Twenty New Faculty Appointments Told By Provost Williams

Twenty appointments to the faculty of UCSB were announced recently by Dr. J. Harold Williams, acting provost. The appointments, ten of which are replacements and ten of which are new, will raise the faculty total to 160 for the Fall semester, an all-time high.

Robert L. Clark, who is being named to a new position as lecturer in speech, received his bachelor's degree at Santa Barbara College and M.F.A. degree at the Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1948. John E. Cushing, filling a new position as assistant professor of bacteriology, was awarded a Ph. D. degree in 1943 at the California Institute of Technology.

Replacing Mrs. Eleanor Morrissey, who resigned, Donald Erickson will become a lecturer in art. He was graduated this year from Santa Barbara College. Elliott A. P. Evans, who was awarded a Ph. D. degree at Stanford in 1943, will fill a new position as assistant professor of art.

Also in the Art Department, Howard C. Fenton will become instructor, replacing Miss Elizabeth Dodge, who resigned. He received his M. A. at UCLA this year. Fletcher M. Haight, as lecturer in Industrial Arts, will take over classes formerly conducted by Kermit Seefeld, who is on leave working for his doctorate.

Richard Kaywood is filling a new position as instructor in physical education, although he served as assistant the past year. Herbert J. Kramer, who is a Ph. D. candidate at Harvard, has been given a new position as lecturer in English, while Harry Lass, who received a Ph. D. this year at the California Institute of Technology, is instructor in mathematics, filling a new position.

Rolf N. Linn, who is a Ph. D. candidate at UCLA, has been appointed to a new position as lecturer in German, while Edna D. Meshke, who received her Ph. D. at the University of Minnesota, 1942, is replacing Miss Winifred Frye in home economics. As professor of home economics, she will also be chairman of the department.

A new lecturer in French will be Edmond E. Masson, a Ph. D. candidate at Berkeley, who will replace Donald Peters, who resigned. Edward G. Matousek, Ph. D. candidate at Yale, will become lecturer in English, replacing Dr. John D. Neff, who resigned last year. William R. Mueller has been named assistant professor of English replacing Dr. Elizabeth Nielson, who resigned. He has a Ph. D. degree from Harvard in 1946.

Philip W. Powell, who received a Ph. D. degree at Berkeley in 1941, has been named associate professor of history, replacing Dr. William H. Elison, who retired. Replacing Dr. Charles Jacobs, who also retired, Dr. Lester B. Sands has been appointed associate professor of education. He has a

Tentative Activity Schedule Drawn Up By Prexy Caldwell

A tentative schedule for Fall was drawn up last week under the direction of John Caldwell, president of the Associated Students for 1948-49.

Rallies for freshmen and new students, dates for Howdy Dances and picnics, and traditional events were scheduled for next year. The first Gaucho Round-Up is tentatively set for Wednesday night, September 29; Saturday night, April 2, will be the Barbary Coast date; March 3-5 was discussed for the Road Runner Revue, and a Stag Howdy Dance will be held Friday, September 17, at the Recreation Center.

A new tradition to be reinstated since the war years will be that of having the freshman fellows spend a night at Camp Drake in the Santa Ynez Valley. Gold Key, senior men's honorary organization, is in charge and Phil Jacks is assisting with arrangements. This will be September 18-19.

The date was not set for the Freshman Brawl, although it is certain that it will also be revived.

Gauchos Reminded About Four School Football Festival

All Gauchos are being urged to circle November 6th in their date books, since this is the date when four branches of the University of California will meet at Berkeley in the first annual Football Festival.

Dreamed up months ago by President Robert Gordon Sproul as a project to further unify the university branches, the Festival is being sponsored by the five California Club groups on the Davis, San Francisco, Berkeley, UCLA and Santa Barbara campuses. Rooter's trains will be sent from each campus to Berkeley, and among events planned are an all-university rally and dance, plus numerous social events such as breakfasts for national or inter-campus organizations.

According to Junemarie Davidson, chairman of the local Cal Club chapter, this November 6th event should be one of the most outstanding activities of next year.

Ed. D. degree from Stanford University.

Filing a new position as assistant professor of history is Dr. Peter W. Topping, who has a Ph. D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1942. Also in a new position is Henry A. Turner Jr., as lecturer in English, who is a Ph. D. candidate at Chicago University.

