The Potato Rights Movement The Struggle for Equality

Throughout history the world has seen many groups suffer from needless persecution and torment. Fortunately, social change, albeit slow at times, has occurred and many of these persecuted groups now have an equal role and place in our culture. However, persecution and exploitation is still occurring for some groups with no end in sight. One of the worst examples of this mistreatment of a minority group is the daily abuse that potatoes are forced to endure.

According to Sammy Spud, spokespotatoe for the newly founded Freedom and Equality for Vegetables committee, or F.E.V. as they are called, stated that, "Without a doubt, we brown dirt vegetables are the most misunderstood and persecuted minority in the world today."

Groups like F.E.V. are working to change the current situation and better life for all potatoes. "Right now, our main goal is education. We feel that if we can just teach people about society's treatment of the potato then the conditions that we are force to live under can't help but improve," Mr. Spud stated.

F.E.V. and other so-called vegetable liberation organizations feel that the main problem is not the actual abuse, but is the apathy that most people feel towards the potatoe. "If humans would just remember that we spuds have feelings to then I feel like things will change. People take us for granted," Spud concluded.

To combat this apathy, a local group, calling themselves The Potatoe Liberation Front, has launched a terrorist campaign against all local establishments dealing in, what the leader of the group, Hawkeye au Gratin, termed as "vegetable slave trade." Au Gratin stated, "We're damned fed-up with being forced to live in cramped cellophane bags and getting deep-fat fried all the time."

The campaign has been underway for some two months now and au Gratin feels that people are really beginning to notice the groups efforts. "Just yesterday, we raided MacDonalds and held seventeen Big Macs hostage until the Quarter Pounders agreed to meet with us and discuss our demands," au Gratin stated. However, a spokesperson for MacDonalds Reataurants Inc. at a later press conference stated, "We will not deal with these mindless terrorist spuds. Thank God that none of our burgers were hurt, but we did loose a triple thick shake."

Spud and other members feel that terrorist activities may be hurting the movement. "We don't want to hurt anyone, we just want what is rightfully ours," he said. Spud assured that the new campaign to increase public awareness about the plight of the potatoe was going to be nothing more than peaceful. "Sure we've got some hot-potatoes in our group that want action, but I feel that we can keep them in line."

The theme of the new F.E.V. campaign will be "Think before you mash." The campaign will involve seminars, lectures and a fundraising dance, culminating in a symbolic "bag-burning," where the members of F.E.V. will burn hundred of potatoe sacks. "We feel like these activities will serve to highten public awareness," said Louie Tatertot of the Free Starch committee.

Although Tatertot was optimistic about the outcome of the new campaign, he does not feel that there is an end in sight for the problems faced by potatoes. "Sure, we've come a long way, but when you consider the huge numbers of my fellow potatoes that are boiled alone every year, well, it just brings a tear to my eyes."

According to Spud and others, the United States Army is one of the largest "killers" of potatoes. "Just think about how many innocent young vegetables are sent off to Army kitchens and are never seen again. I don't know for sure, but I've been told that they have there skins ripped-off and then are boiled and mashed. This kind of vegocide has just got to be stopped."

Major General Arnold "Bull" Schmidt of the U.S. Army's quartermaster's corps stated "Sure, we feed our boys spuds. So what? If you ask me this potatoe uprising is nothing short of a socialist commie revolution. I say all potatoes should be mashed or fried." Although Schmidt would not officially comment on the possibility of using tactical nuclear weapons in the face of a massive potatoe uprising, he did not entirely rule out the possibility. "We have to protect America's vital interest at all costs," Schmidt stated.

According to Vinnie Shwaw, coordinator of the American Potatoe Anti-defamation League, the biggest problem facing the potatoe in America is the prejudice that most humans feel towards the potatoe. "Most people believe the stereotype that potatoes are second class citizens. They think that we're dirty and hang around in gangs or bunchs. They see us just lying around in supermarkets and they think we're lazy. All this is just sprouts as far as I'm concerned." Shwaw explained that most potatoes try to lead normal lives but often find it difficult in America where they are laughed at or simply eaten. "We're fed-up with the stupid ethnic jokes like "look, it's Mister Potatoe-head," or "Hey you, starch-face," but the ones that cook me are when people say, "I'd punch you in the eyes, but I only have two hands," or "What did one potatoe say to the other? Nothing, potatoes can't talk." We're just trying to tell people that we don't think these jokes are funny anymore."

Schwaw also believes that the potatoe is considered an intellectual inferior. "People think we're stupid. How many times have you heard the expression 'small potatoes?' Its just not fair but its always been that way. The Declaration of Independence states clearly, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal..." The founding fathers didn't even mention the potatoe."

Idaho governor Clarence Spudpeal commented, "We owe a lot to our little brown friends, the potatoes. Why without the potatoe, we'd all have to eat brocoli and other squirmy green things."

According to Tatertot, the cruel treatment of potatoes and food in general exists here on the UCSB campus at the University Center cafeteria. "At first we thought that the UCen french fries weren't really potatoes. Afterall, they don't look or smell like potatoes, and they certainly don't taste like potatoes. But we found out that they actually do use real potatoes and not the left-over styrofoam plates and cups like we once thought. Our next move will be a raid on the UCen. Our tentative plan is to liberate our comrades and then find Lorden (the former UCen director) and attempt to break his hair with high powered explosives."

Tatertot explained that many felt the P.L.F. actions are excessively drastic, but he explained, "Sure, we break laws and take drastic actions, but what about the thousands of our brothers that are being turned into those un-Godly, putred french fries? We have to act now."

