Students Plan for Upcoming WTO Demonstration

Protesters To Take a Stand Against Corporate Globalization

BY KRISTEN BRAFORD
Reporter

Students and staff gathered together on campus Tuesday for a teaching session in preparation for a protest of the World Trade Organization.

The teach-in is aimed at educating students about the history and policies of the World Trade Organization prior to the week-long protest of the WTO international conference, which takes place Nov. 30 to Dec. 3 in Seattle.

One of the main issues raised against the WTO at the teach-in was the practice of favoring corporate influence over world government, said KCSB adviser Elizabeth Robinson, who led the teach-in. "There are other values besides the monetary, and that's what is missing between governments and corporations," she said.

A group of 25 to 30 UCSB students, primarily from the Increase the Peace Alliance, the Environmental Affairs Board and the Student Committee on Racial Equality (SCORE), intend to travel to Seattle in an effort to decrease corporate influence of the WTO.

"[The WTO] has been pro-corporate globalization rather than pro-human needs," according to Jonny Wallis, one of nine members of Goleta Now!, the group preparing for a protest of the WTO meeting in Seattle.

KCSB adviser Elizabeth Robinson discusses her opposition to the World Trade Organization. Her lecture Tuesday aimed to prepare activists for next week's protest of the WTO meeting in Seattle.

One of the big goals is to take a stand against corporate control of our government and our lives," he said. "There have been violent protests in the past where the police used tear gas. This week there is going to be an attempt to shut down the WTO — probably with a lot of arrests to make a stand against corporate globalization."

Increase the Peace Chair Sumi Crimmel questioned whether Seattle officials will be sympathetic to protesters considering the stigma of recent events. "There have been two bomb threats in Seattle, and the media is portraying this in an antagonistic light," she said. "Will peaceful protesters even be listened to with all the negativity?"

The protest in Seattle is aimed at increasing the individual's voice in society, according to Dan Harkes, a member of the Citizens Alliance of Santa Barbara.

"Democracy means everybody has a voice in how society is run, so we have to do something," he said.

Local Residents Petition for Right to Vote On Incorporation of Goleta

Goleta Now! plans to submit signatures in order to put Goleta cityhood on the November 2000 ballot.

Accumulating over 3,400 signatures, Goleta Now! has spent the past year drumming up support for the sixth attempt in making part of unincorporated Santa Barbara County into the city of Goleta.

According to Jonny Wallis, one of nine members of Goleta Now!, the city plan concentrates on areas that were pro-cityhood in past attempts, not including Isla Vista and areas east of Patterson Avenue.

"We wanted the least-contentious areas. I think many people in the Goleta Now! group wanted I.V., but because of misconceptions or beliefs, we chose to focus on a smaller area," she said.

The required signatures represent 25 percent of potential voters within the proposed city limits and will be submitted to the Local Agency Forming Commission (LAFCO) for review.

LAFCO intends to look at the boundaries and financial sustainability of a new city, according to Diane Conn, member of the Goleta Roundtable and the I.V. Recreation and Parks District board of directors.

"The goal of cityhood is to bring municipal services and local government to urbanized areas," she said. "Since the last attempt at cityhood in the early '90s, there's been more development and urbanization, and Goleta is beginning to feel the pain of density as far as parking and traffic."

Iran's decision to end its oil-for-food program is a significant step towards normalizing relations with the United States. The program was initiated in 1996 as part of a comprehensive new policy toward Iran, which was established following the five permanent Security Council members accepting the initiative.

The United States decided to change the program once again because it does not want to risk the program and medical imports automatic.

The United States wants changes in the program only as part of a comprehensive new policy toward Iran, which is established following the five permanent United Nations Security Council members accepting the initiative.

Today, the United States has approved a stop-gap extension of the oil-for-food program through December 4.

Iraq: The 3-year-old oil-for-food program is an exemption to the crippling economic sanctions the United States has faced since its 1990 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent U.S. embargo, which has allowed Iraq to sell $25 billion worth of oil every six months to buy medicine and other humanitarian supplies, as well as to fund operations stemming from the 1991 Persian Gulf War. Iraq stopped new oil exports.

Prison Fight Injures 10 Inmates, Hospitalizes 11 Workers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — About 60 inmates who refused to be strip-searched at High Desert State Prison in California were launched an attack on prison workers, sending 11 to the hospital, officials said.

One of the guards had two teeth knocked out in the attack Monday, The Sacramento Bee reported.

"They were trying to get as much blood as they could," said Matt Valo, chapter head of the prison officers' labor union. "They were trying to kill people. It was a full-blown riot."

