrollable tremors that in some cases resemble a seizure and can be dangerous to patients, researchers said Tuesday.

Funds to be Transferred from Rent Savings

A.S. to Consider Bill on Deficit in Communications Personnel Budget

By Amy Collins
Reporter

Associated Students President Curtis Robinson will ask Legislative Council tonight to consider a $20,000 budget transfer that could save at least one Storke Communications employee's job.

Robinson's proposal would allocate money saved by Monday's UCen Governance Board's decision to slash A.S. rent by over $30,000 to cover a deficit in the communications personnel budget. The funding would begin in July 1988, when the next fiscal year commences.

The plan presents an alternative to a Finance Board solution that proposes a budget cut of $5,000.

The president's bill further proposes that another $16,000 saved by the rent cut be put into the A.S. Unallocated Account, which currently holds approximately $3,000, according to Larry Lokka, chair of the A.S. Finance Board.

In a separate bill proposed by On-Campus Representative David Lehr, $623.05 will be requested to establish an A.S.-run computerized book exchange through which students could bypass the campus bookstore to buy and sell directly to other students.

The bill states that there is a "need for a place for students to sell their books back at a higher price than $10," and to "buy books that are 'used' at a lower price than $1 less than the cost of a 'new' book."

"I think this will be really beneficial to students, because they will be able to exchange books with other students without having to go through the bookstore and they will be getting better prices," A.S. External Vice President Carla Jimenez said.

A second bill proposed by Robinson requests that students be given the opportunity to rate the chancellor's performance in the upcoming Spring Election. The bill states that "ASUCSB feels it necessary to gather further student input on the Chancellor's performance," since "student opinion is of the utmost importance."

If approved, the bill states that a "plebiscite" will be placed on the ballot reading: "Do you feel that the present Chancellor of UCSB, Barbara S. Uehling, is doing a satisfactory job?" Students would have the choice of voting "yes," "no," or "too early to tell," and will be provided with space to make comments, according to the bill.

In other business, On-Campus Representative Cheryl Zaro is scheduled to make a presentation explaining the need for an A.S. newsletter. The presentation will request that the A.S. Advertising and Publicity Board be reorganized and given an additional $9,000 to publish a bi-monthly bulletin.

"Its purpose is to outreach to the students with information about what's going on in the (A.S. clubs, organizations, council) meetings. By knowing what is going on in the meetings, hopefully more students will want to get involved," Zaro said.

"It's a large amount of money, (the $9,000 being requested), but you have to consider what this would be. This would be advertising for all the (A.S.) groups," said Megan Gildersleeve, who is helping develop the newsletter.

Leg Council is also scheduled to discuss whether to endorse a clean-up day of the Isla Vista Transition House, an event sponsored by CalPIRG and scheduled to take place Saturday, Feb. 27. Robinson requests that A.S. Leg Council co-sponsor the event and commit "actual event time and/or money" to the project, according to the bill he will present.

Another bill, proposed by Off-Campus Representative Dave Karoly, would require student groups to register with A.S. rather than the Activities Planning Center to receive A.S. monies. The bill has been proposed "in order to begin to smash the oppression and exploitation of students by UCSB Administration," according to the bill.

Council is also scheduled to discuss two by-law changes in its constitution. One change, proposed by Off-Campus Representative Dan Birdsall, would transfer $20,028 from the A.S. Capital Reserves Account to the A.S. Unallocated Account. The other by-law change would allow newly elected A.S. Leg Council members to take office only after completing a one-month period of training.

ELECTION

confusing two separate issues.

"People might be for the 50-percent and not for the 27-percent requirement," Evans said.

In addition, Acton believes the commission is too quickly placing the vote before the students, who have not been given ample time to inform themselves on the issues. Three weeks have elapsed since the decision was made to hold the special election.

"They just want this UCen, they want this RecCen, they want these things now, this year," Acton said.

Although many have successfully argued that a vote should be held to let students decide the percentage of voter turn-out and approval necessary for passage of certain measures, having the election so soon is something Acton opposes.

"The idea of having an election on this matter was my idea, definitely, but the idea of having a special election in three weeks was proposed by somebody else," Acton said. "That they would just allow three weeks for it is pretty incredible."

Acton said the proper time for such an election would be this spring, with the UCen expansion and other proposals being postponed until next year.

Because Acton believes most students have not been given enough time or information to vote on today's ballot measures and that regardless of the outcome the vote it is only of a chancellorial advisory capacity for two of the three measures, he is calling for a boycott of the election.

"It's a mockery of any kind of election process and ... I think the election should be boycotted unless (the students) are considered the ultimate, final say, and we get a written agreement by the chancellor that these are the final results."

"If they don't get the proper turn-out that we have established already (20 percent of the student body), then it nullifies the election," Acton added.

Physicist: SDI Supporters Exaggerate Advances Made in Weapons System

By Deborah Blum
 McClatchy News Service

BOSTON — A Cornell University physicist accused space weapons supporters of "gross dishonesty" in their portrayal of the effectiveness of a missile defense system.

Edwin E. Salpeter said in 30 years of following arms control issues, he had never seen as much dishonest promotion of a program as that surrounding the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Salpeter, who served on an American Physical Society Panel that evaluated space lasers, said his concerns went far beyond recent charges that California weapons scientists have oversold the X-ray laser.

"That technology isn't even there," he told fellow researchers at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "What I'm concerned about is the attempts to oversell systems that we might try to launch earlier. And there I am seeing gross dishonesty without outright lies."

