Lecturers Ask for Higher Pay

■ Union Undergoes Negotiations With UC to Increase Wages for Summer Quarter Classes

BY BEN EBYAM
Reporter

“It's a simple issue of fairness ... Our goal obviously is to protect the lecturers, but our goal is [also] to protect the quality of the education.”

— George Yatchinsin,
president, University Council of the California Federation of Teachers

As students flood the summer job market for that fat summer paycheck, UCSB lecturers are wishing they could do the same.

The lecturer's union is negotiating with the University of California for higher pay for lecturers, who will be required to take on an expanded teaching load under the university's new summer session plans.

The university is trying to expand its summer school enrollment to allow more students to pass through without increasing the campus population. The two sides met with a negotiator April 27 to discuss employee pay and summer sessions.

The UC is offering pay increases to faculty members teaching summer sessions to bolster the number of faculty members willing to teach summer session classes. Senate, or tenure-track faculty members, will receive an 11-percent per-class raise, while lecturers, who teach the majority of summer school classes, will receive an 8-percent increase.

University officials said they offered the incentive discrepancy because of a greater need for senate faculty to teach the additional quarter.

“It's a simple issue of fairness,” said George Yatchinsin, president of the University Council of the California Federation of Teachers (CFA). The lecturer's union is part of the CFA. “Our goal obviously is to protect the lecturers, but our

Hiking Trail To Connect the Dots

BY REBECCA TUREK
Reporter

Local wildlife hikers flocked to downtown Santa Barbara last night to support the “California Condor.”

The Los Padres Forest Association (LPFA) held a meeting Monday at the Santa Barbara Public Library to discuss the proposal of a new hiking trail. The “California Condor” trail would be 300 miles long, stretching from Lake Piru in Ventura County through Big Sur in northern Monterey County and would connect various existing trails in the Los Padres National Forest.

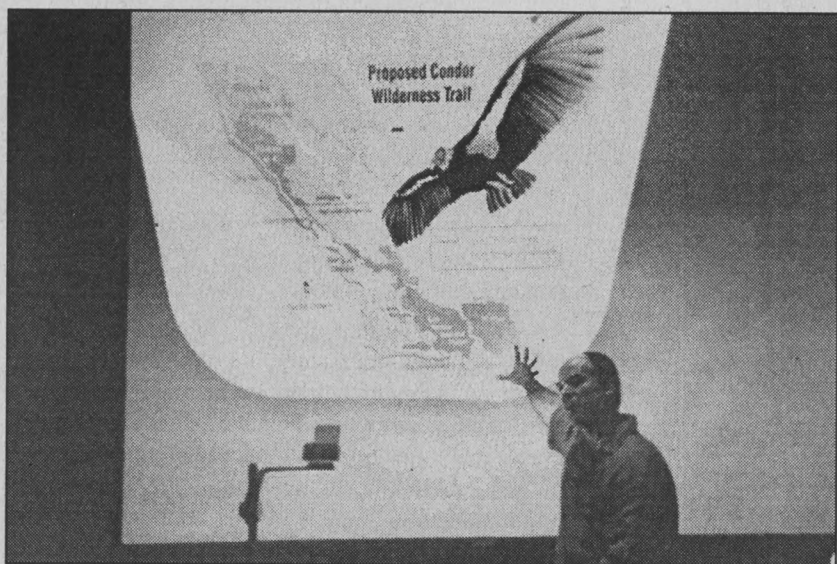

The presentation involved a slide show of various parts of the trail and the wildlife hikers may see along it, as well as a discussion for the community to give feedback.

Chris Danch, executive director of LPFA, said he has been working on the project for over two years.

“Eighty percent of the trail in the forest boundary already exists. The key is connecting the existing segments of the trail. This area is very important to us whether you know it or not. Many people don't know it exists,” Danch said.

Funding for the trail would be

Group Assaults Two Men in I.V.

Two UCSB students were reportedly attacked in the parking lot behind Isla Vista Theater on Sunday morning.

