ROOSEVELT STORMS O" PRESIDENCY

Suppression of Right to Free Speech Stirs New York City School

Liberal Club Holds Mock Trial of College Heads; Riot Result in Expulsion of Ten

Socialist Asserts N.Y. Schools Under Tammany

NEW YORK—New York City's free- thought clubs of students and administrative officers at New York City College now have the right to free speech although it has been cut down to a fever pitch.

The story of the fight against the school administration by the students at the New York City College was told by Edward H. Robinson, a member of the college faculty, at the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting in Chicago.

The students were fighting against the administration of the college, which was attempting to suppress freedom of speech by instituting a system of punishment for students who refused to follow the rules of the administration. The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

A letter written by the student leader, according to Mr. Robinson, was read into the record at the meeting, and the students were promptly returned to the school.

The students had declared that the administration was attempting to destroy freedom of speech and to suppress the right of the students to express their views on political matters.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.

The students, through their Liberal Club, had attempted to hold a meeting at which they would discuss the question of the administration's methods of punishment, but the administration had refused to allow the meeting to be held. The students had then attempted to organize a strike to protest against the administration's methods, but the administration had refused to allow the strike to be called.

The situation had become so serious that the students had decided to take legal action against the administration. They had filed a suit in the Supreme Court, and the case was now pending.

The administration had also attempted to suppress the right of the students to hold meetings and to express their views on political matters.
Running Practice House One of Important Activities of H. E. Students, Says Ebbets

"Practice house activity is one of the most important activities on the campus," states Miss Charlotte Ebbets, head of the home economics department. "In recent months we have seen a new interest in the practice house. Students are coming in force to the practice house to learn the skills they need to make homemaking a rewarding experience." In addition to the practical knowledge they gain from the practice house, students also develop social skills and make lasting friendships.

Organization Grows Under Guiding Hans M. Leonard

Organizations and development of the Home economics department, founded last spring in being the leadership of Miss Leonard, was to develop a more active and involved student body. The new organization, and the practice house, have made a rapid growth in the past few weeks. The organization now has 15 charter members and a president, vice president, and secretary.

At its first meeting held last month the following officers were elected: President, Miss Virginia Dewitt. The group has also elected the following officers: Vice President, Miss Mildred Ford. Secretary, Miss Dorothy Lucas. Treasurer, Miss Marion Martin.

One of the main activities of the organization is the supervision of the home economics department. The group has been asked to help in the supervision of the home economics department, and they have accepted the challenge. The group has also been asked to help in the supervision of the practice house. They have accepted this challenge as well.

Historic Battles of U. S. Navy Shown in Pictures

As a historical review of the tremendous conflicts of nations, what Smith for naval history. At the beginning of the meeting, the group was shown a series of pictures in the visual battle between the British and the United States. The group was shown the visual battle between the two nations, and they were able to see the battle from the naval perspective.

The pictures were shown to the group by Miss Betty Brown, the head of the Home economics department. Miss Brown has been working on this project for several months.

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)

(outside advertisement)
Gird Gab

BY MOLLY BURKHAM

Two very new ideas are entering the local scene: it seems the Los Angeles Opera will be getting an all-female orchestra and the local basketball teams are going the full nine yards of brilliance. The all-female orchestra should be a happy thought for the ladies this Christmas season.

The all-female basketball teams consist of members from the local high schools. The idea is to give the girls a chance to shine and perhaps attract some new fans.

However, the biggest news of the week is the Los Angeles Opera's decision to hire a female orchestra. This is a groundbreaking move for the opera, as it has traditionally been a male-dominated field. The all-female orchestra will undoubtedly bring a new perspective to the classical music world.

Another significant event this week was the annual chili cook-off held by the local chili lovers. The competition was fierce, but in the end, the winner was announced. Friends of all ages eagerly gathered to taste the various chili dishes and cast their votes for their favorites.

A special mention goes to the local chili enthusiast, who has been cooking up a storm in her kitchen. Her chili recipe is a secret, but many say it's the best in the city. She has won many chili cook-offs and is well-respected in the community. It's rumored that she uses a special blend of spices that gives her chili a unique and irresistible taste.

To all chili lovers out there, keep an eye on this local legend and make sure to try her chili at the next chili cook-off. It's sure to be a hit!
Roads Before Schools

Arthur H. Snow, Alhambra, California: State Senator has closed roads more important than education, by his bill proposed to the Senate that California's gas tax be retained intact and held sacred, and funds for education be cut by twenty percent.

In the estimation of the senator, it is of greater value to waste millions of dollars annually on unneeded highway construction and repair than it is to educate our children. Bred for the highway department will not be sure that all funds from that source be spent on roads—and on nothing else.

The state tax fund will remain intact, however, if the highway department act like the Senator would like us to believe. He seems to ignore the fact, however, that the gasoline tax is bringing in so much revenue each year that the highway department will have trouble to spend it. It does not tell us that, after as much of the money as possible has been spent on needed repairs and construction, the remainder will be spent on tearing down and rebuilding roads which are already satisfactory. Bred for the highway department would make concrete on roads already as thick as will ever be needed.

To spend the money on roads already as thick as will ever be needed and construction of new roads is not only extravagant but costly as well. It would be less expensive to put the millions of dollars on roads which already have the hard surface, and use the money on needed repairs and construction.

Although educational retrenchments may be necessary on rare occasions, they should be made by the friends of children of the public schools to promote their own selfish aggrandizement of the public schools to give a diploma with a special certificate entitling its graduates to teach in high school. It was the only state normal school in the country. It was the only state nor­

One of the most famous posts in the city of San Francisco has been his own work in education. In 1930, Mrs. Edna Rich Morse of Gra­

Edna Rich Morse, College Founder

Edna Rich Morse, College Founder

One of the most famous posts in the city of San Francisco has been his own work in education. In 1930, Mrs. Edna Rich Morse of Gra­

Edna Rich Morse, College Founder

Edna Rich Morse, College Founder

One of the most famous posts in the city of San Francisco has been his own work in education. In 1930, Mrs. Edna Rich Morse of Gra­