Salpeter said he has read a series of over-influenced reports about the promise of kinetic kill vehicles, space-based homing rockets. The Department of Defense has advocated launching those systems in the next five years.

But Salpeter said enthusiasts who give the Pentagon officials bad information may encourage the wrong decision on which system should be launched.

"What I'm concerned about is the attempts to oversell systems that we might try to launch earlier."

Edwin E. Salpeter

"I have a lot of experience reading reports which promise future success in some technical endeavor," he said. "Nevertheless, nothing in my experience comes close to the excessive claims made by many SDI enthusiasts today."

He said the problem is not so much with the SDI office itself, which has insisted publicly that it does not exaggerate progress, but with enthusiastic supporters.

As an example he cited a recent journal article, by an Air Force colonel, that concluded a Soviet response to SDI would be prohibitively expensive for that country.

The article, he said, assumed the United States would use a very effective, inexpensive technology while the Soviets would be forced to spend hundreds of billions of dollars on a new, fast-burning fleet of missiles to outrun the attack rocket system.

But, Salpeter said, the Air Force analysis did not mention the fact that the Soviets have far less expensive missile technology available, such as lightweight, single-warhead missiles, as opposed to the bulky, multiple-warhead versions popular today.

"It never really lies," Salpeter said. "But like many of the analyses, it hides the changing assumptions."

Further, he said SDI advocates tend to attack their critics rather than answering the questions raised about the program. For instance, the APS panel, on which Salpeter served, concluded that at least a decade of research is needed before even a decision can be made about the space weapons program.

The study was hung up a year by the classification process. When it was finally released, supporters promptly attacked the scientists who served on the panel.

Lowell Wood of Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, for instance, who works on the X-ray laser, told a congressional hearing that the panel was full of closet anti-SDI activists.

Co-chairman of that panel, Kumar Patel of Bell Labs, a pioneer in gas-powered lasers, said earlier that it has been the least professional response to a report he has ever encountered.

Wood has not returned phone calls about that issue. He and Livermore co-founder Edward Teller have, in fact, been charged with overselling the X-ray laser program to White House officials. Concerns about misrepresentations have sparked a General Accounting Office in-problems, but Caddell theorized that before long a "national renaissance to revitalize the economic and social fabric" would occur.

"It strikes me that with the creative and intellectual talents we have in this country, and with all our natural resources, a drastic change would come about," he said.

Both men asserted that the majority of the nation's problems stem from those who preside over the positions of power.

Caddell referred to a "political elite" — professional politicians, lobbyists and the Washington D.C. media establishment — that is out of tune with the "reality of today's America."

Chritton said that while the nation's political machinery is fine, the people and values that control the government need to be changed.

Caddell, who has worked on over 100 political campaigns since the 1960s, including Jimmy Carter's successful ascension to the presidency in 1976, supported Chritton, saying that the problem lies

"not in the bottom or the middle, but with the leaders at the top."

If those in power were to acknowledge and discuss the declining state of the nation, they would find themselves without jobs, he said. "To admit the condition is to endanger your own status," he said, "so what we have is gridlock," where change cannot occur.

Americans have compensated for the resulting decline in the form of the two-wage-earner family and by inundating itself with "gadgets" — technological toys and social novelties — that distract from reality.

But, he said, another side effect is that university students are "inheriting, economically, a lesser America with lesser opportunities than I had when I got out of college."

As an example of the current decline, Caddell, who in the past year has been blamed for tipping the media on the Gary Hart-Donna Rice scandal and for authoring the speech that drove Sen. Joseph Biden out of presidential contention, pointed to the presidential candidacy of Richard Gephardt.

Caddell said that Gephardt, who was

Cosby Show Consultant Will Speak on Media and Minority Stereotypes

Alvin Poussaint, associate dean of the Harvard Medical School, will address "The Media and Multiculturalism" tonight at 8 p.m. in Campbell Hall.

A member of the Harvard Medical School faculty for 19 years, Poussaint currently works as the psychology consultant for The Cosby Show. Reviewing all of the show's scripts prior to the start of production, he suggests ways in which the scripts could better portray realistic family behavior.

Along with the show's writers and Bill Cosby, Poussaint works to ensure the show is free of humor that could be considered derogatory to any group of people, including stereotypes of minorities that are commonly found in the media.

After receiving his Master's degree from Cornell University, Poussaint pursued postgraduate research and served as an intern and resident at the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute.

During the civil rights movements of the '60s, he served for two years as southern field director for the Medical Committee for Human Rights, providing medical care for civil rights workers and fighting to desegregate health facilities in the South.

Sponsors of the lecture are UCSB Arts & Lectures, Activities Planning Center, the departments of black studies, communications, psychology and sociology, the School of Education, EOP/SAA, the Critical Issues Program, A.S. Program Board, the Center for Chicano Studies, the Center for Black Studies, the Black Students Association, NAACP and EPIRA.

investigation. Teller, in an earlier statement, denied those claims.

And Salpeter said no one should be fooled about the likelihood of a quick launch of X-ray laser technology. He said that appears so far in the distance, that it should be possible to lie about it.

"At best you could say you were optimistic," he said.

In fact, he said, the X-ray laser would make a poor missile defense weapon because it does not penetrate into the atmosphere. Rather, it would be a better anti-satellite weapon, which in fact would make it a risk to the SDI system itself.

The Office of Technology Assessment has prepared an independent analysis of the SDI system, which researchers such as Salpeter say is much needed. But the Defense Department has kept that study classified for eight months, although much of it is based on public documents. In fact, Anthony Fainberg of the OTA said at the meeting that he had expected to be able to present the findings. Instead, he could discuss only its outline, showing other scientists, for instance, what the table of contents was expected to look like.