Dr. Robert W. Webb is filling a new position as associate professor of geology and also serving as state-wide coordinator of veteran's affairs for the University of California. He received his Ph. D. degree in 1937 from the California Institute of Technology. Also in a new position is Dr. Paul Wienpahl as assistant professor of philosophy. He received his Ph. D. degree in 1946 at UCLA.

DOUWE STUURMAN
Plans Special Research

Douwe Stuurman To Prepare Paper On Rise of Nazi Party

A Santa Barbara College professor who participated in the unearthing of significant German documents from salt mines will go to Washington soon to prepare a paper on the development of the Nazi Party in Germany.

He is Douwe Stuurman, assistant professor of English, who will do the writing in the Capitol at the request of the Librarian of Congress. Prof. Stuurman will leave immediately following the first Summer Session at UCSB.

The Library of Congress has acquired the largest and best collection of materials on the Nazi Party and expects, through the services of Prof. Stuurman, to release information of interest to the American public.

For two years, during and immediately after World War II, Prof. Stuurman, while on leave of absence from the college, served as a sergeant with military intelligence and was subsequently assigned to special duty for the Library of Congress. He was among those who, following the capture of areas, took charge of and catalogued documents of lasting historical interest. Among the richest of these finds were those which Hitler personally had ordered stored in salt mines which had been boarded up.

The proposed study fits in with special research already planned by Prof. Stuurman, dealing with the immediate and personal sources of Hitler's ideas. For the current year, he has been given a grant from the University of California research funds for the study of Dietrich Eckhart, a little known but effective participant in the Nazi plans.

Prof. Stuurman came to Santa Barbara College in 1941, from Reed College, where he had served as an instructor for three years, following his return from Oxford University, where as a Rhodes Scholar, he earned the B. Litt. degree. He had previously earned his B. A. degree at Calvin College, in Michigan, and the M. A. degree at the University of Oregon. He has studied at Kiel University in Germany. He is a member of the Pacific Philosophical Association

Modern Dance Group To Present Concert Tuesday in UCSB Aud

A talented group of five young dancers who are touring the country giving lectures and performing, will give their program before Santa Barbara College students and friends Tuesday night, July 27, in the Riviera Auditorium at 8:30. Hailing from the University of Wisconsin, where they studied and danced together in their undergraduate years, the young teachers are on their second annual tour of the country. Professional dancers, students, townspeople and even small boys in a summer camp have enthusiastically received them, because of the performers' zeal for their art.

Critics have remarked "... bubbling with ideas, new interpretations ... an exciting project ... an exceptional group ... the understanding and conviction of the group's material is refreshing and satisfying. . ."

Modern dance—the free expression of body movement and an art based on creative experience—is rapidly becoming one of the most popular arts. The Associated Students feel fortunate to be able to present such a program to the students and townspeople. Sophisticated as well as humorous numbers are to be presented, and the program ranges from interpretations of Bach to a parody on a bridge game with Alec Templeton's music. Percussion numbers are also a highlight of the concert.

The event is free upon presentation of a student body card, general admission tickets are sixty cents, and reserved seats may be obtained in the office of the Graduate Manager for 90c.

Zornes' Drawing Takes First Prize In L.A. Exhibition

Milford Zornes, well known California artist, who is now teaching the first Summer Session at Santa Barbara College as a member of the visiting faculty, recently won first prize for his drawing "Cottonwoods on the Mojave" in the annual Los Angeles Exhibition in Los Angeles.

Zornes, at the conclusion of the Summer Session, will leave for Seattle and Skagway, Alaska, for a four-week painting trip, while Mrs. Zornes and their daughter, Maria, will remain in Nipomo. Early in September he will join his family here, and they will return to Claremont, where Mr. Zornes is a member of the Pomona College faculty.

and the American Association of University Professors and is chairman of the Santa Barbara College Committee on Rhodes Scholarships.

During the current Summer Session, Prof. Stuurman is teaching first year reading and composition and a course on "The English Bible as Literature." He will resume his regular teaching duties in the Fall at the college.

Last Social Event To Have Garden Frolic As Theme

Tonight from 9-12, Santa Barbara College students and their guests will dance to the music of Herb Fredlund and his orchestra at the Rockwood Women's Club. The affair, named the "Summer Garden Frolic," will be the last social event on the schedule for the first Summer Session.