The two men were walking in the parking lot when they were assaulted and robbed by a group of three to five males and two females, according to University of California Police. One victim was reportedly hit on the head with a metal object, and another victim reported a missing wallet after the assault.

One of the suspects was described as a 5' 10" light-skinned male with a shaved head, wearing a dark blue crew neck sweatshirt without a logo and khaki-colored pants.

The two victims received medical attention at Goleta Valley Cottage Hospital for injuries suffered during the attack.

Police received information from Cottage Hospital's emergency department and an anonymous call, but all participants had left the scene by the time police arrived, Capt. Mike Foster said.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detective Van Nieuwenhuize at 893-8477.

IVRPD Seeks Funding for Community Facility

BY LADAN MOEENZIAI
Staff Writer

The Isla Vista Recreation and Parks District showcased four proposed models of an I.V. community center in the UCen last week, a project that has been in the works for over 20 years.

The center was first proposed by the IVRPD in 1977, but the IVRPD has been unable to obtain adequate funds for the project. In a 1992 election, the district hoped to pass a ballot measure authorizing a special tax to generate $250,000 a year to help fund the center, but the measure failed to obtain a two-thirds majority.

IVRPD General Manager Derek Johnson said a community center has always been an integral part of IVRPD's vision, but there has not been enough community and county financial support to build it.

“The Park District, since its conception, has had the intent to build a community center. There have been several attempts, and we plan on doing a feasibility study to figure specific costs to budget the center,” he said.

The models on display last week were created by architecture students at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and featured environmentally friendly aspects, including natural ventilation, compost facilities and power by photovoltaics.

The center would range in size from 5,000 to 10,000 square feet and consist of classrooms, a multipurpose room and recreation facilities. The IVRPD plans to build the center on the intersection of Camino

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a midnight deadline looming to apply for a visa without leaving the country, thousands of illegal immigrants spent Monday standing in line at Immigration and Naturalization Service offices throughout the state.

In downtown Los Angeles, more than 2,000 applicants were lined up outside the federal building when it opened at 6 a.m., many having camped out all night.

"It's huge. So big," said Sharon A. Gavin, director of public affairs for INS in Los Angeles, as she surveyed the crowd.

The line diminished by midmorning as agents weeded out people who just wanted to hand in forms or who did not need to be there first. Nonetheless, the office remained busy and open until midnight.

In San Francisco, newspapers, empty soda bottles and fast food bags were strewn around the INS building as people holding blankets and packets of documents stood in lines stretched around a block.

For Yvette Garcia and her husband, Juan, the wait began at 11 p.m. Sunday, but by noon Monday, they were almost finished — Juan was just waiting to receive his employment authorization card.

"It was hard, but it was worth it," Yvette Garcia said, who is jointly sponsoring Juan. "It was an experience. I don't know how the homeless do it."

The Legal Immigration and Family Equity (LIFE) Act that took effect in December allows an estimated 640,000 illegal immigrants to apply for visas without returning to their home countries first and applying from there. That is significant because most illegal immigrants are barred from re-entering the United States once they leave.

A visa allows an immigrant to stay in the country and reserves a place for the immigrant to apply for a green card later, which signifies permanent legal residency.

To apply, an immigrant must be sponsored and have a close relative who is a U.S. citizen or permanent resident. Then the immigrant must pay $225 in application and fingerprinting fees and a $1,000 fine for entering the country illegally.

BOSTON (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford won the John F. Kennedy Profile in Courage Award on Monday for taking the political risk of pardoning former President Richard Nixon after Watergate.

The award is given annually to an elected official who followed his conscience despite the political cost.

Ford, who pardoned Nixon to help the country recover from "our long national nightmare," said he is glad to be recognized for making the decision, which some say cost him the 1976 presidential election.

"The pardon of President Nixon in 1974, following his resignation, was very controversial but necessary," Ford said. "It is encouraging in 2001 that there appears to be a better understanding for my decision."

Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga., was given a special Profile in Courage Award for Lifetime Achievement. This year marks the 40th anniversary of the 1961 Freedom Rides in which Lewis challenged segregation.