Salpeter said that he knew it was considered "bad form" in a public science talk to accuse others of dishonesty. But he said the situation has become bad enough that he decided to break the rule.

He said his fear was the excessive dishonesty, even though aimed at selling the program to the public, would lead to mediocre technologies being approached by the Pentagon.

victorious two weeks ago in the Iowa caucus, is "perpetrating the greatest political fraud I have ever seen" because of his recently shifted ideological views that have aligned him with voters in the nation's Midwest.

"This was a man who, until Christmas, was considered an 'effective insider' on the Washington scene ... and now he is blasting the corporate establishment and is touting himself as the 'people's candidate,'" Caddell said, alluding to Gephardt's corporate financial support that conflicts with his campaign rhetoric against big business.

"Voters need to challenge Dick Gephardt on a fundamental issue: is it right to show yourself marching under false flags? That is a fundamental issue that is far worse than pandering or flip-flopping on the issues."

Though Chritton said the main reason they held the dialogue was that they discovered they shared mutual views over dinner several months ago, the discussion strayed into each's area of expertise.

Responding to questions from the audience, Caddell denounced the way candidates like Gephardt sell themselves to the public via television and planned media sessions, which provided an irony to the proceedings, since Caddell has been credited with creating many of the techniques that are essential to modern campaigns.

Caddell, who is currently pursuing a book contract in addition to several other projects, also fielded questions on the 1988 presidential campaign, appraising the chances of several candidates or potential candidates.

He charged that Jesse Jackson has "muted his rhetoric" to be more appealing to a wide cross-section of voters, when what he really needs to do is get back to "the Jesse of old." He called Paul Simon "out of his league," and referred to New York Governor Mario Cuomo — who some have speculated might jump into the race — as a "gothic" figure.

A committed Democrat, Caddell said that no candidate from the Republican or Democratic party has shown the ability to lead the nation from its impending demise.

Chritton was asked questions regarding the CIA and its activities several times, and when pressed late in the dialogue on reported crimes of the CIA, he responded, "Look, no organization is perfect. I can't keep on apologizing for things that have gone off the track in the past.... We do the best we can, and we have to have a national defense at least until the world reforms itself."

In his opening address, Chritton tackled the topic of academic freedom and how it relates to his appointment to the UCSB political science faculty. He defended his presence on campus, saying many faculty at UCSB work with classified information and that because he could not divulge specific information on his career or the CIA in general, that was no reason to bar him from the university.

He added that he would like to hold similar dialogues in the near future.

A Very Different Election Editorial

Editorial

"Go out and vote!" is the usual rallying cry belted out before every election. But today, there will be no such encouragement.

Not only has the UCSB undergraduate community been poorly informed about the proposals appearing on today's Special Election ballot, but the process preceding the vote must be questioned.

This election has been presented in such a way that many students, concentrating on midterms, did not have time to examine what little information was released about the ballot.

The Campus Election Commission has acted irresponsibly by allowing the election process to continue in its skewed form. It is obvious this election should have been delayed. And, the commission should be chastised for its apparent lack of objectivity in positing biased information to the campus community.

An example of this inexcusable abuse can be seen on page 12 of today's paper. An advertisement placed by the commission outlines the three basic issues appearing on the ballot and "key arguments" related to each. Now usually, a commission charged with organizing and informing an electorate would offer pro and con statements to coincide with the ballot. At UCSB, however, the voters are privy to "key arguments" which might be construed as containing an overwhelming number of "pro" sentiments. But, as the ad says, that conclusion is left to the voter.

Take the first four "key arguments" on the first measure, an advisory vote to the chancellor that deals with how we assess ourselves mandatory fees. Arguably, these four propositions support the passage of a simple majority. The next two statements are neutral, and only the last one offers a weak opposing argument.

The commission's advertisement is an exercise in manipulation of the students. Why were these arguments formed as recently as two days ago and why is this ad appearing on the day of the election? There is no time to question the facts presented in the ad, nor is there time to oppose these notably slanted arguments. Blind acceptance must not accompany any vote.

Some would love to see changes in the way we vote for these independent fees. With a simple majority requirement, it would be easier to approve student funding for the UCen expansion, a proposal that was defeated last year when the project was lumped together with a new recreation facility. This spring, we may vote on a new UCen project sans the rec center. The funding measure, if approved by the voters, would boost fees another $100 each year.

With this in mind, here are some "key arguments" you won't find in the ballot literature: 1) In the future, it will be too easy to increase student fees that tax the entire student body; 2) the fact that other UC campuses do not require a two-thirds majority should have no bearing at UCSB. We also are one of the cheapest UCs in the system as far as these extra fees are concerned; 3) a two-thirds requirement helps protect the student body from special interest groups who try to ram funding and other crucial proposals down our throats.

Certainly, many other arguments could be generated on each of the measures in question. But that demonstrates the failure of this special election; it has been thrust upon us with too little information too quickly.

If you believe you're truly informed on these very important issues, then indeed, go out and vote your conscience. But if not, don't bother. Chances are, the data acquired from this process will be manipulated with equal fervor.

The ramifications of today's election are too important to accept when opinions may have been formed based on the biased election information that has been presented.

David Spiegel

According to the apologist, G.K. Chesterton, the purpose of an open mind is to eventually close it on something. I see his point.