Whatever the means, one fact remains crystal clear, the myth of the famous American "steak and potatoes" meal must be changed if we are to avoid the potatoe uprising that we are rapidly approaching. As Tatertot put it "Something has got to give or I think that a lot of innocent people and potatoes alike are going to end-up getting shoe-stringed."

How do you feel about the potato-rights movement?

Marty Cusack, ASUCSB President.

Yeah, I think it's really a problem, especially those UCen french fries. I mean, how long will this kind of thing continue? It seems to me like a clear case of a violation of basic constitutional rights. Vegetable Council recently issued a proclamation voicing our unanimous support for the rights of all potatoes.

Robert A. Huttenback, Chancellor UCSB.

Potatoes? They serve those at the UCen, right? Well, I don't see anything wrong with potatoes. As a matter of fact, I like a few french fries with my burritos every now then and again. I just wish that they'd make them taste more like potatoes, that's all.

Derry Bowles, Chief of Police, UCSB.

I don't know about "rights." But I will tell you that we are engaged in a low-profile surveillance of these potatoes, as well as other groups that present a possible danger to the UCSB campus. We don't want to deny any vegetable their right to protest, but our main concern is to protect the State's property at all costs. If there is some sort of trouble, we'll be ready for them.

David Saxon, President of the University of California.

As president of the University, I feel that it should be one of our main goals to assimilate all potatoes into the huge "melting pot of peoples" that comprise this great institution. Although we do own some stock in the state of Idaho, I don't feel that divestment would be mutually beneficial. As of now, I do not feel that severing our ties with the so-called "potato labs" is in the national interest, either.

Vernon I. Cheadle, Chancellor Emeritus, UCSB.

What makes you think that a campus newspaper has complete freedom of the press?

Hon. Jerry Brown, Governor of the State of Confusion.

Along with my stand on nuclear power, I promise that if I am nominated to be the Democratic candidate for the office of President of the United States of America and elected to that high office, that I will do all that is in my power as the leader of this, the greatest nation on earth, to... Er, what was the question again?

Sears Purchases UCen Facilities

By MICHEL TOGUCHEVSKI

The Registration Fee Advisory Committee approved the sale of UCens I and II to Sears Bloebuck and Company yesterday in order to recover the huge debt incurred in the construction of the expanded facility.

According to several officials it was the only action which could be taken to finish building UCen II by the time the current freshman class graduates. "It was the only action we could take to finish building UCen II by the time the current freshman class graduates," said Chris Quaaludeman, Reg Fee Chair.

Sale of the controversial megabuilding was completed by Brain Mayhem, aging campus rabble-rouser and former bookstore czar, who had been attempting to "burn the damn building to the ground" but decided that the sale was eminently more practical.

Bloebuck will assume care of the UCen within the next month and has plans to turn it into a large department store, complete with hardware section and household goods. The UCen II Pavillion will be turned into a disco, while plans for the would-be theater will be dropped because Bloebuck and Co. did not want to pay for sloping the floor.

Students have complained that the sale of the building could result in their not being able to buy books at the bookstore, but Mayhem claimed this problem would not arise because Bloebuck would maintain the bookstore and probably sell books at a discount rate.

He added that connoisseurs of the over-priced UCen burrito would also not be disappointed because Bloebuck and Co. intend to maintain the UCen food service. "They know a profit-making venture when they see shit," Mayhem declared.

Mayhem has been leading the fight to "do something about the UCen" since he began his career at the bookstore several years ago. Claiming that the UCen directors "don't know their ass from a hole in the ground," Mayhem has

Students For War Now Create Rally To Call for Destruction of Oppressed Nations

By ZIPPY the PINHEAD

Calling for "the complete and total annihilation of all Third World countries in order to re-establish our international authority," the Students for War Now held a rally in Storke Plaza yesterday afternoon.

Speaking to a gathering of five students, group member Tommy Gunn called for "a beginning of the end of Third World oppression. We are being backed up against a wall to a point where we have to agree to their demands or face self-destruction."

Following the rally, the participants marched on the administration building "in order to demonstrate our solidarity in asking the university to call for the complete and total escalation of the arms race in any way possible," according to the group's director, Bob Newton.

"This would include persistent continuation of all research at both the Livermore and Los Alamos weapons labs. We want to let the administration know that we're behind the research going on there and that we want it to continue," he said.

According to Gunn, the United States currently has "enough firepower to send those bastards to the inferno and back." He estimated that President Carter's increased defense spending has cost the taxpayers over $50 billion of "useless equipment."

"We have all these tactical nuclear weapons, not to mention the MX missile and the neutron bomb, and we're not using any of them. We have got to mobilize our forces and gather our resources and attack now while the opportunity is ripe," he said.

In his speech, Gunn said he feared that the U.S. would delay military action until the countries of the Third World are able to improve their standards of living. "If that happened," he said, "we would have no fear of rebel governments attacking our people and threatening our lives. We might even be faced with a situation of total world peace and harmony.

"Can you imagine how bad that would make us look. Spending all that money on defense when we could have bought useful things like inflatable Barbie dolls or mashed potatoes," he said.

Rear Admiral Ben Dover joined Gunn in saying "what we need now

I.V. Homecoming Celebration Called Successful, Kind Of

Ten short years after typical excitable college kids inadvertently started a little bonfire in Isla Vista's branch of the Bank of America, nostalgia-minded folk in this sleepy seaside slum were out in force, commemorating this significant anniversary.

"It seems like yesterday, man," said Artie Schwartz, a longtime I.V. resident. "Of course, I've been stoned most of the time since then, and that tends to make the years fly by."