The award is named for President Kennedy's 1957 Pulitzer Prize-winning book "Profiles in Courage," about eight U.S. politicians who risked their careers to fight for their beliefs.

The awards will be presented May 21. Winners receive a $25,000 stipend and a sterling silver lantern representing a beacon of hope.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The world's first astro tourist, California millionaire Dennis Tito, checked into the international space station for a six-day stay Monday and got a warm welcome. "I love space," he said with a big grin.

He was promised first-class accommodations, at least by space standards.

"We are going to prepare everything for you — nice bed and warm food," one of the Russian cosmonauts told him.

The Russian Soyuz capsule carrying Tito and two cosmonauts caught up with space station Alpha following a two-day chase that began with liftoff in Kazakhstan. The hatches swung open and a voice called out: "Welcome aboard!"

Soyuz commander Taldat Musabayev floated into the space station, followed by the 60-year-old Tito, who looked exceedingly healthy. Tito beamed as he shook hands with the three space station residents and gave a thumbs-up. He wore the standard blue cosmonaut uniform.

"It was a great trip here," said Tito, a financier who is paying up to $20 million for the round-and-round-the-world cruise. "And I don't know about this adaptation that they talk about. I'm already adapted. So I love space."

I have observed UCSB departmental offices for four years. As a public service, I will now print the secretive campuswide schedule for these offices:

Sometime after 9:30ish: Slide into the office. Take an hour to collect your thoughts (no calls, visits).

10:00ish: Open the office for business.

11:30ish: Gather up the entire office (no matter how busy you are) and go to lunch. Make sure no one is left behind to help students.

1:30ish: Take a half hour to digest and relax. Stress on a full stomach = heartburn.

2:00ish: Open for business.

3:00ish: Begin closing the office down. Frequently say, "Ooooh. I'd love to help you on that one, but my computer doesn't have the capacity to do that ... you'll have to come back tomorrow."

4:00ish: It's been a crazy day. Go home early. Tell students outside your office to return tomorrow.

Tuesday's forecast: Stressful day, but just feel good that you are helping so many students.

goal is [also] to protect the quality of the education."

Darrin Lee, the chief negotiator from the UC Office of the President, said many of the problems have stemmed from the lack of changes made to the contract the lecturers union has with the UC. Currently, the union is operating without a contract, since the old one expired in June 2000.

"This is the first time in over 15 years that the union has sought to make any significant changes to the contract," he said. "Lecturers on average make over $51,000 a year, those who work full time, nine months a year."

Mark Schlenz, a lecturer in the writing dept., said he believes many of the lecturers are disgruntled because they receive less pay for more work, while responsibility for teaching summer sessions will only contribute to their work load.

"When I left Santa Ynez High School in 1987, my salary was roughly $38,000. Now, with a Ph.D. and eight years of service, my UCSB salary is roughly $38,000," he said. "The fellow who has my old job makes about $55,000."

Assistant professors who teach four to five classes a year are usually paid close to $53,000 a year. However, Yatchinsin said research impedes assistant professors from teaching more classes.

Since the lecturer's contract expired, lecturers have failed to receive a general-range pay increase of 2 percent due to inflation. They will not receive this raise until the contract is settled, Lee said.

"It's not a secret or a surprise that the University wants to make the best use of the money that they can," said Lee.

Both sides, Lee said, are working to reach an agreement that satisfies everyone.

"We are really pushing to reach an agreement soon so that we can give the raise to the lecturers," Lee said. "We have offered it; we are just waiting for the union to accept it."

"We're trying to find out what our lecturers are willing to do, we are going to have to take a more dramatic approach," Yatchinsin said. "But we're going to have to see."

The lecturers will meet with Lee and the negotiator again on May 25, but neither side has said how much longer the negotiations will continue.

A Summer of 'Gray-Outs'

Energy Incompetence Will Soon Send Davis Packing

MICHAEL WARNKEN

Oh yes, rolling blackouts (or Gray-outs as I like to think of them) are coming, and they will be here in abundance this summer. California is in an energy crisis and the governor is in hot water.