Prisoners attacked after officers put down a firefight between two Caucasian inmates in the "D" yard, said Acting Lt. Chuck Spirk, the prison spokesperson.

Officers who broke up the fight against two weapons made by inmates, said Spirk. The officers ordered two weapons made by inmates, said Spirk.

"I think the inmates just wanted to find more weapons," a 25-year-old inmate who is an inmate at the prison said.

About 90 African-American inmates were searched and returned to their cells. Sixty African-American inmates were searched and returned to their cells.

POLICE REPORT

Greek Thief Nabbed A Night in Jail

At approximately 3:35 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 19, officers observed a 24-year-old male suspect walking northbound on Embarcadero Del Norte carrying a large索尼ony picture composite, Islas Vista Foot Patrol reports state.

Officers approached the suspect and asked him what he was doing with the picture. The suspect stated that he had permission to take the composite. According to reports, security members said it was a fraternity or sorority "prank" and that they did not wish to prosecute for theft.

The suspect was taken into custody and housed pending arraignment.

It'll Make You Go Blind

On Thursday, Nov. 11, at approximately 1 a.m., an officer noticed a small, red laser light on the center of his partner's back while patrolling the 6600 block of Del Playa Drive, reports state.

Officers observed a 19-year-old male suspect with his right hand close to his chest, pointing something at the officer. The officers approached the suspect to discover a small, laser key chain in the suspect's hand.

The officers attempted to escort the suspect to the side of the road. The suspect tightened up and pulled his arm away from the officer. The officer asked for the key chain, and the suspect said, "No, I don't have to give it to you," reports state.

The officers explained that the suspect would receive a citation for pointing a laser at a peace officer. The reports state the suspect said, "Go ahead, cite me."

The suspect was cited for brandishing a laser scope at a peace officer in a threatening manner.

No Second Chances for Rogue Skateboard Commandos

At approximately 12:57 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 25, officers patrolling the 6600 block of Del Playa Drive observed a 21-year-old male subject standing in the middle of the street holding his skateboard under his arm like a machine gun. Reports state the subject was pointing it at the officers while making a "bang" noise with his mouth.

Officers approached the suspect and told him that they did not appreciate him acting like he was shooting officers. Reports state that the suspect had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath, his clothes were soiled and stained, and he was unsteady on his feet.

The officers advised the suspect to go home due to the level of his intoxication. The suspect refused to leave the street, and the officers attempted to walk him to the side of the street.

The officers attempted to lay the suspect down to cuff him, but the suspect did not want to lose his skateboard. The officers had to go around the suspect's body and begin to kick his feet.

Officers unable to physically apprehend the suspect released a one-second burst of pepper spray into his face. The suspect released his arms, and the officers cuff him.

The Reader's Voice

GUN CONTROL IS NEEDED FOR A SAFE SOCIETY

Editor, Daily Nexus:

After reading Nick Farrah's "Big Brother Law" (Daily Nexus, Nov. 18), I was inspired to respond and ask Nick a few questions. First of all, you claim that "It is not our government's duty to be proactive in stopping crimes," but rather that it should be "reactive in punishing those who commit crimes." We're talking about guns and murder here, Nick. You can throw a murderer in jail for as long as your 10-20-Life schedule calls for, but still jail sentences don't bring back to life the kids who are lying dead on the streets with bullets in their heads.

You go on even to admit that "the federal government could step in and stop a lot of the horrible tragedies," but that action would allegedly infringe on "our freedoms as Americans." What freedoms are you talking about? The freedom to shoot and kill another person? The freedom to walk into a high school with my hunting rifle and mow down my classmate? Oh, yeah, that reminds me: Who's going to serve the time for the Columbine murders? Nobody, because those teenagers that were exercising their "rights and freedoms" decided to end their own lives as well.

You also argue that we should "trust people to be responsible when using a gun." That's a great idea, Nick, but it's like asking a county to trust a Republican president. Are we supposed to just "trust" five-year-old kids who find their parents' guns in the closet? That trust doesn't go so far when children accidentally kill themselves every day in this country.

Finally, I need to comment on your statement: "If there is significant evidence that a crime is about to be committed, I would urge government to prevent it." Open your eyes. Forty handgun murders occur every day, right in the land of the free and the home of the brave. How many more dead people do you need to prove significant evidence? Right this very moment a crime with a gun is about to be committed. It's all right though, because if we catch the guy with a gun, he'll go to jail for 30 years. If he uses it, he'll go for 20. And if he kills someone, he'll go for life. Problem solved. With the minor exception of the "someone" that he just killed.

