Cold Spring Means Business

By Abe McCurdy

In thinking of fine Santa Barbara restaurants, most people turn their thoughts toward State Street and the many eating establishments that line the popular thoroughfare. So who could have guessed when we embarked on the beautiful drive through San Marcos Pass that we would uncover one Santa Barbara's best-kept restaurant secrets: a little place called Cold Spring Tavern.

We had heard about the food — our friends had seen to that. They couldn't stop raving about it from the last time they had gone. But the food is only part of the experience.

The Tavern is nestled away on a quiet road called Stagecoach, just off of the 154 freeway. Sitting comfortably, nooked in a picturesque forest, it has all the look — and feel — of a quaint mountain cabin. Only John Denver's greatest tunes come to mind as you regard the smoke slowly wafting out of the chimney. And, as they say, where there's smoke, there's good food.

We were a tad late for our 5 o'clock reservation, but our host was pleasant and seemed glad to seat us anyway. His courteous demeanor was not only a comfort, but it also added to the ambience. You see, Cold Springs Tavern is warm and softly lit, and despite the chilly and frosty weather outside, you know the restaurant is as toasty as a well-balanced breakfast.

Our friendly waitress was quick to bring us cold water and warm bread with many pats of butter. The two types of freshly baked bread that were brought to us were, in our opinion, the best bread we'd ever tasted. Serious. But, as we were soon to learn, it was only a prelude.

We placed our orders and sat happily, reflecting on the day's happenings. Although the specials for the evening, an unlikely and surprising selection of fresh fish, looked enticing, I opted for the Cold Spring Chicken. I was glad that I did. The chicken and baked potato would be great, I knew, but I could hardly believe my ears when the waitress told me that I also could choose between soup and salad. I chose the soup, an excellent clam chowder.

The chicken came stuffed with a kind of raisin stuffing and covered with a thick, delicious gravy. My mouth waters just by writing about it. I would have been sad to eat the last glorious mouthful, but I found that my savage hunger had been calmed. I was content. Full. It felt good. My dining partner had as much to say about his choice, the linguini.

After our meal, we sipped coffee, the likes of which I had never tasted. We were in no hurry to leave, and that was just fine.

The people working at the Tavern wished us a fond farewell. It was almost a sad departure, but then again, there will always be another trip to the Cold Spring Tavern.

The Cold Spring Tavern is located at 5005 Stagecoach Rd. Open 11 a.m.-3 p.m. daily for lunch, 5-9 p.m. Sun-Thur and 5-10 p.m. Fri-Sat for dinner, and Sat-Sun 8-11 a.m. for breakfast. Phone 967-0066.

RYAN GOLD/Daily Nexus

Lickity Split: That's Yummy!

By Hank Steuver

Crumbled candy bar experiments were never really a viable option growing up. And the thought of placing pieces of the stuff anywhere near my ice cream or my frozen yogurt was never real popular either.

But now, I've got to admit, it's a good idea. Ice cream has come a long way since I was a child, and Lickity Split — the hippest ice cream joint in Isla Vista — is on the "scooping edge" of ice cream/yogurt technology.

Check it out. They have strange and delicious flavors that sound more like names for bad '60s psychedelic bands than for ice cream. How does "Brazilian Coffee Chip" grab you? Does your Uncle Phil claim he has his first album? Wasn't "Peppermint Stick" a hit song by Strawberry Alarm Clock? I don't know, but I do know this: it's one heck of a yummy ice cream.

When I was younger, things like "frozen yogurt," "toppings" and "smoothies" were just phrases you weren't allowed to say in mixed company. Now they're all the rage. And Lickity Split's got them all.

My childhood friend, Che, came to visit last week. We were reliving some of the good times on our way home from the basketball court, when I reminded him that he had lost four out of seven games and had to flip the bill for some "sceeba" — our boyhood code word for ice cream. We walked along Pardall Road in Isla Vista looking for a place and happened upon Lickity Split — a sort of airy, avant-garde ice cream shop that likes to do it up with neon while packing its menu with a plethora of ice cream and frozen yogurt goodies. We were awe-struck at first, because the places we'd always gone to when we were growing up on the farm in Minnesota only had your basic three, as far as flavors, and maybe — maybe — you could get out of there with a little chocolate sauce.

But this was different.

This was California and my first year at school in the big city. We stared unbelievably at Lickity Split's spread. The woman behind the counter gave us a nice run-down of the store's offerings. All we wanted was a cup of vanilla and/or a cup of chocolate — or maybe even a little of both. But the woman started blurting out McConnell's ice cream flavors like the one's I've already mentioned, and more. Then she hit the frozen yogurt collection: non-fat Vanilla, Raspberry Truffle, Double Dutch Chocolate Fudge, non-fat Chocolate Mint and non-fat Kahlua, among others. Next was her array of health shakes with funky, hip, West Coast names like "Kamikaze," "Peanut Butter Booster," "Cocktail Cooler," "Mocha Rocha," "Spring Break" and my personal favorite, "Banana Wama."