The festival began, as do so many Isla Vista mornings, with the 8 a.m. ritual quaffing of "Schlitz Tall Boys" in Anisq'Oyo park. As the first festival official rolled

I.V. Groders Denounce State City, County, World, Others

By TWEEDLE D. ANDUM

A motion to condemn the actions of the city, the county, the state and the federal government as being "unkind" towards the general populace of Isla Vista was passed by the Isla Vista Groders' Council at their Monday night meeting.

Meeting in the home of one of the council members (in Yoko Ono Park), the council also debated at length as to whether they should oppose acts of God and nature for the same reason.

"I'm just getting sick and tired of having all these bozos who think they're such big shots making these major decisions without considering their effect on the people in I.V.," council member Snott Brobdignag said.

"When Carter asked Congress to register all men and women between the ages of 18 and 20 for the draft, do you think he even considered opposition in Isla Vista?" Brobdignag added.

Chugging his third in a series of six packs, Brobdignag whined that even the Bogus doesn't care about the Groders' Council.

"Even the Bogus doesn't care about the Groders' Council," Brobdignag whined.

Isla Vista Community Scammer Mike Snidecor responded to Brobdignag in his usual placating manner saying "I may have nothing relevant to say

Klaxon Proposes Bill Banning Jarvis

By KEROSENE WENESDAY BALL

SACRAMENTO—In what Howard Jarvis, called "outrageous and just plain nasty," U.C. President David Klaxon asked that a counter "Jarvis II" amendment, banning all Howard Jarvises from California, be passed through the state Senate.

"I just can't believe that guy — put him into power, and look what happens!" Jarvis stated at a recent press conference.

Klaxon's plan, if passed would mean that everyone with either the first name of Howard or last name of Jarvis, or any such combination, would be banned from entering the state.

"I think its only fair — why should Jarvis have all the fun being such a jerk?" Klaxon queried.

"If my proposition passes, and yours doesn't, I'm not going to reduce taxes on YOUR house!" Jarvis threatened the U.C. President.

"See if I care," Klaxon reportedly replied.

In another portion of Klaxon's amendment, being called "Jarvis 0", the aging tax-cutter would be unable ever to send his children to any California school, "even if they do change their names," Klaxon said.

Members of the state legislature are varied on their opinions of the opposing propositions. "Jarvis I, II, III — who can keep them straight?" complained one state

The State

SACRAMENTO—The director of the state energy commission today released a plan to burn fat people as a method of increasing California's energy supply for the '80s. According to Russ Schweikert's proposal, any Californian weighing over 250 lbs. would be eligible for the program, which will be tested in three cities, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Davis, this summer. "The program has a lot of potential," stated the director, "besides giving us more energy the program will help curtail rising food costs and the overpopulation problem. I think that this will prove to be a viable energy source because cellulite is ten times as efficient as petroleum."

ENSENADA—Rebel Mexican insurgents today stormed this border town of 15,000. Jose Lopez Portillo de Tequila Manzana Estudillo y Frites de Huevos, the leader of the band, called for "the immediate release of all our brother farmworkers who are being kidnapped and brought into your country unwillingly and with the aid of your customs officials," from his stronghold at the Ensenada Town Hall. President Carter, in an attempt to avoid an international incident, gave the border town to the Mexican government in exchange for the Yucatan Peninsula.

SAN FRANCISCO—Mayor Diane Feinstein said today that "nothing has happened here and I doubt anything will occur in the near future."

ISLA VISTA—Mark "strings" McGinley, of the world-famous local band Redrock, said yesterday that the group is "definitely not" planning a world tour, as was reported in last month's edition of Crud magazine. "We're not even ready for the Torres Room," McGinley said, before breaking all the strings on his guitar.

UCSB—Campus officials here yesterday termed "ridiculous" charges by a coalition of normal students that the highly-respected campus newspaper, the Daily Nexus, was planning to print a bogus issue that would be "gross, libelous, in poor taste and generally not very nice." Said Chancellor Robert "Cap'n Bob" Huttenback, "I think that if you look at the crap they turn out every day, the idea of them doing anything worse is a bit silly. Besides, I heard they were putting me on a trading card."

SACRAMENTO—Howard Jarvis, grand old man of the insane proposition, will introduce yet another initiative for the 1980 ballot. Imaginatively titled "Jarvis III," the legislation will wipe out all forms of government in the state and replace them with a dictatorship.

LEADSHINER The Nation

PHILADELPHIA—Mayor Joe Rizzo today appointed the late Carmen Gilante as his administrator of foreign affairs. Gilante is expected to be able to use his diplomatic experience in high level talks with such foreign dignitaries as Generalissimo Francisco Franco and Mao Tse Tung. Gilante was shot down in a cafe in New York last year.

HARRISBURG—Officials of Metropolitan Edison, the operators of Three Mile Island, today announced a plan to convert their disabled reactor into a huge amusement park serving the entire state of Pennsylvania. Features of the new park, designed by Walt Disney Associates, include a Death Tunnel where patrons will be bombarded by high level radioactivity as they pass through the reactor's damaged core at high speeds and an attraction labeled 'Waste Mountain' which will offer a free hot dog at Casper's to anyone able to climb the mound of plutonium and uranium tailings. NRC officials have given the go ahead, as long as Met Ed can find a suitable and willing insurance carrier.

HONOLULU—President Carter today declared the state of Hawaii a federal disaster area after the islands of Kauai and Maui disappeared from the chain. No explanation has been given for the strange disappearances.

NEW YORK—A Pan American Airways jetliner en route from New York to Hawaii reported sighting a large glowing object towing two large islands and heading east. The sightings occurred at 25,000 feet and have been attributed to crew fatigue.