Charlie Jones, Summer Session Student Body President, says of the dance, "We plan to make this the outstanding event on the social calendar. There will be refreshments on hand, and the decorations committee under the direction of Bev Miller have some unusual ideas."

For an added attraction during the intermission, the Social Committee will present an all-student floor show. There will be several vocal acts, a dance act, and a surprise feature starring one of the members of the Roadrunner Review.

Tickets for the dance may be obtained in the Graduate Manager's office. Admission is free to holders of ASB cards, and 60c a couple for non-card holders. It will be a dressy sport dance.

College Officials Await Official OK On Goleta Site

Officials at Santa Barbara College are still awaiting papers giving them the right of entry to the mesa area of the Marine Air Corps Station at Goleta.

Although the War Assets Administration has announced the sale of the area and buildings to the University without cost, the papers providing the "right of entry" have not arrived so that the college may proceed with the reconversion project.

Robert Floyd, UC architect assigned to Santa Barbara College development, explained that certain legal negotiations must be completed between the WAA and the UC board of regents before the keys to the property are turned over to the college. This right of entry, however, is expected soon. Later, perhaps in three months, the actual deed will be transferred to the university.

Meanwhile space requirements for various departments of Santa Barbara College are being worked out, involving reconversion of buildings already on the site for temporary use, probably by the Fall of 1949, plus a long range program, providing for the erection of permanent structures.

STUDENTS MUST PAY BALANCE ON YEARBOOKS SOON

Those students who have deposits on La Cumbres, must pay the balance by August 31. For the convenience of those students who are not on campus for the Summer Sessions, the year book will be mailed for 15c mailing fee, or if wished, they will be held in the office.

Natural Science Institute Gives Nature Classes

Using for its laboratories the wide range of nature found from La Cumbre Summit to ocean tide-pools, the annual Institute of Natural Science will open Monday, August 2, and continue until August 20.

Harrington Wells, associate professor of science education at Santa Barbara College, who has charge of the institute, reported that 35 advance registrations had been made already, about the same number as usual at this period. Students, graduate students, interested citizens and three with Ph.D. degrees are among those who have signed up.

The institute courses, which may or may not be taken without credit, include lectures and extensive field studies. Lectures are conducted at the Museum of Natural History, with some classes meeting outdoors and some on the Santa Barbara Campus.

Among the new courses to be offered this year is that on reptiles and mammals, with Arthur Coggeshall, director of the Museum, as instructor. Trees, birds, conservation, weather, climate, and educational methods are among the subjects covered.

One of the highlights of the institute will be a conservation assembly, tentatively set for Friday, August 6, with Miss Pearl Chase as speaker.

Grad To Serve On Mobile X-Ray Unit

The services of Wesley Wells, who graduated from UCSB in June with a major in chemistry, have been acquired by the Santa Barbara County Tuberculosis and Health Association to serve as a new technician to operate its mobile X-ray unit.

Wells planned, he said, to go on to Pomona to do graduate work but, failing to find a house for his wife and two children and himself, he decided to remain in Santa Barbara for a year.

Formerly of Los Angeles, Wells worked in a drugstore here while completing his college course. He said his war experience in the Pacific on the battleship Washington as a radio technician first class, equipped him for his new job.

Willie Wilton Looks For Tough Casaba Season During '49

"We should have better teamwork next year as the boys have played together for a season, but I don't think that we will have as good a winning average as we did this past season."

With this opening statement, Willie Wilton, head basketball coach of Santa Barbara College, started in to analyze the basketball prospect for next year.

"The league is getting tougher because of the laxity in the interpretation of eligibility rules in some of the schools in the conference," Wilton continued. "Here at Santa Barbara College we maintain strict eligibility rules, which is the way that I think it should be."

Mr. Wilton then stated that he didn't anticipate any new men for next year, and that we had lost several good players. He does, however, look for some help from last year's Junior Varsity.

Mr. Wilton said that next year's schedule would be one of the most outstanding in the College's history, with games with California and UCLA virtually clinched, and an outside possibility of games with Stanford and St. Mary's. Along with the usual games with such Southern California teams as Loyola and Occidental, it is hoped that games will be scheduled with some of the outstanding touring teams.

