Kyoto-tally Good Sushi!

By Vivian Jimmie

The bar, a table or a Ta-tami room?

That was the first thing to run through my mind just inside Kyoto's front doors. It wasn't a special date, so a table was more than fine. Oh, it smelled really good, too.

I was informed that the Sushi Combo, alongside a bottle of pipin' hot Saki, was the house favorite, but I couldn't keep my eyes of the heaping mound of stuff on the table next to me. I think they could tell I was staring, but it was out of my control.

After inquiring, I learned it was the Veggie Tempura. "Veggie Tempura," I thought. "Now, that's for me."

I was pleased to find there was more to my order than just the veggies. First, I was presented with a generous serving of Sunomono, a funky sort of cucumber salad. Not bad ... not bad.

Next came the Miso soup. As I slurped, I couldn't help thinking of all those cold winters and that little jingle, "Soup is good food." You know it's true, don't you?

My Veggie Tempura arrived like a jacuzzi in Alaska, but don't think that stopped me none. An extra long dip in a melange of soy sauce and Japanese horseradish (when I was seven, I shoveled a heaping spoonful of wasabi in my mouth believing it was guacamole. Not smart.), and bingo, chomp, chew, swallow. Carrots and potatoes became my instant favorites, with mushrooms and zucchini a close second.

It didn't take long to play the disappearing game with my meal, especially because I opted for the old fork. "Chopsticks, schmopsticks," I thought, tossing them aside.

And it didn't take long to order up some dessert either. If you have a hard time deciding where to sit at Kyoto, ordering dessert will come as a pleasant surprise. Green Tea Ice Cream is the only choice, and after a green tea-spoon full, I know why. Smooth, I tell you. Smooth. There's something wrong with those people at 31 Flavors.

I was pretty stoked to learn that Kyoto has a happy hour every Thursday through Sunday. Great deals on sushi and the oh-so-famous California Rolls. I tell you. Great deals. But, I'm still in the dark over this whole California Roll thing.

Kyoto is located at 3232 State Street in Santa Barbara. Open Tues-Sun 5 p.m.-10 p.m., lunch Tues-Fri 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. Phone 687-1252.

Chuck's of Hawaii: Maui-Wowie!

By Bunyan Valentine

I've got a new definition for "chuck steak."

I used to think of chuck steak as the piece of meat that's cheaper than most other kinds at the store but looks just as good so why don't I get this one? (But it always got tough when I cooked it.)

Now I think of a Chuck Steak as one of the finer pleasures in life. I think of it as the best thing in beef, the Monet of meat, the summa cum laude of sirloin.

I think of a Chuck Steak as the thick slice of tender top sirloin they put on your plate at Chuck's of Hawaii like they think you could eat it all but not likely, guys and so you have steak sandwiches for two days afterward.

The lighting is low in Chuck's of Hawaii, the decor is rich and dark and the ambience wavers somewhere between "earthy" and "nice cloth napkins."

It's the kind of place your parents went when you were in grade school and left you with the babysitter, Julie. They went there and had whiskey sours in the bar before dinner and then the host, Marty, who goes to the college nearby, showed them to "their" table. Then Phil, who was "their" waiter, came over and asked them if they wanted "the usual." Your mom said "Yes, thank you," your dad said "You bet," and then he knocked his fork onto the floor. Phil said, "That's Chuck's of Hawaii: the sign says it all.

OK," and got him a new one right away. The bus boy always kept their water glasses full. That's why they kept going back.

That and the prawns, which are cooked in butter and garlic and make you think unsaintly thoughts. They make you think things like, "Ha! What's so great about being God if you don't have a mouth for eating prawns like these?" Then you eat the sirloin and think, "Ditto!"

And also the fact that in this day and age (with things like French Cuisine making inroads into all that we, as a people who identify with the state of Montana and its scruffier residents, hold dear) it's hard to find a good honest restaurant that will serve you up a steak and a baked potato with nothing else on the plate. No little garnishes, no fruit slices twisted around, no dollops of vegetable puree. Just good food, and too much of it.

Their salad bar is simple and to the point: "Here's your salad and make no bones about it," it says. "What about the taco pasta?" you ask and quickly feel foolish. "Ditto!" you say.

So if you think a chuck steak is the piece of meat that's cheaper than most other kinds at the store, then you better go have a Chuck Steak. With a potato.

Chuck's of Hawaii is located at 3888 State Street in Santa Barbara. Open 5-11 p.m. daily, Fri and Sat till 11:30. Phone 687-4417.

The chefs do you right at the Cajun Kitchen.

Authentic Cajun Kitchen!

By Gloria Frankee

When you walk into the Cajun Kitchen, you might think you've happened upon some sort of backwoods bar. The walls look like they're made of plywood and some type of roofing shingles and are lined with glowing signs sporting beer logos and several framed Robert Redford portraits and the soulful voice of a country singer is heard in the background. Patrons sit around and chat at the bar or at one of the small indoor or outdoor tables. But don't let the nonsense decorum and homey atmosphere belie what this popular eating spot is all about — food.

Like the decor, there's nothing fancy about the food at the Cajun Kitchen — except for the taste. The restaurant, which serves breakfast and lunch only, specializes in down-home Louisiana style dishes so tasty and fresh that you'll want to break out the Mardi Gras beads. Spicy cajun-style food is the restaurant's forte and the chefs heat things up with green chile, peppers, salsa and a variety of cajun spices. Palate-tingling breakfast and lunch specialties include New Orleans omelettes, gumbo (a traditional okra-based stew) and blackened prime rib sandwiches. (There's a lot of "blackened" stuff on this menu, in true cajun culinary style.) And there's no need to worry if your taste buds reject spicy foods, because there's plenty of mild yet delicious dishes on the menu.

Breakfast at the eatery is quite an experience, although it can be difficult to choose from the tantalizing array of morning meals, including three-egg omelettes with a variety of added ingredients, scrambled egg dishes, pancakes, french toast — you name it, they got it. The New Orleans Omelette, a mixture of onions, green chile, cheese and spiced sausage, is a mouthwatering combination so spicy it'll make your eyes water as well. There's plenty of dishes for vegetarians as well, including several meatless egg concoctions like John's special, a deliciously unusual scrambled egg creation with spinach, onions and cream cheese. If these unique dishes weren't enough, breakfasts come with your choice of side orders like Cajun Kitchen homefries and biscuits so flaky and buttery that Sara Lee would be jealous. Even the coffee, which is refilled for free, is brewed to perfection. Breakfasts like these are so good you'll get up early to eat them!

All Cajun Kitchen plates are packed with enough food to feed a king, but at a poor man's price. Breakfasts range between four and six dollars, with lunch plates only slightly higher. The service at the Cajun Kitchen is casual, but waiters and waitresses are enthusiastic and eager to please. The food is prepared quickly, too, so it's a great place to catch a bite or three before work. The eatery also has a large selection of imported and domestic beers and wines for early morning and afternoon imbibers.

The relaxed surroundings combined with the hearty, tasty meals make the Cajun Kitchen a place where you can feel right at home, even if you're not from Louisiana.

Cajun Kitchen can be found at 1924A De La Vina in Santa Barbara and 420 S. Fairview in Goleta. Open 6:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. daily. Phone 687-2062 and 683-8864, respectively.

LOCAL COLOR
Anaconda

This Wednesday (May 20), Corrosion of Conformity will set the Anaconda ablaze with their intense mix of speed metal and punk rock music. C.O.C. has been around throughout much of the 80s, and now, after a few years' disappearance, they are back on tour in support of their latest album. They are sure not to hold anything back when they hit the stage, so make sure you're there to rock out with them.