SKUNK'S BREATH, IOWA—Ronald Reagan caused a brief stir yesterday when, in response to a reporter's question about Reagan's favorite flavor of Kool-aid, he stated "I think that the American people are tired of this Democracy crap. I think we should replace the whole business by a feudal system, with just a few land-barons to oversee the thing." When an outcry developed over the spelling of "feudal," Reagan backed down slightly and said "what I meant was, let's have a feudal system and pay the selfs MINIMUM WAGE." Several reporters said "oh" after he clarified his remark.

BOISE—Potato farmers in this midwestern city expressed outrage at the Daily Bogus for "belittling and hindering the equal rights for potatoes movement. "One vegetable, one vote; that's all we want," a representative claimed.

The World

PARIS—Muhammad Ali announced his plans to fight the Eiffel Tower next month in a press conference yesterday. Ali, two time world heavyweight champion, said "he may be high, but I will not cry; As I said, I'll never crawl, the bigger they are the harder they fall." The tower outweighs Ali by almost 75000 pounds.

MOSCOW—Soviet official news agency Tass today revealed that the invasion of Afghanistan was just a training exercise for Soviet athletes preparing for the Olympic Games this summer. Tass quoted near-dead premier Eyelid Brushhoff as claiming that "armed invasion" will be added as an Olympic sport in "the near future, and we just want to be ready."

LONDON—Former Bogus staff member Richard Boringstein was arrested yesterday when he assaulted a British pub owner who called him "a frustrated Yankee jock." The American escaped imprisonment, however, by talking about UCSB's athletic prowess and putting his captors to sleep.

WARSAW—The International Academy of Comedians today announced that Iranians would replace Pollacks as the brunts of all jokes. "How many Iranians does it take to make a decision?" conference chairman Ima Phunnie asked with a smile. Or, "Why do Iranians have bladder problems? Because they only go when Khomeini tells them to." Iranian officials called the conference "a puppet of the U.S. and the Shah."

TEHRAN—Sources close to president Gotzbadech revealed that the Iranian army would take charge of the Americans being held at the U.S. Embassy this week. When asked if they had finally given in to the pressure one militant replied, "Of course not, but finals are coming up." In related news the U.N. delegation investigating crimes against the Iranian people was today given a tour of a Savak interrogation facility and a MacDonald's in Downtown Tehran.

El Salvador—El Salvadorian terrorists have called for Mickey Mouse to be the negotiator in the recent capture of international diplomats. "We feel that Mickey represents our best national interest, and besides, he has a nice nose." International diplomats and negotiators were at a loss to explain this decision.

Bowelman Moves to Cut Center's Hours

By BOB C. TWINS

"Budgetary woes" have resulted in further cutbacks in operating hours for the UCSB Student Health Center, according to Health Center Director Dr. James Bowelman.

Although new hours for the student health facility have not yet been determined, Bowelman stated that the center will be open for 25 minutes each weekday morning and 45 minutes each weekday afternoon. In addition, Bowelman expressed hope that "we may be able to open up for 20 minutes every third Saturday, except during the rainy season."

Bowelman justified the reduction in hours as "a more effective use of the students' money. It is comparable to last year, when we axed 19 nurses and shined on the bed patient clinic. From that, we got a sports medicine clinic, free dental plaque services and a walk-in cold clinic where students can take their own temperatures and sometimes get free aspirin.

"Even though our hours have been somewhat reduced, students will still receive expanded services," Bowelman assured.

New services proposed for the Health Center include a Herpes Hotline, an indigestion clinic for dorm residents and a pregnancy testing by phone (you call up, tell your symptoms to a tape recorder and SHS officials will call you back and tell you whether you sound pregnant).

For serious injuries, Bowelman explained that students will be encouraged to utilize an expanded Tel-Med service. "We have ordered a whole new series of tapes.

For instance, there's one for a broken leg.

"Say a student breaks his leg. All he has to do is find a phone, call Tel-Med, and listen to a tape outlining treatment. The tape will tell him not to move his leg, (except to push the bones back into place), take plenty of aspirin and remain in bed for at least three weeks. This is the same quality treatment they would received had the Health Center been open," Bowelman pointed out.

An additional service to be made possible through the cutting of the Health Center's hours is a birth control line. Similar to the bread lines of the Depression era, the birth control line will provide students with an opportunity to stop by the Health Center and pick up their favorite form of birth control without having to go through an exam.

"We are particularly excited about the vend-a-phragm. You just plunk in a quarter, push a few buttons... and boom! The student is 80 percent pregnancy-free. Provided, of course, that she doesn't leave it the drawer. Medical studies have proven that diaphragms are considerably less effective when they are not used," Bowelman noted.

Every Friday afternoon, a Free For All will co-sponsored by the CCC, or Creative Contraceptive Clinic and Dr. Stanley Inbalm of the Aware Family Planning Group. According to Inbalm, the idea behind this clinic is to prevent those "weekend pregnancies that just seem to spring up out of nowhere." Students will be treated to free lessons in fertility determination, oral contraceptive insertion and do-it-yourself knee examinations.

Perhaps the greatest student service to be provided as a result of the Health Center cutbacks, according to Bowelman, will be a CSO escort service to Goleta Valley General Hospital, "for those emergencies when Tel-Med just won't do."

"We understand that for certain problems — when a student needs an appendectomy, for instance, (Please turn to p. 2, col. 3)

Engineer Leaks UCen's Nuclear Plans

By SANDY BEACH

Plans were announced today to set up a group of high powered nuclear reactors within the new UCen II pavilion, according to Albert Powerlez, nuclear engineer and part-time cafeteria worker.