At the beginning of a search for life's truths, each person should necessarily investigate and consider different world views or ways of looking at life. However, as the search for truth progresses, one gradually narrows down the possibilities by rejecting those explanations that don't appear to make as much sense as other explanations. At this point, a person is not as open to as many explanations as before, but rather is closed to a greater number of explanations which that person has determined do not make as much sense as the ones still under investigation. At the end of the search, this once very opened mind shuts itself, or clamps down upon, what it believes to be the most viable or probable answer.

Chesterton believes that today's much said phrase, "I'm openly searching," by its very definition implies that you are searching for something, and hope to one day find it. If you say you are searching, yet never come close to closing your mind on something, then that shows that you were never really searching for truth in the first place. You were probably only seeking for the sake of seeking without

The Reader's Voice

Some Election Information

Editor, Daily Nexus:

There is an upcoming special election that will allow students to determine whether student fee measures and/or constitutional changes should need a two-third or a 50 percent+1 vote. I would like to give the compelling arguments as I see them for election procedures to remain at their current two-third level.

First and foremost is the dual charge of the University of California to provide a quality education and to do so as cheaply as possible. A two-thirds requirement is a much better mechanism for ensuring that any fee hike approved by the students is a truly worthwhile one. A 50 percent requirement is statistically a little more than a crapshot on random chance; the mechanism by which much uninformed voting is done. And in elections such as this one, the student voters are often given incomplete information and are rarely aware of all the intricacies and ramifications of the proposal.

Secondly, when students vote on such issues as the upcoming UCen expansion and recreational facility referendums that have no direct financial impact on them, but rather on a vague group of future students, it is all too easy for them to say, "Oh, yeah, those guys would be into a cool place like that," and for them not to realistically consider what effect this might have on lower income families trying to get their children a quality education. A two-third requirement does much to compensate for this lack of accountability and that is why past referendums and the A.S. constitutional changes have always been two-thirds in the past.

Finally, not only will measures be passed by 50 percent if this vote goes through, but they will also be rescinded by 50 percent as well, making continuity extremely difficult. Take, for example, the current 80 cents per quarter per student fee lock-in for KCSB; if it took 50 percent+1 to change this, they would swing back and forth between being funded and not funded almost every time a reaffirmation vote occurred. This makes it damn tough to run a radio station, or for that matter, any type of business.

It is true that some other UCs do currently operate by the 50 percent+1 mechanism, but it is also true that they have historically also passed more fee increase measures than UCSB. Santa Barbara has enough outside expenses already, let's not make it easier to raise our fees.

Monday night the Democratic Student Union (DSU) approached the Associated Students Finance Board with a request for A.S. funds in the amount of $750 for the 1988-1989 school year. Since the DSU is not registered with the Activities Planning Center, it is not eligible to receive A.S. funds.

 constructively criticized. Chesterton would call this stance, "modesty, settled upon the organ of conviction; where it was never meant to be." This stance is unfortunate, because there used to be a time when most people thought some things made more sense than others. They were not afraid to point it out, and were not labeled as being "narrow-minded" for doing so, especially if their beliefs made more sense than somebody else's.

For example, if someone comes to you and says that 2+2=5, and you tell him, "No, it does not, 2+2=4. I'm rational judgments against other close-minded. In actuality, it means that you are the truly open-minded person who is only open to what is true, and thus, are not afraid to express your views about what you think is false.

Personally, I would like to see more people have a truly open mind and get back to disagreeing more often; not being afraid to say, "That doesn't seem to make much sense, I believe it would be helpful if you would reconsider that explanation."

I think it's important to state here that not accepting every belief you hear as equally valid in no way means that you will stop broadening the horizons of your mind with new knowledge. You can choose to disagree with something, yet at the same time still be interested in learning about it.

As for me, I have shut my mind on what I believe to be the best explanation for the universe and mankind, and frankly, I don't think I'm narrow-minded one bit. Unless someone else can come along and explain to me a world view that makes more sense than my own, or provide some insights that will cause me to refine my beliefs, my mind will continue to remain shut on what it is presently clamped onto.

their request for funds) is to replace the existing Associated Students organization with a "more democratic" unstructured mob-rule scheme.

When informed that their group was ineligible for student funds, DSU members Valerie Yoshimura and Dave Karoly stormed out of the meeting room. The result? A bill to be presented to the A.S. Legislative Council (a majority of which is composed of DSU members) which makes groups not registered with the APC eligible to receive A.S. funds. How convenient! And quite inconsistent, considering that the same Legislative Council voted in October to adopt the policy concerning APC registration.

So, the DSU members of Leg Council will vote on whether to allow student groups to get student funding without APC approval (we wonder how they will vote). In essence, however, the decision is whether to fund themselves with your money.

These are some of the same students who voted to send themselves, at your expense, to Rutgers, N.J., for a student activist conference. Luckily, that vote was overturned by the Judicial Council. However, we are seeing a disturbing trend here. How long are we going to put up with this self-centered legislation?

Are these people adequately representing the students? Does this group, as they claim, hold the answers to our problems? Do you want to give them your money? What will they do with it? As Scott Morgan so aptly put it, "YOU MAKE THE CALL."

We Need More Bike Racks

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In response to the article in the Wednesday, Feb. 17 Nexus about illegally parked bicycles. You say, "it is impossible to accommodate everyone with a space close to their classroom." How difficult is it to put a rack by the swimming pool? The pool is a classroom for hundreds of students and faculty. Granted, there are racks by South Hall, but they are used by people with business in South Hall. There should be racks for people with business at the pool, by the pool. The article spoke of cooperation to park in areas that allow safe use of university facilities. How would racks by the pool impede the safe use of the pool? The article said that illegally parked bikes impose hazards to pedestrians and block wheelchair access to these facilities. If racks were put next to the pool there would be no blockage of access or hazard to pedestrians. If racks were put next to the pool, then the legal bike parking would be a true convenience for the people that use the pool.