DAVID DOWNS SPEAKS FOR SMOKERS EVERYWHERE

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Thank you. Thank you for giving a forum to a man with a spine: Who? None other than David Downs. His article on "The Great American Smokeout" (Daily Nexus, "Smoking Kills, But Is That Really Bad?" Nov. 17) was a breath of fresh air in my otherwise smoke-filled lungs.

Sure, smoking is bad for you, but so is bitching and whining all of your life about something that really doesn't concern you. I think we should all thank Mr. Downs for finally sticking up for the downtrodden smokers of California. Sometimes I feel like every time I strike a match, I should be watching for someone to turn a hose on me. So the next time you fire one up and get a dirty look from a "pimp lung," take a smile and remain confident in the fact that there is someone fighting and writing on your side.

School of the Americas: Aids Oppression and Exploitation of Latin American Peoples

TAREK MAASSARANI

Imagime your school with a completely different educational goal. Imagine a curriculum consisting of courses in civil and military literacy, counterterrorism and even sniper fires. Graduates of this school, you might further speculate, go on to become assassins and to form death squads. And what if this was all funded, like your school, by taxpayers like you? Shockingly, such a school is not a figment of our imagination. It is alive and well in Fort Benning, Ga., illustriously known as the U.S. Army School of the Americas (SOA).

Manuals from the SOA, released by the Pentagon in 1997, showed interrogation methods of blackmail, torture and execution...

According to SOA, "The school is a key Latin American foreign policy tool for the United States and an integral part of U.S. Southern Command's engagement strategy in Latin America." Historically, Latin America has fallen under a succession of European colonizing regimes. Although the era of colonialism is over, the U.S. manages to maintain an undeniable influence and to protect its vested interests in Latin America. It is no coincidence that the SOA was established as the U.S. Army Latin America Training Center in Panama, a strategic location with a history of U.S. intervention.

The U.S. has much to gain from its southern neighbors: cheap labor and free access to resources. These elements are vital to corporations profiting from the booming American economy. However, stable, democratic, self-determining governments threaten U.S. policies that consider Latin America an easily exploitable plunder-basker. Although simplified, this is an important point to remember when considering the SOA's role in undermining land reform, education and economic self-determination against a hostile internal policy of neoliberalism. Trainees from the SOA have returned to the states of Chiapas, Guatemala and Oaxaca to implement the "low-intensity conflict" strategies of torture, kidnapping, illegal arrest, disappearance and mass assassination that demoralize the efforts of the Zapatistas.

In contrast to its professed goals of promoting democratic American values and respect for human rights, the SOA has churned out despots and soldiers that have been used against its fellow citizens. The trail of blood left behind by SOA graduates continues through Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Bolivia and Panama, where the Zapatistas are not left untouched. Last year 17 Chiapas officers, all found to be graduates of the SOA, were implicated in severe human rights violations, along with Dictator Augusto Pinochet. Manuals from the SOA, released by the Pentagon in 1997, showed interrogation methods of blackmail, torture and execution as effective tactics against subversives. Such subversives include opposition political parties, labor unions, student activists, health-care workers and religious leaders such as Father Oscar Romero, who was assassinated in El Salvador for his outspoken appeals to end the civil war there.

Ten years ago, six Jesuit priests were executed in the University of Central America in El Salvador and shot. Immediately afterward, the priests' housekeeper and her teenage daughter were executed in the room where they were hiding. Of the 16 individuals responsible for this massacre, 19 were trained at the SOA. In commemoration of their deaths and the thousands of other victims, a protest vigil was staged on Nov. 21 at Fort Benning, Ga., with over 15,000 participants.

Although America espouses the doctrine of human rights, we as taxpayers are contributing between $10 million and $20 million annually to support the school. This inextricably links us to the thousands of atrocities acknowledged on Nov. 21. Our responsibility lies in closing this institution and preventing the further perpetuation of democratic values. Pending legislation may pull the plug on the SOA, but only if our representatives feel pressure from their constituents. So please write to our representatives at:

Caviar Pie

Ingredients:
- 8-12 hard-cooked eggs
- celery salt
- dry mustard
- pepper
- 1/8 lb. butter
- chopped red onion
- sour cream
- caviar

Instructions:
- Peel and chop eggs. Season with celery salt, dry mustard and pepper. Mash in butter. Press into pie plate (pre-rinsed in cold water). Refrigerate. When cold, sprinkle with red onion. Top with a layer of sour cream. Decorate with as much red and/or black caviar as you wish. Refrigerate until serving time.