The idea for the reactors came from Chancellor Robert Huttenback, when major financial problems began to develop over the building of the events center.

"We had to do something to pay the bills around here," Huttenback explained, "and nobody else wanted to build the stupid thing — so we took it."

According to Powerlez, the reactors will be 10,000 megaton core-type reactors, producing enough electricity to power Los Angeles until, in Powerlez's words, "the disco fad fades completely away." He was quick to point out that "the reactor will be totally safe, the only thing that might be a problem is the floor of the events center will have to be about 4000 degrees fahrenheit."

Huttenback said that this should not be a major problem, but more of a minor inconvenience. "People will just have to walk more quickly — it will cut down on the loitering in there."

Disposal of the wastes from the reactor have been scheduled to be taken and put in the area now used by the Isla Vista Farm Project. "It will all be very safe, nobody will even be allowed to touch it with their hands—they must wear gloves!" Powerlez emphasized.

There has been no official statement from the farm project, but one member reportedly stated, "just what we want...40 foot tall corn that glows in the dark."

Tom O'Hawk, ECen director applauded the move and felt that the building would be suited for further development of dangerous cancer causing energy and chemical production.

"It's great, just great. We'll make a mint off of this thing. And who knows, before too long maybe we'll just have the companies and no students," he said, adding that "it will be a great place for the sequel to The China Syndrome."

The reactor, which has been tentatively named "Rancho Pepsi" will have over 200 workers and a security force of approximately 1,500. "Of course we will have to keep everybody out of the area, say two or three miles, for security reasons," Powerlez outlined, "but if they want to see a game, then maybe we'll think about letting them in."

In honor of the event Huttenback announced a new feature at the UCen cafeteria, "The Silkwood Burrito." "It will have a half life of about three days in your stomach," he explained.

Nuke the Whales

In these days of troubled times and difficult decisions facing us one and all, all the time, we, the studentry of this, our Unifactory, need an issue we can unite behind. Some of us would oppose the draft, some of us would close the window. Some of us would fight sexism, some of us want to wait until we've had our share. Some of us are opposed to nuclear power, some of us don't know what it is. From presidential campaigns to a general overdose of bad vibrations the issues confronting today's enlightened studentry are, well, confusing. What we need is a way to demonstrate our feelings in such a way that the whole world will have to pay attention to us.

Are we going to be satisfied with a few paltry lines in the local papers? Or do we want to paralyze the global-village with the strength of our protests? What we need to do is unite behind a revolutionary program of symbolic dissent which will compel the world to pay attention to us.

We could burn down banks, but it's already been done. We could chain ourselves to bus axles, or lie down on the runways at the airport, but these are short-term tactics likely to get us a 30-second spot on the evening news and not much else.

However, there is an alternative! A synthesis of the more prominent features of new-wave rock'n'roll and the best traditions of theatre of the absurd can show us the way. Just a few miles up the coast we have a functional nuclear power plant. In our own harbor there are several sea-going yachts which could be easily hijacked. Put these two together and we have the answer to our protest problems. A determined cadre of studentoids should find it simple to steal enough fissionable material to construct a crude but effective nuclear weapon.

By showing how relatively easy it is to obtain such materials we would be protesting nuclear technology. By terrifying the people of the world with a nuclear device we could point out the evil and scary nature of war. And by choosing as our victims our defenseless vegetarian cetacean brethren we could call attention to the plight of our free-swimming fellow earthlings.

Nuke the whales! We can do it! We should do it! It needs to be done! And what other single protest would call as much attention to our pitiful conditions as oppressed ghetto-ized student-Americans? Nuke the whales! Let's start today!

Most Sublime Bogoid;

We've had enough. That is, we have had enough of not getting enough. You people owe us more than just an occasional taco-chip, orange-rind or UCen tomato. We want our share and we want it now. I mean, who the hell do you think fertilizes this scum-pond, anyway? If you left it up to the goddam seagulls and mallards and storks this place would be a pit.

All we want is some recognition for the years of work we've spent cleaning the bugs out of that big old lawn below the faculty-club. It's not like we're asking for catered

Editor, Daily Bourgeois;

Yeah, you punks think yer so hot, well wait until you have to deal with the real world. All this idealistic horse manure is going to fade-out pretty damn quick when you haveta start pounding the streets to get a job, and Daddy ain't payin' fer all that cocaine and rock'n'roll no more.

After a couple of years of living for a paycheck and the weekend all that environmental consciousness and awareness of the needs of the poor and minorities is gonna seem pretty goddam unrealistic.

And you'll be wonderin' where yer gonna get the money to have yer kids' teeth straightened, and how yer gonna pay yer taxes and a new car and the super-bowl will be the high points in yer existence. And then pretty soon yer own kids'll be growin' up and feedin' you the same kinda bullshit you've been handin' out. And they'll think yer a buncha narrow-minded old farts, and they'll probably all be fags who wanta get high by puttin' straight AC current in their brains. Then where will you be?

I'll tell you where, you'll be almost dead, that's where.

And then pretty soon you will be dead, and no one will give a shit. So there.

Poor Planning?

Editor, Daily Bogus;

Hey, you guys, what is this bull about the university being poor planners? Come on now, give us a break. Just because the UCen is a little over budget and may never open, just because we couldn't get our Lower Regional Disruptive Report past the State Regional Postal Commission doesn't necessarily imply that we can't adequately plan to meet the university's needs.

I know we're having a little trouble with the sewage system for the new off-on-campus apartments but that should be solved soon. And even if it isn't, students just don't have to flush their toilets until we find an alternate sewage disposal system.