Not Just A Weapons Lab

Editor, Daily Nexus:

I'm really sick and tired of hearing Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory (LLNL) being called a WEAPONS lab. LLNL is not a weapons lab, it is a RESEARCH lab. Sixty percent of the lab is used for designing weapons, but a whole 40 percent is completely non-weapons related. That is 4,000 employees devoted to developing alternative energy and doing socially redeeming research such as biomedical advances, superconductivity, magnetic fusion, solar energy and underground coal gasification.

Another thing is that there was a picture of Shiva, one of the largest and most powerful lasers in existence, second only to Nova. The caption of the picture called it (what else?) a WEAPONS laser.
 Where do you get off? Shiva is a non-weapons laser used to generate enough energy to heat a small particle to millions of degrees so that a nuclear reaction takes place. The idea is to control the energy that is released so that there can be a power plant without any dangerous waste.

I don't have anything against Hugh DeWitt or against anyone expressing their opinions, but at least get your facts STRAIGHT!

First in Black Achievements

(Editor's Note: In honor of Black History Month, Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity is sponsoring "First in Black Achievements," chronicling the struggle of Afro-Americans and their contributions to American society. The series will continue throughout February.)

The first and greatest black conductor on the Underground Railroad — an organized network of way-stations which helped black slaves escape from the South to the free states and as far north as Canada — was a woman named Harriet Ross Tubman, who was a former slave.

She was born in about 1820, in Dorchester County, Md. In 1848, she escaped from her master and went to New York. In her own words, she described her first taste of liberty: "I was free and I couldn't believe it. There was such a glory all around and the sun was shining through the trees and on the hills. I was free!"

Once free she began to devise practical ways to help other slaves escape. Over the next 10 years, she made some 20 trips from the North to the South, bringing more than 300 slaves to freedom and eventually having a price of $40,000 set on her head. But Harriet, who had great faith in God, led a seemingly charmed life. She always outwitted her pursuers.

During the Civil War, Harriet served the Union cause openly and actively as nurse, soldier, spy and scout. She was particularly valuable in this latter capacity, since her work on the railroad had made her thoroughly familiar with much of the terrain.

After the war, Harriet settled in Auburn, N.Y.
 She applied for a military pension, but it was 30 years before she received it. When it was granted, she used the money to found a home for the aged.

She died in Auburn in 1913, and was buried in Ohio with military honors.

A New Awareness

Monica Brown

Up to 10 million people all over the world are now carriers of the AIDS virus.
 Over 75 nations have reported cases. AIDS strikes everyone: homosexuals, bisexuals, heterosexuals, drug users and children. People are beginning to get scared. It's about time.

It seems that many people in the United States still have the attitude that AIDS is a "gay disease" or homosexuals' problem. The majority of AIDS cases in the U.S. have been homosexuals. People are repelled because of the way AIDS is transmitted (through the exchange of bodily fluids, blood, semen, vaginal secretions), it forces people to think about the sex practices of homosexuals. To many, this is distasteful and disturbing; others go so far as to say that AIDS is God's way of punishing homosexuals, bisexuals, prostitutes and drug users.

It is time for all Americans to start looking at their own sex practices and lifestyles. By 1991 heterosexuals will account for one in 11 new AIDS cases. The numbers are increasing rapidly among heterosexuals, especially intravenous drug users and those who have multiple sex partners. It can even strike the unborn child of a mother who carries the virus. This, however, is one of the least common ways that AIDS is transmitted. I will concentrate on the most common way AIDS is transmitted in the U.S. — through the exchange of bodily fluids (blood, semen, vaginal secretions).

Casual sex is a reality in our society. The sexual revolution of the '70s gave us the freedom to have many sex partners and be open about it. With this freedom comes great responsibility. We must take responsibility for our bodies and our actions.
 Many people choose to go with the common thought "It couldn't happen to me."
 Well, I challenge this statement. The fact of the matter is that it could happen to anyone who has not 1) been celibate for the past 10 years or more, or 2) have been in a totally monogamous relationship for the past decade or more. I am certain that there are millions of Americans who do not fall into either of these categories.
 What does this mean?

First, it means that it is time to forget, or at least ignore, our prejudice for the time being and work together to educate and inform people about the AIDS virus. People need to be aware of exactly how the disease is transmitted and prevention methods. Many more conservative people will say that it is obvious that the way to prevent AIDS is through abstinence. Some people may feel that by supporting an AIDS education campaign, they are supporting the homosexual, bisexual or promiscuous lifestyle. AIDS is not the moral issue of the moment, but a reality of life and death for many different kinds of people. We do have our own personal value system, and this is important. But, in the face of the AIDS crisis, moral indignation will not save the lives of the dying nor comfort the families of the dead.

Many people see carriers of the AIDS virus as sickly people who have been diagnosed and who should be quarantined. Unfortunately, AIDS is mainly transmitted by people who show no symptoms and who have no idea that they are carriers of the disease. In fact, many carry the virus for years and infect many people before they develop AIDS.

There are an estimated 1.5 million Americans who carry the AIDS virus, possibly more. It is easy to see why many people are becoming paranoid about this disease. People are pulling their children out of schools because another child schoolmate has AIDS, and firing homosexuals. It is important to remember that the AIDS virus has not been transmitted by shaking hands, sneezing, coughing, social kissing, french kissing, crying, insect bites, or by eating food prepared by someone with AIDS.