Just then, Che nudged me in the ribs with his elbow — just like he used to do in class right before he'd fake appendicitis so he could go home early — pointing to small receptacles full of fruit, nuts, chips and crumbled stuff. "Toppings," the lady behind the counter informed us. "They go on top of the ice cream and yogurt," she added. Then I noticed the Butterfinger topping, surrounded by others such as sliced almonds, granola, apple cobbler, banana chips, strawberries, boysenberries and gummy bears.

Lickity Split is open from noon to midnight, but we don't have to leave the apartment because they will deliver anything we want right to our door between 7:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m.

That's what I call living large.

Lickity Split is located at 888 Embarcadero del Norte in Isla Vista. Phone 968-1774.

"It would probably patch things up."

Harry's: A Quality Place

By Stephen Lynne-Bachelor

Food that is wealthy in portion and thrifty in price is a hot commodity these days. Perhaps that's why Harry's Plaza Cafe is still bringing in such great business after all these years.

Maybe it's the generous drinks. Generous? Mother Teresa wishes she was this generous! In fact, Harry's Plaza Cafe claims to have the most generous drinks in town, a claim that has gone undisputed for years.

Maybe it's the food staff. In the tired '90s, we have gotten so used to rude fast food employees that people have turned to acting that way towards their friends, family and co-workers. Like a fresh whiff of salty air to an old sea hound, the old-fashioned service that Harry's so proudly offers reminds us that people don't have to be rude. In fact, they can be pretty nice when they want to. The people at Harry's are classic. Bartenders with white shirts, smiles and bow ties. Haven't seen that in a while, huh? Chefs with those cool, big hats. Just like the old days, huh? Waitresses who understand that their job is actually to wait on you. Sounds odd, I know, but I think that's what restaurants are supposed to do.

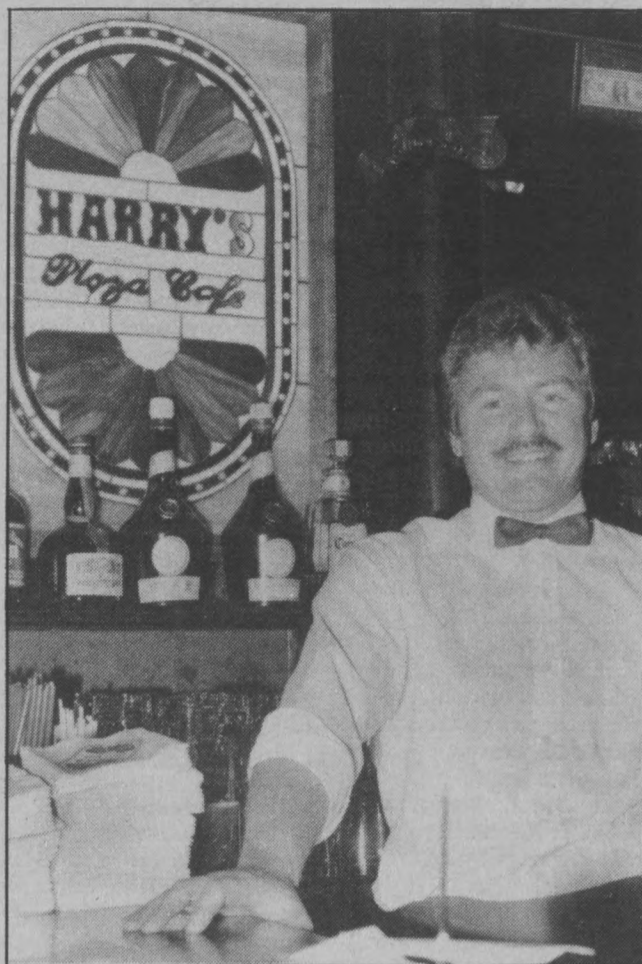

Somewhere along the line, the restaurant goes have been duped. Now — more times than we're comfortable to admit — we go to fast food places, buy food, stand around until its ready, carry it to our table, eat it and then clean up after ourselves. By this point, we might as well have made it at home! Why do we go out to eat when we don't get to enjoy the pleasure of doing so? We're even a little scared to order it the way we like it!