IN QUEST OF TRUTH

The world is full of many things,
So many things to choose;
We wonder why some men succeed,
And others seem to lose.

Each dreams of finding Paradise
In his own believing way;
One dreams that it will come,
somehow,
Another seeks the way.

Some think to find outside themselves
What really dwells within,
Imagining that with another
Life will in truth begin!

One hopes to find his happiness
In a distant, foreign land;
And yet no matter where he roams,
The answer is not at hand.

The gambler thinks in terms of speed
To earn his daily bread,
And vainly hopes that he will win,
But loses all instead.

And oft, in merriment, some seek
To prove life but a jest;
Wine, Women, Song, are what they ask,
And are blind to all the rest.

A few prefer to chatter still,
So frivolous and vain;
And yet, there is no end in this,
For 'tis not life they gain.

'Tis strange to think that many live
Without life's true intent,
And do not find, or find too late,
How sadly it was spent.

"Waste not your hour," waste not your heart,
Nor cast your life away;

SICK BAY

I been in this darn hospital
About two weeks I guess!
I've tried to figure just how long,
And it can't be any less.

As I wander through the door
I am grabbed by two big paws.
"Open wide. Now just sit still."
"Give us a few more 'Ah's'."

Before I know what's going on
I'm hustled down the hall.
I'm shoved into a little room,
"When you've got your clothes off, call."

He shoves a dress into my arms.
"Get into this." (A yell.)
Then down the hall we go again.
"Don't worry, you'll get well."

"But look—" I try to stammer
"Don't say a word now mate."
And so at last I resign myself
To whatever is my fate.

Into bed with lots of covers,
Surrounded by doctors galore.
Pills at ten and shots at two,
And X-rays by the score.

And so the dreadful days do pass,
I'm stretched out on my back.
I guess I'll live thru it all somehow,
But I'm tired of this old sack.

And then those grateful words I hear,
"My boy, you're on the mend."
I guess no use to tell them now
I came to see a friend.

The answer to each day.

Days Of Old Golden West Relived By Tough Hombre

Slim Mucker was a slim man. He was gifted with enormous amounts of talent in every single field of endeavor in which a cowboy is proven a man or a cowman a boy. Most remarkable of these gifts was his extremely keen visual sense. Tales from the lips of halfbreeds had it that Slim could count the hairs on the head of an Australian bushman in a coal mine before sun up. But this was not his greatest achievement. Slim could wrestle a gorilla, lift his weight in buckets, sing like Trigger, shoot like a star, and even swim like a duck. It was therefore a horrible trick of fate on Honest John Minsky that Slim should appear at the Rosio Grady bar-none ranch, just as he was about to make his big move.

Hi-Ho

Mucker rode into what Rosio fondly called her Rancho Grady on his milk-white steed, Sliver, accompanied by his full-blooded half-breed Injun sidekick, Sambo. Slim rode with a distinct air of nonchalance while the Injun on his St. Bernard followed faithfully. Slim realized the uselessness of a St. Bernard in the desert, but he felt obliged to keep the animal which had found him and Sambo frozen on a mountainside and warmed up his Injun. Besides, Sambo, we are told, was often heard to say, "Ugh! Boss, dat hoss am just too high to ride." Let it suffice to say that these two made an impressive study against the western sky—the cowboy with his stallion, and the Injun with his shaggy dog.

Right Hand

They were greeted by Rosio's right hand cow hand, Lefty Ling Poo. Lefty sang out loudly in his hardened western lingo and Slim and the Injun immediately understood that, "Boss gal, her go way weekend, be back by'm by come Mongday." He waited patiently while the two came towards him and quietly whistled a western tune, accompanied by the Texas Ranger Military Band. Slim introduced himself and his trusty Injun pal and they were led straightaway to the bunkhouse where a gang of the boys were engrossed in a roaring game of pin the tail on the outlaw. Slim began to join the crowd when he was accosted by one of the better players in the game. To be sure, it was Honest John Minsky. Minsky (a sombre hombre) spoke slowly so as to make the full weight of his words felt. (Also to cover up his Russian accent.)

"Pahdnuh! Ah don't lahk yoah looks. Youall looks lahk a kettle rustler, and Ah don't lahk kettle rustlers. Wan o' us is just a-goin' to have to be out o' this here town bah son down Mongday."