So, come on guys, quit blasting us in your editorials; it makes us look bad and I for one know that I'm a nice guy. Besides, look at it this way, you'll all graduate soon and it will be somebody else's problem.

Sincerely,
Bob Snooze,

UCSB PROFESSOR TRADING CARDS

ALL NEW 1980-81 CARDS. COLLECT THEM, TRADE THEM, GET THEM ALL!

HAL DRAKE

S.B. HISTORICALS

Types: Right
Lectures: Right

Drake has been a constant player during his career at UCSB. He is especially formidable in his favorite position, Roman History. In 1978, Drake gave three perfect lectures to help boost his team to first place in his division.

Students are impressed with Drake's ability to make the long-haul. "Once I was all the way in the back of Campbell hall, and his anecdote still reached me...it was incredible," said one student.

Drake likes to go fishing and decipher latin graffiti in the off season.

BRIAN BAKER

UCSB FRENCHERS

Can cans: Right
Gesticulates: Right

Baker has proved valuable to his team because he can curse his opponents with le grand success and they can't understand him. He makes a mean crepe and has an unwavering eye for les bonnes filles. His students admire him for his care in teaching them practical conversational French: slang and cuss words necessary for survival on the streets of Paris. In the off season Baker can be found trying to recreate the opulence of the court of Louis XVI in his Goleta apartment.

EDWARD LOOMIS

S.B. LITERARIANS

Analyzes: Right
Interjects: Left

English majors have made out an issue in the fine performance of Edward Loomis this season. Word control and eloquent verbosity have been two traits that have made Loomis one of the hottest draft picks on the team.

In 1977 Loomis was injured by a mixed metaphor, causing him to miss most of the season. Powerful wrist action in test correction has also made Loomis one of the quickest professors on the bases.

In the off-season, Loomis likes to relax by making television commercials

BOB HUTTENBACK

MANAGER OF LEAGUE

Controls: Left
Administers: Right

Huttenback is one of the veterans of the game. His expertise and knowledge on the topic of the right professor for the right position is almost legendary. Voted "most valuable administrator" over six times in a row, Huttenback will have a chance to make the "Professor Hall of Fame" this year.

In overall statistics, Huttenback is soon approaching the records of such figures as Cheadle and Goodspeed.

In the off-season, Huttenback likes to dress up in Mao jackets.

ROBERT PRIGO

UCSB PHYSICISTS

Researches: Left
Experiments: Right

"Powerful Prigo" is one of the most brilliant and unpredictable on the Physicists. His uncanny knowledge of directional velocities has enabled him to avoid impact with aerial projectiles launched by students. Prigo's comments during a lecture have been clocked at over 75 mph, with students often running for cover.

Prigo was awarded last year's coveted "Mad Man of the Department" award.

Prigo enjoys to split atoms in his spare time.

The A.S. Committee to Wipe Out Free Speech in Our Lifetime will present a fund-raising evening of film entertainment by showing DEEP THROAT in the new UCen II on March 11 at 8 p.m. All proceeds will be immediately lost in jungle of red tape and corruption.

A film by Dave Dalton and Rob Palmer entitled NUDE INCESTUOUS TEENAGE ROLLER DISCO CHAINSAW FEUD ON THE STARSHIP ENTERPRISE will be shown for about 20 seconds before it is shut down by some moral fanatic. We can't tell you when or where, so don't ask.

Stage

Every play ever written or alleged to have been written by Shakespeare will be presented simultaneously on the Main Stage in Snidecor Hall. Admission for the media extravaganza will be $25,000,876.78 (no checks, please), and the show will run the regular two hours, except for A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM, which takes longer, and is harder to say correctly. Frog daquiris will be served at intermission, if you can figure out when intermission is above all the noise.

Great New Play

"Leg Council," a new play being presented by A.S. Nonsense, opened last night in the UCen, and it's great. This sucker is one of the funniest things I've seen in a long time. Superbly acted, it's strictly laugh-a-minute as the play tumbles along toward its inevitable conclusion: the nuking of the lagoon.

Basically, the plot concerns a group of college students who, because they have been elected, more by not being voted against rather than being voted for, seem to feel that they are better than their peers. The play focuses in on a group of these mischief makers, and the hilarious hijinks they get themselves into as a result of their colossal egos.

An especially good performance in turned in by Sherry Hairy, a marvelous actress with incredible timing. Only she could take a line like "What we really have to do is get the non-violent dung of oppressionism to throw off the rings of defeat and sexism towards the ERA and the right of the unwed mother, to have orgasms on

The UCSB Music Department will present in Lotte Lehmann a man who produces musical notes by beating crustaceans with various hammers. On Tuesday, March 11 at 8 p.m., he will present his most famous work, DEATH TO THE SHAH'S CRUSTACEANS.

Art

John P. Birdbrain will be showing his newest piece, LEISURE SUIT, at the Santa Barbara Museum of Modern Egomania. The work consists of 12,000 pictures of Mr. Birdbrain in various poses. Critics have hailed it as a major breakthrough in something or other.

The UKen gallery will be exhibiting a lot of shit that no normal people can figure out starting today and running through April 19, 1997. Admission is free if you say things like "Wow, I can get behind the cosmic reality of what the artist was trying to say."

A special, one-time-only exhibition of Beth McDonald's KILLING PUPPIES WITH FLAMETHROWERS will be presented by the artist in her backyard sometime this weekend. Hailed as a major McBreakthrough, the bloody art will be recorded on video-tape for posterity and for McEvidence for the D.A.

demand," and get a laugh. Hairy plays the evil witch Demento, who tries to con the stupid villagers out of their rights by telling them that she is a Leg Council member, and therefore knows what is best for them. The scene where she pretends to cry is especially funny, as the audience knows by now that she has no real emotions.