Everything in California seemed fine when Gov. Gray Davis took the oath of office in 1999. In fact, things seemed almost perfect. He had just handily defeated Dan Lungren by almost 20 points for the governor's seat; prior to that, he defeated two powerful and wealthy opponents for the Democratic nomination. The economy was strong and the state's coffers were overflowing with money. Industries that traditionally gave money only to Republican candidates were now waiting in line to fill Davis' reelection war chest in order to garner some protection. He was even billed as a contender for the Democratic ticket in the 2004 presidential election. Now, however, it seems as though Davis may be searching for a new job in 2003.

Many are curious about what happened to cause this huge energy crunch. The simple answer is that the population of the state has been growing and no new power facilities have been built. The biggest reason for this is strict environmental laws. Suppliers have been unable to produce enough juice to meet the growing demand and the price of energy has been skyrocketing. This has left Davis with a lot of questions to answer.

Recently, Davis has gone on the offensive in an attempt to shift the blame from himself onto President Bush and former Gov. Pete Wilson. The problem with this strategy is that the president of the United States is not responsible for the energy supply in California and Pete Wilson has been out of office for almost two years. Why is it that we are only just beginning to focus on this problem now?

Davis has now come up with a few plans for how to get our energy supply back on track. His first plan is to increase production. No shit, what a good idea! Wish he'd thought of that last year. He is also planning on having the state help lower costs by subsidizing the production of new power plants. The problem with this is that they are expensive and take a long time to build.

Davis has stated that the power crunch in California will be solved by 2003. My calendar is telling me that it is still 2001, and I don't think that many people have the kind of patience that lasts for two years and spans two hot summers and two very cold winters. Things are looking grim, or should we say Gray?

Another brilliant idea from the Davis administration is to begin using the government's power of eminent domain to start confiscating power plants. The plan is for the state to control the production of power. If he is seriously thinking of doing this, someone should tell him to resign right now. Government employees can barely operate the DMV, much less run a power plant!

As of late, energy suppliers have been raising prices, and in order to keep the cost of juice down, Davis has been using state funds to subsidize prices. This is just quickly flushing the state's funds right down the toilet.

The power debacle here in California is gaining national recognition. This is not necessarily a good thing! The residents of many states are getting more than just a little upset with the Golden State. Since we cannot supply enough power for ourselves, we are buying it from producers in other states. The net effect is that it raises their energy prices as well.

As far as the next governor's race is concerned, two Republicans have stepped up to the plate to take a shot at the weakened Davis. These are Secretary of State Bill Jones and William Simon III — and there is a strong chance that Arnold Schwarzenegger will run as well. I'm excited by this possibility. The cost of getting name recognition in this state is enormous and Schwarzenegger already has that. I can see him as a favorite of the media and the people alike. In the following year, I can see Arnie going head-to-head with Davis in the debates. He need mutter only one statement in his thick Austrian accent: "It's time to go nuclear, baby." And it will be bye-bye, Davis.

Michael C. Warnken is a senior economics major and philosophy major.

The Reader's Voice

U.S. MISSILE SHIELD IS BEST PROTECTION FROM ATTACK

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Throughout history, modes of war have been changed due to technological advance. Armor-clad knights were rendered obsolete after the invention of the longbow, which could pierce a knight's armor from a hidden location a hundred yards away. Later, impregnable fortresses were crumbled to dust by attacking armies that had discovered the science of canonry. Right now, we are the mounted knights.

We cannot rely on Mutually Assured Destruction (M.A.D.) to keep us safe until the end of time. Technological progress is constant and every day, all around the world, people are making new discoveries that will one day nullify our nuclear arsenal. It is only a matter of time until this happens.

There is a saying that once you are on the top, the only way left to go is down. Right now we are on the top and this means we cannot be complacent and stop technological progress just because we are scared of what it may bring. Sure, the thought of another Cold War is scary and arms races may not be a good thing, but if we don't create the missile shield first, someone else will. We cannot bask in the glory of our might, thinking it is eternal, because it is not.