People must learn to protect themselves and those they love. The AIDS patients are not the only victims. Thousands of families have already had to watch and deal with a loved one dying painfully and without hope. The time has come for action.
 We must embark upon a massive AIDS education/prevention campaign. Our national leaders should be at the forefront of this campaign. AIDS is not just an isolated "social disease" but an epidemic of terrifying proportions.

Track Teams Fall to Cal Poly SLO in Home Action

Robuck Sears Broncos in 85-78 Loss; Women Womped 109-26

By Aaron Heifetz
Sports Staff Writer

Both the men's and women's track teams ran against Cal Poly San Luis Obispo last Saturday and while the women were smoked 109-26, the men's meet was decided in the last event — the mile relay.

Going into the final race, the SLO was up 80-78 and the winner of the race (worth five points) would take the whole thing. UCSB's Scott Baker started his anchor leg several strides behind his Mustang counterpart.

With athletes from both teams on the track, urging their teammates on, Baker looked as if he would overtake the Poly runner. In an inspired effort he made up most of the distance, but couldn't quite make up all of it. The Gauchos lost the race by .46 of a second, and the meet by a score of 85-78.

Perhaps Baker sacrificed that .46 of a second by racing and winning the earlier 800-meter run. Baker, last year's PCAA champ in the 800, finished just ahead of teammate John Neubert (1:54.6) with a time of 1:53.9.

The highlights for the women, and there were few, included a double win for Tara Fairfield in the high jump and the triple jump. She skied over the bar at 5'7", then hopped, skipped and jumped 35 feet 10 3/4 inches.

Donita Lyons and Colette Maeder finished second and third in the long jump with bounds of 16'3" 3/4 and 16'3" respectively. Lyons also finished second in the 100-meter dash with a time of 13.27.

Stacy Sullivan showed a great kick in the 400-meter dash, and coming into the last turn it seemed she would catch and pass fading Mustang Erin Erber. But Sullivan ran out of track finishing with a 60.04 to Erber's 59.58, losing by the same .46 of a second that would later do in Baker in the mile relay.

The women's mile relay team managed a third place behind Poly's "A" and "B" teams as Karen Nance made up some major distance during the third leg of the race.

On the men's side, Darren Robuck was a double winner for the Gauchos as he powered his way to firsts in the hammer throw and the shot-put. He dominated the two events, hurling the hammer 185 feet even, beating his closest competitor by eight feet. He also put the shot 52 feet 1 3/4", outputting the second-place finisher by seven feet.

The men set several personal records during the meet. In the 3000-meter steeplechase, Peter Weinerth took control after three laps and never looked back on his way to a PR of 9:25.71. Bert Esparza finished second with a time of 9:36.05.

Jeff Jacobs also bettered his personal record by 17 seconds in the 5000-meter run with a time of 14:54.26, only good enough for third place.

"He had one of the gutsiest performances of the meet," said assistant coach Pete Dolan. "He was forced to run with guys who are in better shape than him right now and he hung with them. The distance runners really showed a lot of strength for early in the season. It's the first time in a few seasons that they've been strong in the beginning and I think this will be a factor in the PCAA meet this year."

Sandy Combs recorded

IS THAT A CANCEROUS GROWTH? — No, it's a shotput. And where does Darren Robuck put the shot? Anywhere he wants. On Saturday, he put it first-place finishes in the 100- and 200-meter dashes. His time of 11.02 in the 100 edged out teammate Troy Vigil's 11.21. He turned on the after-burners in the 200 and finished in 22.44. "Sandy Combs is hitting his stride. He's been training for the decathlon and in his first meet he didn't do so well. So he redeemed himself in this meet," Dolan added.

The men compete next in the Long Beach Relays on Feb. 28, while the women's last home meet is Saturday with Cal-Lutheran on Campus Track.

New Judo Club off to Good Start Black Belt Zanutti Takes Two Firsts

By Aaron Heifetz
Sports Staff Writer

There is a judo club at UCSB and it does compete in tournaments.

And it wants to extend an invitation to anyone who would like to come out and get slammed on a mat, or maybe dish out some slamming of their own.

The club is led by black belt Andrea Zanutti, a member of the Italian Junior National Judo Team before coming to school in Santa Barbara.

He took first place in the 189-pound weight class in both the L.A. Open and the San Fernando Judo Tournaments; the only two competitions that UCSB has participated in this year. Gaucho Dave Beard took second in the novice class in San Fernando.

One of the newest clubs on campus, it was founded last October by John Bertolucci, who has since transferred schools. Bertolucci put an ad in the Daily Nexus and Zanutti and Beard responded, setting the foundation for this year.

UCSB plans to compete in approximately eight more tournaments this year. Then Zanutti and fellow black belts Steve Hyod and Mark Frazier will look to the collegiate championships in late March in San Jose.

A brave performance was put in by novice Wah Tom during the L.A. Open. Competing in the first match of his first tournament, he was pulled to the mat rather harshly and had his collarbone broken.

But did he quit right there and then, with a throbbing shoulder and broken confidence? Not Wah Tom. He finished, eventually pinning his opponent, broken collarbone and all, and winning the match.

"The guy threw me down really hard and I landed on my shoulder. But I had a good grip on him, so I pulled him down and I managed to pin him," Tom said. "When I hit the mat I knew something was wrong. I felt something very strange, something very different. The adrenalin was rushing and I just wanted to keep on fighting."