Not at Harry's. They've got selection that you don't want to even talk about. And when you order, they want you to ask for it the way you like it, not the way they pre-made it a half hour ago. You want your steak medium-rare, well, then for God's sake tell 'em you want it medium-rare! You don't want onions on that burger, don't be shy! Let 'em know! It's all right! It's a restaurant — a real restaurant — for crying out loud!

When you finally make your order — and you will — you don't feel rushed. You're not standing around on tile getting pushed here and there by a bunch of weird people like at some fast food place. You are sitting comfortably, sipping your cool (or hot) drink, munching on the delicious sourdough bread, salsa and sour cream, and just talking. You remember why you went out to eat in the first place.

When I went last week, I ordered my standard Harry's meal: the Sourdough Cheddar Burger. I got it the way I liked it — no onions, extra pickles, a side salad with blue cheese and french fries. It came as steaming, tangy, juicy and delicious as always. My friend Max ordered the open-faced roast beef sandwich done up right — with gravy, a salad and french fries. After dinner we got coffee, and in response to the waitress' query, yes, we took cream. After a couple cups of fine, fine java, the after-dinner, satisfied, sleepy haze began to wear off. We broke down and ordered up a couple fresh banana daiquiris.

Yeah, they were good. We paid the tab and left. Harry's Plaza Cafe. Check it out once, won't you?

Edomasa-Miso Hungry!

By Haden Guest

Like most people, I haven't gotten much sleep lately. Worried about the frenetic rush of love and war, I lie awake at night and think.

More often than not, however, I think about sushi. Where some people count sheep, I count shrimp. I think about fresh salmon sushi, and how good that would taste really late in the evening.

Fortunately, Santa Barbara has a terrific late-night sushi bar that can satisfy my sushi-est urges until the wee hours of the morning. Edomasa, on De la Vina Street, is open until 12:30 in the morning on weeknights, and even later on the weekends.

But late night hours alone do not a good sushi bar make. The test is whether the sushi is fresh — in the case of Edomasa, if it were any fresher, it'd swim away.

When you first sit down at the sushi bar, the attentive Edomasa waitperson brings a steaming bowl of miso soup, which is a sure-fire appetizer. As they serve it, the broth is tart but not too salty, and the tofu isn't too firm.

My main man Massy, who was in charge of my sushi preparation on my late-night foray earlier this week, recommended what's rapidly becoming Edomasa's specialty: their spicy rolls. My companions and I started off with the spicy tuna roll, which surrounds tuna sushi in a spicy/creamy hot sauce with strips of cucumber and a layer of perfectly cooked rice.

The nature of hotness is what differentiates Edomasa's spicy rolls from, let's say, a fish taco loaded with salsa. Salsa hits your palate from the start, in sparks of red-hot and blue. But a spicy roll gets you from behind, quietly waiting until the other flavors have subsided for the hotness to register. I enjoyed the rolls so much I ordered three more.

WARREN NAKATAN/Daily Nexus

If you're looking for sushi, checking out Edomasa will be a good idea.

A benchmark of Santa Barbara's sushi bars is the California roll, which is cooked crab meat rolled up with avocado and cucumber in a layer of rice, and once again, Massy and Edomasa know how to do it right. After one order, I wished they all could be California rolls.

The catch of the day varies, and it's a good idea to ask your sushi chef what's especially fresh. In my case, the halibut was recommended, and was quite good. Edomasa's halibut sushi is served with a healthy slice of the fish over rice, with a sprinkling of hot pepper and green onion and topped off with a sprinkle of rice vinegar. The combination of flavors can be at first unexpected, but once the taste hits, the halibut sushi is bound to be a favorite.

Sushi man Massy's boss, a gregarious guy named Ty, recognized me from my previous visits. "You're Haden Guest, aren't you? I read your review in the Nexus!

You're a regular party animal!" Just then, fortunately, a party in the corner of the restaurant fired up the karaoke machine and proceeded to shout through "Great Balls of Fire." We laughed, ordered another round of spicy tuna roll, and managed to get home in time for Letterman's Top-Ten list, which is what I'd call a pretty fantastic late-night outing.

Edomasa is located at 2710 De la Vina in Santa Barbara. Open Sun-Thur 6 p.m.-12:30 a.m., Fri-Sat 6 p.m.-1:30 a.m. Phone 687-0210.

LOCAL COLOR

Zelo

At a time when the Santa Barbara club scene seems to be similar to a cesspool, Zelo is trying something new. Every Monday night Zelo sets aside time for the industrial crew. Posters of Jane's Addiction and Sid Vicious litter the walls of the otherwise "trendy" nightclub. Monday may seem like a lame night to go drinking, but set one aside — check out Zelo's URGE!

Due to the erratic lifestyles of Santa Barbara musicians all dates and times are subject to change.