Kathy Linoleum is bright and vapid as the fairy princess whose only answer to every dilemma is a big, white smile. The scene where she says, smiling sweetly the whole time, "I want to rip your lungs out with a pitchfork," is made very funny by this acting style. However, her performance was marred by the fact that late in the play her arm fell off, revealing her to be a plastic dummy. But by this time, I was laughing too hard to care.

Steve Bumblebee turned in a particularly funny performance as a student leader who pounds the gavel a lot in an attempt to sound important. However, his acting style is not suited to this sort of comedy, as he takes himself far too seriously. Perhaps he will improve with time or ego deflation.

The only real bad part of the play was when, about halfway through, the plot got very murky. I understand the part about the Council voting itself $10,000 raises, but I became lost when some of the members voted to turn down funds to the alternative newspaper, and then tried to pass a paper stating their love of free speech. Also, it got kind of weird when the Council attempted to raise money for the Women Against Everything That Is, Was, Or Will Be Male Center by showing the underground cult classic Nude Incestuous Teenage Roller Disco Chainsaw Feud On the Starship Enterprise, a real-life film made by Dave Dalton and Rob Palmer a few years back.

Still, everything worked out for the best as the play ended and all the men in the audience were castrated by the cast members. Granola was served to those who "took it like a person."

The play will run every Wednesday night forever, except for vacations, proxies and when something more important comes up.

King Tut will make a rare appearance on the UCSB campus on Tuesday, March 11 at 8 p.m.

The long-dead king will be in Storke Plaza, where he will not perform his famous "juggle 12 bananas while filing his nails with a Waring blender" trick, however, because his agent says "he's dead. Now get away from me." Admission is free. Leaving costs $12.

Athletic Department Finds New Idea to Comply With Title IX

Basketball's Sam Dunk Named Athlete of the Weak

By JIM Q. ROSSI

The UCSB athletic department last week devised a new system for athletic funding, in keeping with compliance of Title IX.

"We put all the names of all the major sports at UCSB into a helmet and the first one drawn gets the most funding, the second one chosen gets the second most and so on," said the new athletic director, Ken Kosher.

Unfortunately, Kosher fails to point out that no women's programs are among the names in the helmet.

"Gee, I knew we forgot to put some programs in there," the athletic director concluded. However, he did not make the necessary changes, but said plans are in the future.

In other action, or inaction, in the athletic department, a new intercollegiate sport has been approved by the National College Athletic Association. "Procrastination" will now be listed right along with swimming, basketball and baseball at UCSB as a major sport receiving funding. Club president Jim Putoff, says, "We've been waiting a long time for this day. We haven't gotten around to organizing, but I'm sure we will."

In other related athletic news, the athlete of the week today is Sam Dunk, the basketball center. He failed to score points, but did break three backboards, downed two kegs Saturday night and had one hell of a time in his Religious Studies 307 class — Philosophy of Orange Rims.

In the finals of the I.M. coed egg-toss tournament, the teams of the Bears and Tigers played to a 2-2 tie. This marked the first time in I.M. history that two teams with ordinary names entered an I.M. tournament.

Last year, in the finals of the auto racing tournament, the Sado-Masochists beat the Guys with Purple Underwear, 3-2. In the wife-beating contest, the Kinky Sexists put down the Black and Blue Brothers, 10-6. In coed Storke Tower-climbing, the team of Cheech and Chong, won it, as they got the highest, but got down the wrong way, plunging ten feet to their demise.

This diver was crucified yesterday, when he was paperclipped to the sixth floor of South Hall. Coach Gig Wilson said the crucifixion was to show just how good his swimming and diving team really is.

Gauchos Beat Their Way Out of Paper Bags, 45-44

By RICK CRUIT

The UCSB basketball team finally beat their way out of a paper bag, downing the Christine Lunge Elementary School basketball team, the Paper Bags, 45-44 in a double-overtime game in the Events Center last night.

Coach Brown of the Bags had nothing but praise for his team, although they blew it. He said his team was extremely tired, staying up late the night before studying for finals in Rest Period 106. Brown said his players had Bags under their eyes.

"We played like all the chips were in this one," he said. "I'm especially proud of our center, Boise Cascade."

Boise, the 7-foot-9 center, is often mistaken for a tree, sometimes growing moss under his feet. Last night, he scored 25 points and planted two rebounds.

"We knew we had this one in the bag at the final buzzer," said the wretched-looking Gaucho coach. This was his 108th overtime game in 109 tries.

"Our players were exhausted after the game. They just wanted to go home and hit the sack," the coach said.

The Gauchos had a chance to show off their new center, Sam Dunk, who almost ate the boards Tuesday.

Not only did he slam the ball home on every one of his shots, even when he was 20 feet outside, but the game had to be stopped to replace the rims.

"He not only decimated the rim, he demolished it," said slam dunk assistant coach Darryl Dawkins. "We've been working all week on ultimate destruction of the rims. We call Sam the Cruise Missile of basketball."

Call him anything, as long as you call him fantastic. Apparently, the rim just melts when he looks at it.

The Paper Bags have sacked two teams now and own a 2-69 record on the decade.

Gauche Notes: Moments after UCLA knocked off number one ranked DePaul in the second round of the NCAA playoffs, the Bruins could think of nothing to say, except, "The turning point of the season definitely was the UCLA-UCSB game on Dec. 21," said one UCLA senior forward, who asked not to be identified but whose first name is filled with K's. "Those UCSB players were really tough cookies," he said.