The club practices in the Rob Gym wrestling room on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. and has a nucleus of about five hardcore judokas, or judo players.

"No experience is necessary," said novice Dan "I'll always be a Yellowjacket" Meisel. "We're looking for committed, enthusiastic, athletic individuals to join our team. It's growing and there's a chance for almost everybody to compete."

Members of the Judo Club will head south to L.A. this weekend for their next competition.

SERIOUS SKID — Since starting the season 7-1, the Lady Gauchos have won just two of 14 games, amassing a 2-12 mark in the PCAA. UCSB lost to Pacific, 85-69, on Monday and is getting set for a Thursday night game with Fresno State in Rob Gym.

Tigers Get Back at Lady Gauchos

Szukalski Goes Crazy, Pours in 34 in Victory

By Steve Gordon
Sports Reporter

University of Pacific center Julie Szukalski scored a whopping 24 of her game-high 34 points in the decisive second half to almost single-handedly lead the Tigers to an 85-69 win over the UCSB women's basketball team in Stockton Monday night.

Szukalski, last week's PCAA Player of the Week, scored 34 points by hitting 16 of her 22 field goal attempts, and stretched her string of consecutive 30-point games to three.

"Just incredible," UCSB coach Mark French said afterward, referring to the 6'3" Szukalski. "We've played against some outstanding post players on teams like UNLV, Long Beach and Irvine with some success. But we didn't even come close to stopping her."

Leading by just a point at the half, the Tigers transformed a 35-34 halftime edge into a 60-38 laughter early in the second half with the help of a 25-4 run.

"That's been a trend in our games," French added. "At the beginning of the second half we seem to come out flat and lose our aggressiveness. Once we're out of the game, we loosen up and start playing our game. But by then it's too late."

Such was the case in this one, as a seemingly invincible 22-point Gaucho deficit was trimmed to eight with four minutes left in the game. However, Szukalski and her supporting cast took off from there to preserve the victory.

While both teams shot well in the first half, each hitting 52 percent of its attempts, a large discrepancy in the teams' second-half field goal percentages proved to be the difference. The Gauchos made just 31 percent in the second half, compared to the Tigers' eye-opening 68. Pacific missed just nine shots in 28 attempts in the second half.

UCSB senior Patti Niichel paved the way for the Gauchos, scoring a team-high 17 points while grabbing nine rebounds. Kira Anthofer added 15 points and 10 boards in the loss.

Pacific's Debbie Geysler, perhaps overshadowed by Szukalski's clinic, made a big contribution to the win. She scored 12 of her 18 points in the second half.

With the victory, the Tigers (9-15, 4-11 in league) avenged an earlier 63-62 loss to the Gauchos (9-13, 2-12) in the ECen.

ANDREA LATHAN/Daily Nexus

Mia Thompson is contributing 11.1 points a game for this year's 9-13 Gauchos.

Next up for UCSB is Fresno State, which will be in Rob Gym on Thursday for an 8 p.m. contest. The Bulldogs (12-11, 7-7) are led by 5'11" forward Yvette Roberts, who comes in averaging 16.3 points and eight boards a game.

Fresno also features its version of 'Twin Towers' in 6'5" Laurie Heinrichs and 6'6" Simone Srubek. Heinrichs is #5 in the nation in blocked shots with 86 (3.7 a game).

UCSB is led by its front line, all of who average in double figures in scoring. Anthofer and Niichel come in with 13.1 a game, while forward Mia Thompson puts in 11.1 a contest.

Wednesday's Stanford game is a must-win

Spikers to Travel Up North to do Battle With Cardinal

By Daniel Vasen
Assistant Sports Editor

On the road again.

For the third time in the last five days, the UCSB men's volleyball team (4-2 in league, 14-5 overall) is packing its bags for a Western Intercollegiate Volleyball Association confrontation on the road. Tonight, the Gauchos travel north to Palo Alto to clash with the Stanford Cardinal at 6 p.m.

"I looked at this road trip and felt that winning two out of the three matches was a must," Head Coach Ken Preston said. Having given CSU Northridge their first league victory over the weekend, the Gauchos must win tonight to achieve Preston's goal. "(That) is if we have any hope left of winning the league," he added.

UCSB defeated Stanford in three games: 15-11, 15-10, 15-4, in a prior meeting on Jan. 30. David Rottman and Jose Gandara led the Gaucho attack that night with 12 kills apiece. Middle blocker Danny Hanan led the Cardinal offense with 16 kills.

"(Hanan's) their main guy, he gets about 75 percent of their sets, maybe higher," Gandara said. "He hits all over the court and backrow as well. If we can stop him, their offense will shut down."

Senior outside hitter Pat Pennington suffered a foot injury in practice on Monday and will not be making tonight's trip. "It's a sprained foot, it doesn't seem to be that bad, but bad enough to keep me home tonight," Pennington said. "I should be back in the line-up on Friday, we're working on it in therapy to get ready for the match (against Long Beach)."

Sophomore outside hitter Chris Pennel will be starting in Pennington's absence. "Pennel's a good ball-control player, and a good passer," Preston said.

Stanford is presently in sixth place in league with a 3-3 record. "They're good and they can beat you, especially in their gym," Preston said. "They are a good blocking team even though they're small. We're going to have to play on our side of the net with a little more intensity than we have been."

Saturday night's loss to Northridge dropped the Gauchos two places to #6 on this week's coaches' poll. USC retains the #1 ranking with a 16-1 record, followed by Penn State, Hawaii, Pepperdine, UCLA and then UCSB.