Relying on M.A.D. to dictate the bottom-line in foreign policy is a heavy-handed and clumsy approach. It is shortsighted, and relies on the goodwill of other nations and the rationality of their leaders. When it was just the U.S. vs. Russia, we could keep track of what was going on. But when some of the poorest countries in the world start developing nuclear weapons programs — like Pakistan (currently controlled by the leader of a military coup) and possibly Iraq — the old system becomes insufficient to ensure national security.

As the richest, most technologically advanced country in the world, we owe it to ourselves to be on the cutting edge of military technology. Do you think that we will never go to war again? Look at history and you will realize it is inevitable. Will we lose because we have become silly and idealistic, because we have forsaken the violent nature of mankind (when other nations have not) and have started hugging trees and eating blue-green algae? Or will we survive the test of time by understanding and accepting human nature, as painful as that may be. I choose to win.

RICH OR POOR, BUSH'S TAX PLAN COLLECTS FAIR DUES

Editor, Daily Nexus:

This letter is in response to Ivan Perez's letter (Reader's Voice, "The Rich Can Afford to Bear the Brunt of Taxes," April 30, 2001). Whether or not one agrees with President Bush's tax plan, Mr. Perez's "fuzzy math" and ignorance of the tax code needs to be corrected.

Perez gives an example of two families — one making $15,000 and another making $250,000 — and then claims that the latter will reap some kind of windfall under the new tax code and the poorer family will not get a sizeable tax decrease. However, a 4.3 person family earning only $15,000 a year pays no taxes, either under the old tax code or the new one. Furthermore, they are eligible for numerous tax credits at both the state and federal level. Additionally, if they were to earn more and make it into the lowest tax bracket, they would see their tax rate reduced from 15 percent to 10 percent under the Bush plan. They would further benefit from a $500 per child increase in the dependent benefit and the elimination of the marriage tax penalty.

The family making $250,000 does not pay 25 percent income tax, but rather 39.3 percent income tax, as they are in the highest bracket. Their burden would be reduced to 33 percent under the Bush plan. Yet this is only a portion of their tax burden. They would pay a bundle in registration tax for their "three automobiles," property taxes on their home and high sales taxes, depending on their state of residence. Should they make a profit — there's that evil word — by investing in the companies that create jobs for the less fortunate families, they will pay high capital gains tax.

My favorite part of Mr. Perez's letter was his use of the PictSweet mushroom workers. Perhaps these workers would have more money in their pockets if they didn't have to have their union dues deducted from their paychecks every week. After all, they don't seem to be getting much for their money, as the United Farm Workers (UFW) has done nothing but lose jobs for the minority of the laborers who chose to strike.

The implied injustice in Mr. Perez's letter does not stem from the tax plan, but from the realities of a capitalistic market. Yes, one family makes $250,000, while another makes $15,000. The only tax plan that can correct this alleged injustice is a redistributive socialist form. I'm sorry, Mr. Perez, but this is America and we pay people what the market says they are worth. If you have problems with our economic structure, may I suggest Sweden — I hear it's lovely this time of year.

raised through private donations and grants, Danch said.

"The project is designed to raise its own funds through people who like the idea of it and through grants," he said. "When we raise money, we will make a proposal of what parts of the trail needs to be filled in. The process is going to take about three years."

Danch said there are both ecological and recreational reasons that make preservation of the forest important.

"Los Padres is the third largest forest in California. It is a watershed that provides 60 percent of the water for the surrounding communities. It also provides a great place for recreation. Each year 11 million people, from all over the world, come to Los Padres Forest hiking, backpacking, swimming, hunting, fishing and lots of other recreational purposes.

es. Being there inspires and rejuvenates our imagination," he said.

Danch is leading a backpacking expedition from May 12 to May 22 that will cover 120 miles of the trail as a way to generate support.

"We cover 10-12 miles a day. There's a cost associated with it because we provide transportation and food and also because it is a fund-raiser. You can sign up for shorter legs of the hike if you can't make the whole 120 miles," he said. "This kind of travel, this kind of experience can be a transformation. Nothing changes your idea of what's back there than getting out there yourself."