Oven Chow Mein

Ingredients:
- 1 lb. ground beef or turkey
- 1 onion
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 2 3/4 cups warm water
- 2 cups celery (finely diced)
- 1 cup chopped red onion
- 1/2 cup mushrooms
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- salt (to taste)

Instructions:
- Lightly fry meat and onion. Drain part or excess fat and oil. Add the rest of the ingredients. Put into a casserole dish suitable for the oven. Cover and bake at 350° F for 1 1/2 hours.

Tamale Casserole

Ingredients:
- 1 lb. Ground beef or turkey
- 1 onion
- 1 can of corn or package of frozen corn
- 2 cups tomatoes (canned or fresh)
- 1/2 cup corn meal
- 1 diced green pepper
- 1 cup diced ripe olives
- 2 eggs
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- salt (to taste)

Instructions:
- Chop onion and brown it with the meat. Drain pan of excess fat and oil. Mix in the rest of the ingredients. Spray a baking dish lightly with a fat-free cooking oil. Bake at 350° F for 45 minutes.

---

Eggplant Parmesan

Ingredients:
- 2 medium eggplants
- Mozzarella cheese
- jar of tomato sauce

Instructions:
- Thinly slice and skin two medium eggplants. Slice Mozzarella cheese. Beat eggs together in a bowl. Dip eggplant in eggs and then in flour. Fry eggplant slices in a frying pan coated with cooking spray or olive oil until the centers are tender. Bake at 325° F for 30 minutes (until cheese is melted). For variety, dress up sauce with garlic, mushrooms and crushed red pepper. (It tastes better the second day, but even if you follow the recipe exactly, it won't taste like my old Italian grandma makes it.)

Chicken Is Good... Chicken Is Good... Chicken Is Good... Chicken Is Good

Teriyaki Chicken

Ingredients:
- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 3 tablepoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Instructions:
- Marinate chicken breasts in mixture of all other ingredients for at least an hour. (Longer is better.) Throw the chicken under the broiler or on the barbecue until it's done.

From the kitchen of Ashley Timiraos.

Chicken Tenders

Ingredients:
- Boneless chicken breast sliced into strips
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- a dash of salt, pepper and garlic salt
- 2 cups bread crumbs

Instructions:
- Mix egg, lemon juice, salt, pepper and garlic salt in a bowl. Place bread crumbs on a large plate. Remove chicken from mixture and roll in bread crumbs until evenly coated. Cook chicken in a greased pan on medium high until golden brown.

Some things take years to come of age, like wine and cheese, but the #8 UCSB men's water polo team enhanced its record in a matter of minutes, wrapping up the regular season with a sweet taste on its lips.

The Gauchos (10-13 overall, 2-7 in the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation) fought tooth and nail against #10 UC Irvine (7-16, 0-9) and went into halftime tied 4-4. But Santa Barbara raised its standards in the second half and shut out the Anteaters, while contributing three goals to its tally for a 7-4 victory.

“We knew we could play better than we did in the first half,” senior two-meter man Chris Driscoll said. “We stepped it up in the second half. We dictated where we wanted them to go. Offensively, we were getting good shots at the whole game, but we were more patient in the second half.”

Irvine challenged the Gauchos in the second quarter with two quick goals to take a 4-2 lead. But that was the last time the Anteaters saw the ball sail into the back of the net.

“We never let up on them,” Driscoll said. “Our bench did a good job of wearing them down. Our bench players are so good that it doesn’t matter who is in the game.”

Late in the second quarter junior driver Joey Pacelli scored on a penalty shot, and Driscoll also added a goal to even out the score right before the half, 4-4. UCSB must have loaded up on ammunition at halftime because in the second half the Gauchos fired their guns and hit the bull’s-eye three times.

“In the first half we didn’t come out strong,” sophomore driver Scott Miller said. “We came out too secure, and we had bad body positioning, which led to their goals. But in the second half we woke up and got it together. Our awareness to help each other out in transition increased.”

Sophomore two-meter man Patrick Trenam broke the tie late in the third quarter and freshman driver Anthony Bonini contributed his second goal of the game to give the Gauchos a 6-4 lead going into the fourth. Sophomore driver Amit Seker sweetened the score in the fourth, and UCSB walked away with its second victory over the Anteaters this season.

“This was a good game to win,” Pacelli said. “I think we’re coming together well for the end of the season.”