"After losing to Northridge, we stopped and thought about what's going with our team," Gandara said. "We had a strong start and then let down. Everybody is ready to start playing hard again."

In the WIVA standings, USC is in first with a perfect 8-0 record, followed by Hawaii at 7-2. The Gauchos are in third place at 4-2. UCLA and Pepperdine are fourth and fifth with 3-2 and 4-3 records, respectively.

"On Saturday, we were only playing half the game. We had (CSUN) up 8-1 and had we kept it going that tragedy would not have happened," Rottman said. "(Tonight), we're going to focus on playing on our side of the net and not be so concerned with how they are playing."

POLICE REPORT

Disturbing the Peace and Resisting Arrest

A man was arrested Feb. 17 after he reportedly entered an apartment, verbally threatened a female occupant and resisted arrest when police arrived, according to UCSB Police Lt. Antonio Alvarez.

Todd Schuyler, a non-student, entered an apartment at the university-owned Married Student Housing, refused to leave upon the occupant's request, and then resisted officers' attempts to arrest him. He was booked into Santa Barbara County Jail on charges of resisting arrest and disturbing the peace, Alvarez said.

Indecent Exposure at the Beach

UCSB Police responded to a report of a man indecently exposing himself at Sands Beach north of Isla Vista on Feb. 19, Alvarez reported.

When officers arrived at the scene, the suspect, described as a white male approximately 50 years old, could not be found, according to Alvarez.

Tree Falls on Man

A tree fell on a man as he was working on the northeast side of Robertson Gym on Feb. 22, Alvarez said.

Jose Ruiz, a laborer working for a contractor hired by UCSB, was reportedly digging a hole to remove a palm tree near the gym when the tree fell, pinning him against the wall of the hole. He was taken to Goleta Valley Community Hospital and treated for minor injuries, Alvarez said.

Attempted Bicycle Theft and Possession of Marijuana

Three young men were arrested Feb. 21 for attempted bike theft and the alleged possession of less than one ounce of marijuana by UCSB Police officers who had observed the suspects acting suspiciously near the bicycle racks at San Rafael dormitory.

When officers approached the suspects to investigate, the men fled the scene but were apprehended, Alvarez said. Later, the officers found that bicycle locks in the area had been tampered with.

The suspects, identified as Randy Balleu, 18, James Joe Gruntman, 20, both non-students, and an unidentified juvenile, were booked into Santa Barbara County Jail, according to Alvarez.

Drunk Driving

UCSB Police officers arrested suspects in two separate incidents for alleged drunk driving during the past week.

Gregory Papzer was arrested for drunk driving Feb. 18 at 9:30 p.m. after UCSB Police officers were advised of a disturbance at K-Mart by a sheriff's radio report, Alvarez reported.

The officers observed Papzer driving erratically from the store's parking lot and followed him to his residence in I.V., where they arrested him.

Another drunk driving arrest was made at the east gate of campus after police observed Jose Marco Blanco, an I.V. non-student resident, driving erratically and at excessive speeds on Feb. 21 at 7:47 p.m., Alvarez said.

SPECIAL ELECTION

TODAY 9 A.M. until 9 P.M.
Polling Locations: UCen & Library

SPECIAL ELECTION BALLOT MEASURES

The Three Basic Issues and Key Arguments Related to Each

Below you will find a simple statement of the three basic issues to be voted on in this Wednesday's special election. These statements, with attendant arguments, were developed by the Campus Election Commission to serve as an aide to voters. It was decided not to group the arguments into either PRO or CON categories, but to let the voters decide whether the arguments are positive or negative based on their own perceptions and biases.

1. Elections Commission Advisory Vote:

Should mandatory independent fees be assessed with:

- a. a 20% voter turnout and 2/3 majority?

OR

- b. a 27%+ voter turnout and a 50%+1 majority?

KEY ARGUMENTS:

- UCSB is the only campus in the UC system that requires more than a simple majority for issues to pass.
- If more than a simple majority is required, a minority of the voters can control the outcome of the election.
- A 27% turnout decreases the possibility that interest groups can control the outcome and increases the possibility that the outcome will be truly representative of the larger student body.
- Almost all state and federal taxes and assessments require only a simple majority for passage.
- A 2/3 majority makes proposed fee increases and decreases less likely to pass.
- A 27% voter turnout may be difficult to obtain.
- A 2/3 majority is an indisputable student mandate.

2. A.S. Constitutional Change 1:

Should mandatory A.S. fee adjustments and increases pass with:

- a. a 20% voter turnout and a 2/3 majority?

OR

- b. a 27%+ voter turnout and a 50%+1 simple majority?

KEY ARGUMENTS:

- A 2/3 majority protects the stability of funding for groups that have A.S. constitutional lock-ins.
- If more than a simple majority is required, a minority of the voters can control the outcome of the election.
- 27% turnout decreases the possibility that interest groups can control the the outcome and increases the possibility that the outcome will be truly representative of the larger student body.
- Almost all state and federal taxes and assessments require only a simple majority for passage.
- A 2/3 majority makes proposed fee increases and decreases less likely to pass.
- A 27% voter turnout may be difficult to obtain.
- 2/3 majority is an indisputable student mandate.

3. A.S. Constitutional Change 2:

Should A.S. Constitutional changes require:

- a. a 20% voter turnout and a 2/3 majority for passage?

OR

- b. a 27%+ voter turnout and a 50%+1 simple majority for passage?

KEY ARGUMENTS:

- A 2/3 majority protects the stability of A.S. organizational structures and processes.