Jim Blakley, a naturalist and historian from the Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties Back Country, said the trail will make the forest more accessible to younger generations.

"What's the use of having it if you can't use it? We're trying to open it up so people will use it. I've been hiking parts of this trail for over 50 years," he said. "Young people are our future and the future users of the forest. If we get them to appreciate it, then they will treat it more respectfully."

Jim Mann, a Los Padres Forest Association board member, said the proposal is a way to raise awareness of the forest.

"I think it will be a major trail for the forest. It will create a lot of attention and get a lot of people interested in it that wouldn't normally be interested. More people will learn about the forest and want to take part in its preservation."

Mann said he encourages UCSB students to help with the project.

"I see a great opportunity for UCSB students to become involved. They can join the [LPFA] and participate. We like to think of ourselves as a means to get someone to volunteer somehow in the forest," he said.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By Linda C. Black

Today's Birthday (May 1). Put down roots first, and love is your reward. State your case firmly in May, and convince someone who thought he knew better. Expenses rise in June. Being thrifty helps. Follow a hunch in July, and stand firm in August. Save September for the one you love. You need to work on your own place in October. Get expert advice in November, and make romantic commitments that month, too. Pay off bills in December, and go for a raise in February. Find the perfect thing for your home in April.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Today is a 7 - Do you feel like soaring but worry about a lack of funds? Don't let financial concerns cramp your style, but don't go into debt to get new toys, either. Your energy is high, so range farther afield. Find a job that nobody else wants. Stay in shape, and earn cash for new wings or wheels.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Today is a 5 - Somebody at home wants to boss you around. Are you going to stand for that? Sitting and talking might be a good idea, but don't expect a quick resolution. You two might not resolve matters until the day after tomorrow.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) - Today is a 6 - You'll get much farther today with action, not talk. In fact, some of the people you're dealing with might not be on speaking terms. If you can't get the words out, don't worry. Do what needs to be done.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) - Today is a 6 - Arrange a conference with your team to review plans. No need to broadcast the news yet. Give yourselves plenty of time to think of all the consequences of your impending action - which happens sometime around Thursday, by the way.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Today is a 7 - You need to get out for some exercise. Staying cooped up is making you crazy, but what about your responsibilities? By volunteering to work overtime, you might make enough to buy some great new toys. Stick with it a little longer.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Today is a 7 - Others are pushing you to move quickly, but that could cause problems. Did you ever notice that in the race between the tortoise and the hare, the tortoise always wins? Heed a wealthy older person's advice, and not the advice of a foolish, frightened bunny.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) - Today is a 7 - So many invitations, so little time. Better turn down a date that would cause you to be out late. You won't get nearly as much attention if you have big bags under your eyes - not the kind of attention you want, anyway.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) - Today is a 5 - You've got a lot to do and a lot to think about. You're under pressure, but you're not alone. You have somebody who could understand, and help, nearby. Don't hide out; reach out.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) - Today is a 7 - You're raring to go, but you don't have the green light just yet. Is it because the time isn't right, or have you just not explained your concept clearly? Maybe it's a little of both. Don't get restless; this may take a while. Give it until Friday, at least.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Today is a 7 - Don't take a financial risk quite yet. There's more homework to be done first. The details are still coming in. The workload may change, too. A seemingly done deal falls through, and something better appears on the horizon.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) - Today is a 5 - You may feel as if you're dragging an anchor. Every answer you come up with leads to a new question. Every open door has a wall right behind it. Perhaps the universe is trying to tell you something. Chill.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) - Today is a 6 - Is there a chance you could curl up with a good book today? At work? It would be a good way to spend your time, but it might be tough to accomplish. There will even be distractions at home tonight. How long can you lock yourself in the bathroom without them breaking down the door?

I.V. CENTER

del Sur and Estero Road.

IVRPD director Pegeen Soutar said the center would serve an underrepresented population of I.V. by providing it with a community facility.

"A lot of I.V. residents do not have access to university facilities. It would be some place in town where everyone could come together: students, families, community children," she said. "I hope we get a positive reaction from students, but I understand if it doesn't concern them that much."