Regular season might be over, but the Gauchos aren’t resting yet because they have a chance to compete in the MPSF Tournament, which takes place this weekend. Their ticket in is a repeat victory over the Anteaters on Friday, and the winner will go on to compete against #1-seeded UCLA.

“It’s true that bad things come in threes, then UC Irvine better watch out, although UCSB isn’t counting on any old wives’ tales as grounds for pulling out a win.

“It’s going to be a tough game,” Driscoll said. “It’s hard to beat a team three times because teams adapt to their competition. But we can wear them down because we’re much deeper than [Irvine]. We need to get the same production from our bench as we have the last two games against Irvine.”

The Gauchos are concerned that Irvine might be picking up on what causes the Gauchos to sink or swim, but because UCSB has tasted victory against the Anteaters, Santa Barbara still feels it can repeat its first two performances.

“We have to go out there and play our game,” Miller said. “It’s going to be a physical game because that’s the way Irvine is. They’re physical, but when you’re physical back, they shut down and get nervous.

“We have to come out playing hard,” Pacelli added. “We have to be the aggressor from the beginning and not give them any easy looks at the cage. It doesn’t matter who you play; you just have to go out there ready to play hard.”

UCSB’s Top Tennis Player Wins Intercollegiate Tourney

UCSB men’s tennis team senior Simon Shen captured the Southern California Intercollegiate Tennis Championships singles title after defeating USC’s Patrick Gottelfaden 6-4, 6-4 on Sunday. Shen is the second-straight Gauchos to win the SoCal championship after Cory Gooy’s win last year.

“This is a very prestigious tournament that began in 1957,” UCSB Head Coach Marty Davis said. “The champions’ list includes names like Arthur Ashe and Stan Smith.”

Shen held the fourth seed out of 32 players, winning five matches in the five-day tournament.

“Simon had a great week,” Davis said. “This tournament has been dominated by USC, UCLA and occasionally Pepperdine. For UCSB to be in the winner’s circle for two year’s running ... that’s quite an accomplishment.”

DODGERS’ STOP YOU NOW

The Oakland Raiders and the Denver Broncos. Hated rivals. Much like the Army and the Navy, Stanford and Cal, the Dodgers and the Giants. This storied rivalry brings out great games most of the time, and has lived on through the ages.

Monday night, the players on the field had about as much to do with the game as did the players in the stands. It snowed Monday night in Denver. We’re not talking nchy, catch-it-on-the-tip-of-your-tongue snow; we’re talking better-not-let-this-freze-pre­ cipitation-hit-you-on-the-way-down snow. Well, maybe it didn’t hit the Raiders players on the way down the slope, but it sure as heck hit them on the way down from the stands. Broncos fans hurled a lot more than insults Monday night as the Silver and Black. Ice-ball like snowballs were hurled at the Oakland players, and caused some falls. Ironically, Kenny Kennedy to charge the stands and do a lot more than yell at a few of the Broncos faithful.

Kennedy is not what you would call an “average man” by any proportions. He is listed at 6’6” and 235 pounds. I don’t really know how many Denver citizens are that big, but my guess is not many, so Kennedy must have scared the living bejesus out of them. Now Kennedy has filed charges against an unidentified man.

Alec Rainder, centerback, Charles Woodson picked up an ice-ball and threw it back at the crowd, but it didn’t do much to the Raiders. They roared back for $255. I don’t really know how many Denver citizens are that big, but my guess is not many, so Kennedy must have scared the living bejesus out of them. Now Kennedy has filed charges against an unidentified man.

The Denver fans hurled a lot more than insults Monday night, mostly at Woodson. This was a very prestigious tournament that began in 1957, and now a warrant is out for Woodson’s arrest for assault. Anyone come in the car with someone who robs a store, and saying you had nothing to do with it. The game was over when this happened, and that lady should have been on her way to her car and out of Mile High Stadium. It’s not like Woodson was covering Ed McCaffrey and then stopped and said, “OK, Denver fans, screw covering McCaffrey, I’m throwing this ice-ball at you!”

The Denver fans were way out of line and “classless” as Denver Head Coach Mike Shanahan called them. Instead of this lady most fairly named Woodson of this lady most fairly named Woodson for a great deal of money, the NFL should sue her and any other Denver fan in order to make an example out of them for disrupting an NFL game. There is no way that she should get away with this, and if she does, well, that would be a serious slap in the face for Paul Tagliabue. For the NFLs sake, don’t victimize your players for fighting back; don’t we have enough of them already? Matt Hurst is the Daily Nexus voice for the deck.