Slim Smiles

Slim smiled. The reason for this was not exactly clear in his mind, but he remembered that the thing to do in such a situation was to smile; whether it was Sungday, Mongday or Algways. Sambo could only wonder at his companion's composure and manage to grunt, "Ugh! Youall." Slim sombrely shifted his tobacco juice to the other side of his mouth and arose. Honest John Minsky stepped backwards. Slim stepped sideways. The Injun picked up a fiddle while I. Milcum, a local cowhand, called for a good old-fashioned ho-down. After this exhilarating bit of exercise, Slim and Sambo left the bunkhouse and rode into town.

UCLA ALUMNI HONOR HOUSER

Frederick F. Houser, Los Angeles Superior Court Judge, has been selected as 1948 recipient of the Edward A. Dickson "Alumnus of the Year" award, it was announced by Paul R. Hutchinson, president of the UCLA Alumni Association.

Judge Houser has long been active in Bruin alumni affairs. He was president of the UCLA Alumni Association when the organization was first established as an independent unit in 1934. He led the movement to obtain graduate school work and helped to obtain the College of Engineering on the Westwood campus.

As an undergraduate, Houser was student body president, captain of the tennis team, president of his class, and a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Theta. He attended Harvard Law School, served three sessions in the California State Legislature, and was elected as Lieutenant Governor for the term 1942-46.

The Edward A. Dickson "Alumnus of the Year" award was established two years ago for annual recognition of "the alumnus who has contributed outstanding service to the distinction and advancement of the University." Dickson had been a Regent for 35 years and has just been elected to the chairmanship of the Board. He played an important part in the selection of the Los Angeles campus and has long advocated full development of the educational facilities of the State University in Los Angeles.

ATOMIC RESEARCH EXHIBIT DISPLAYED BY UC EXTENSION

The University of California's new exhibit on atomic research is now on public display in the gallery on the third floor on the Berkeley campus.

The exhibit is being shown under the auspices of the University Extension and in cooperation with the Atomic Energy Commission, which supports the University's Radiation Laboratory. It will be on display until July 31.

The exhibit contains a number of large panels and two demonstrations of different phases of atomic research on the Berkeley campus. Included is a mechanical model of the cyclotron and a scale model of the same machine.

The photographic and diagrammatic panels explain in lay terms the fundamentals of the atom and the many phases of atomic research now being carried on at Berkeley.

Grade Information Given to Students By Registrar

Summer session students are reminded that the only way in which they may obtain the final grades from their courses is by leaving a stamped self-addressed envelope in the mail box outside the office of the Registrar.

Grades will not be given out in any other way, therefore students who are interested in knowing how they came out in their courses should leave an envelope before the session is over.

Caldwell Article Wins Honors For News-Press Scribe

The best feature story published in the last year in Class A newspapers of Southern California, in the opinion of experts from the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri, was about a UCSB student and appears in the Santa Barbara News-Press on Aug. 10.

In a contest sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism sorority, recognition of outstanding 1947 work in the fields of news stories, community service and feature stories was made at a banquet in Los Angeles.

Don W. Wieder, of the News-Press, who wrote the feature story which received first prize, has been awarded a $100 U. S. Security bond.

"Local Ulysses Describes Pacific Crossing Trials" was the title of the prize winning feature article, relating the experiences encountered by John Caldwell, Santa Barbara College student, in attempting to sail alone in a 29-foot cutter from Panama to Australia to see his wife.

The article opened with a description of a hurricane which the tiny craft encountered, snapping the mast in 30-foot waves. Threatened with sinking, Caldwell tossed food and gear overboard to lighten the craft, managed to survive the storm, then faced starvation as the craft continued under make-shift sails. Fifty-one days after the hurricane, he sighted land and wrecked the craft on the Fiji Islands.

Caldwell, who has been elected president of the Santa Barbara College student body of next year, then lay helpless for three days until he was rescued by natives, according to the article.

Theta Sigma Phi conducts the contest for the furthering of good journalism. Judging was done by unprejudiced out-of-state authorities through arrangements made by the Missouri Press Association.

Wieder, who joined the News-Press' news department February 1, 1945, formerly was employed in Mason City, Clinton, and Estherville, all in Iowa. He was graduated from the University of Iowa. He is a well known figure on campus and has written many stories for the News-Press about college events and personalities.