According to an August 1999 feasibility study by IVRPD, the cost of a "green" community center would range from $200-$400 per square foot.

Johnson said an environmentally friendly center would attract more financial support.

"We hope that because the center will be built with sustainable materials, it will give us a lot of different options as far as looking for grants and financial support. A lot of different organizations will be more willing to help us," he said.

The center needs county and community support to cover the costs, Soutar said.

"It is still one big dream. We don't have, as a district, the collaboration between UCSB and the county on this," she said. "The next step is to try and get the county to use some redevelopment funds. We need to do a feasibility study to see what our costs will be on running the center, possible sources of revenue, and other budget issues."

Mark Chaconas, the executive assistant to 3rd District Supervisor Gail Marshall, said the county must examine the community's priorities before granting funds.

"All decisions will be made under process. The budgeting for the center will depend on how the community looks at the variety of projects underway in terms of their priorities," he said. "People want to see affordable projects. We will have to see how [the community center] plays out under public review in the fall."

Utah State Controls Gauchos in Three-Game Series

BY KEITH BUSAM
Staff Writer

After receiving a lesson in softball from #9 Cal State Fullerton last weekend, the UCSB women's softball team was looking forward to its road trip this weekend to battle Utah State and apply what they learned.

Unfortunately, the Gauchos (18-31, 4-14 in the Big West) were only able to win one of the three games played as they sandwiched their 8-7 win between two losses by scores of 10-2 and 5-3. But the good news is that the squad again had strong performances from their freshman and sophomore pitchers and position players. Santa Barbara is now going to be looking to develop its youngsters for next year after getting eliminated from any playoff action.

In the first game of Saturday's doubleheader, UCSB staggered out of the gates and promptly gave up 10 runs in the first three innings. Utah State (11-36, 5-13) coupled its strong hitting with equally impressive pitching, as Xochitl Ramirez tossed a five-hitter and surrendered only two earned runs. For Ramirez, it was just her fourth win of the season. Junior second baseman Kim Sawyer was the only real offensive firepower for Santa Barbara, smacking her team-leading third round-tripper of the year.

"We just didn't see the ball that first game," sophomore pitcher Sylvia Santos said. "But that kind of thing happens in softball. Someone will have a good pitching game and you just have to bounce back."

In the nightcap, Santa Barbara turned the tables on the Aggies, but it took a while for it to do so. Again, Utah State drew first blood, scoring single runs in the first and second innings. Santa Barbara opened the floodgates in the fifth inning and went on a scoring binge. When the dust settled, UCSB moved ahead 7-2. It tacked on an insurance run in the sixth inning that seemed meaningless, but proved to be crucial in the end.

Heading into the bottom of the seventh, the Gauchos appeared to be cruising to an easy 8-3 victory, but then things got out of hand. The Aggies scored four quick runs and it took an amazing effort from the Gaucho defense in order to preserve the win. Sophomore outfielder Sarah Brown was the difference for the Gauchos, while she hit her first career home run for Santa Barbara and ignited the fifth-inning outburst.

"It just felt really good," Brown said of hitting her home run. "I think that we looked dim for the Gauchos heading into the sixth inning and down 1-0, but Santa Barbara racked up three runs in their half of the inning to change the game's complexion.

But as they did all weekend long, Utah State responded. In their half of that same inning, the Aggies scored four runs and put the game out of reach while rolling to a 5-3 victory.

With no hope of making the playoffs, Santa Barbara is now focusing their attention on this weekend's final home stand, which are also the last three games of the season for the young Gaucho squad. UCSB will square off against rival Cal State Northridge, a team they have yet to face this season.

"This weekend's series is pretty important," Santos said. "We played them last year and it was one of the better series we had all season. This weekend I think we are going to be hoping for more of the same."

The UCSB softball could team not fend off Utah State in a three-game series on the road. The Gauchos mustered an 8-7 victory Friday, but fell in the other two games in between.

UCSB Defeats Anteaters Before Falling to UCLA, Hawai'i, San Diego State

This past weekend's loss to San Diego State in the last round of the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation Championships left an air of finality in what had become an increasingly dismal end to the 2001 season for the UCSB women's water polo team.

The Gauchos went into the championship with a sour taste in its mouth after dropping its last five matches.

UCSB ended up dropping three of four matches, settling for eighth place in the tourney. Despite how gloomy the results seem on paper, many team members felt that the season ended on a good note.

"I think all of us fell short in a way," junior two-meter offense player Kelley Tiffany said. "It wasn't one person just making a mistake. Despite the fact that we lost, [we had two] close-scoring games and we played really well."

The Gauchos clinched their only win of the weekend in the first match against Irvine. The Anteaters barely put up a fight and UCSB won 6-1. Unfortunately, the second match was a completely different story. Santa Barbara was matched up against #2 UCLA; the Bruins were ruthless, taking control quickly and winning easily.

The third match of the weekend pitted UCSB up with host University of Hawai'i. The Gauchos were leading 2-0 after the first quarter, but the Rainbows inched their way on top and took the game, 8-7.

On the last day of the tournament #7 Santa Barbara was slotted to face #8 San Diego State. It was a back-and-forth match, but the Gauchos slowly fell behind and found themselves the victim of a 6-4 deficit until they rallied to tie the match up at 6-6, sending the game into overtime. During the second period of overtime, Aztec Holly Hartzell finally found a hole in the Santa Barbara defense and sent one reeling into the net to win the match, 7-6.

"We had, like, 10 million shots in the San Diego game but we just didn't put any away," junior Jenny Holladay said.

The final loss to San Diego State flipped the final rankings by putting the Aztecs in at #7 and UCSB at #8, and it also marked the end of the Gauchos' season.

"It just came down to San Diego and Hawai'i being lucky," Tiffany said. "There were just a couple of missed shots here and there, but they just had a few less."

The UCSB women's water polo team reached for a championship, but to no avail. Santa Barbara lost to the Bruins, Rainbows, and Aztecs.

Santa Barbara Runs & Guns in Another Strong Weekend

BY BROOKE ROBERTS

The UCSB men's and women's track team competed in the California/Nevada Championships at Irvine Field this past weekend. The event attracted over thirty schools and programs across the state. The women's team placed ninth overall, while the men's team came in tenth place.

"The women took ninth, which was an improvement over last year, when we placed eleventh," senior middle distance runner Ali Pearson said.

There were a number of highlights on both the men's and women's side for the Gauchos, but it was in the women's distance competition where Santa Barbara's power was most visibly on exhibit. Freshman Cosette

Smith dominated the 3000-meter event, zooming in for first by clocking in at a personal best of 9:56.44.

"Going into the race I was ranked to be fourth, based on my best time," Smith said. "So that motivated me to be in the front of the pack, because I knew I had a chance to win it."

Junior Lisa Dunn also put some points on the scoreboard for the Gauchos during day one of the events with her performance in the women's steeplechase. She was able to place fifth and set a new school record with a finishing time of 11:17.76.

"[Dunn] is seven seconds away from an NCAA provisional time in the women's steeplechase," Smith said.

Cosette Smith

"[The steeplechase] was right before my event, so it was exciting to see."

On the men's side, senior team captain Baruti Armstrong proved to be the leading scorer for the Gauchos by helping put ten points on the tally with his third place time of 14.55 in the 110-meter hurdles. Armstrong also placed fifth in the 400-meter hurdles by crossing the line at 53.82.

Junior Octavious Gillespie also did well in the javelin throw. His throw of 203' 04" was good enough to land him third place in the event. Junior Aaron Sharp was one more Gaucho that turned in an impressive performance Sunday afternoon. Sharp had a lifetime best time of 14:52.30 in the 5,000-meter race.

This weekend, select team members will travel to Stanford to compete in the Cardinal Invite, where they will get their last chance to find a qualifying mark for the NCAA championships. However, most of the Gaucho squad will get a weekend break from traveling as it hosts the Nick Carter Invitational at UCSB's own Pauley Track. The action is set to begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.