UCLA Coach Larry Brown agreed. "We owe all our credit to that game, when UCSB thrashed us, 102-58. We knew something was wrong with us then. We were very depressed with the play of Jerry Ocasional and the center they call Dinah."

UCSB Coach Net DeLack has already started recruiting for next year's season. The Daily Bogus has learned that among the star recruits will be Bo Derek.

In an exclusive interview with the Bogus, we talked to Bo about how to get down.

Guard [redacted] is involved in coitis interruptus at midcourt of a recent basketball game. He did not score in the game.

Knees

By DR. SAMUEL INBALM
Family Planning Clinic

You may not realize it, but your knees are an important part of your growing responsibilities as an adult and future parent.

Though old wives tales and myths make no mention of knees in the human reproductive process, modern studies have shown the opposite to be true. It is now known, for example, that mistreatment of the knees during the formative years (ages 1 through 12) can lead to sexual dysfunction.

Another study has linked the rate of impotence in males ages 18 to 22 with knee damage induced by surfing. That study was inconclusive, however, and the current thinking is that the level of sexual competency among surfers is actually affected inversely by the size of the waves: The bigger they are, the harder they fall, or, uh, so the report says.

It's a funny thing about knees, but people are often shy about discussing them. Students regularly come to my office worried that they may be spending too much time on their knees. My advice is simple: if it hurts, stand up.

Of course, there are a few unfortunate souls whose knees have been injured or abuse beyond the point of medical help, but most people's problems can be completely treated through such basic and holistic approaches as peer counseling, proper diet, and a sensible exercise program.

The Student Undergraduate Committee on Knees, formed on campus two years ago, provides confidential counseling to students with physical and emotional knee problems. "It really brings people together. We like to feel like we're a helping hand, reaching out to pull people back up onto their feet," said committee member, Leslie Hanze.

"Basically, we're trying to educate people," said project coordinator Dennis Pheet. Both Hanze and Pheet entered the program with knee problems and went on to become counselors. "People have real taboo feelings about knees. A lot of it comes from songs, you know, where they sing about 'You got me down on my knees, begging you, please...' you know, that kind of crap."

"Somehow they make knees seem, well, dirty."

Of course, dirty knees can be a problem, especially for people prone to wearing shorts. A good proverb to remember is "clean knees are happy knees." Here are a few more suggestions for proper knee health:

—Though shorts and skirts are tempting on the warmer days, knees should be kept covered for maximum protection;

—Do not bang your knees forcefully into solid objects;

—If you will be involved in activities that require you to spend large amounts of time on your knees, take regular breaks to stand up and be counted.

Remember, your future family is depending on your knees.

(Next week's topic: "Diaphragm Babies: those little kids with the rubber heads.") on this subject, and even though I'm not as cute as Chris Limelegal, I'm still cuter than Snotty. But don't quote me on that in the Bogus. You know how I hate to be taken out of context."

To this a woman in the audience responded, "Hey Mike—I'll take you in any context I can get you in!"

Snidecor blushed.

In an effort to revive the flagging attention span of council members, Head Groder Albert Bummers tried to call the meeting to order by introducing a new motion. "I would like to introduce a new motion," he said, introducing the new motion.

The meeting was adjourned when two council members left to get more beer and forgot to come back.

Veg Council Votes To Oppose At Marathon Meeting

A.S. Vegetative Council voted unanimously to oppose last night during their on-going meeting.

Tuesday night marked the third week that Veg Council has been in a meeting-a-thon in order to raise money to carpet and furnish the proposed Veg Council Chambers.

A.S. Opposition Bill (A.S. Bill Number 1356) was introduced by Representative (and Donny Osmond look-alike) Sniff Assley. Assley argued that because Veg Council "just opposes everything any way, we might as well take care of the whole thing at one time. Look at the time we have spent this year opposing the draft, the LRDP and biased media coverage. We have opposed pornography and we have opposed bills opposing pornography. It just seems easier to vote now to oppose everything later."

Head Veg Marty Whozat denied the significance of the vote to oppose, saying, "by this time we'd vote on anything."

Infernal Vice Vagident Steve Unbearably agreed with Whozat, saying, "I agree with Marty."

Bill Number 1356 was the thousandth bill passed unanimously by Veg Council since the beginning of their meeting-a-thon. Other bills passed unanimously include measures to sack the UCen, lynch Associate Vice Chancellor and Administrative Toady Snob Cruise.

According to Leftist Veg Very Studley, the meeting-a-thon is quite successful. "We've raised a pile of bucks. Keep feeding us those drugs, and there is no telling how long we could last," Studley laughed.

To date, Council has raised $143.78 towards the creation of their chambers. Donations have come from such varied sources as the Reg Fee Committee, the Alumni Association and the A.S. Emergency Fund.

During the Representatives' reports, Veg rep Quibbling Frothman recounted the highlights of the meeting-a-thon.

"I am just really stoked about what you guys have done. I think we're doing something right on, and I think students and community groders will really get behind us on this one," Frothman said. Frothman admitted, (Please turn to p.13, col.1)

Self-Criticism

Better Evaluations Planned; Profs to Examine Themselves

By WILLIAM LUNCH

A new and "innovative" faculty evaluation system has been proposed and is expected to be implemented on campus next quarter, the chancellor's office announced Monday.

Under the new plan, which received unanimous endorsement from the Academic Senate Feb. 28, both ladder and non-ladder faculty would be required to solicit comments from 10 percent of their classes each quarter. After reviewing the comments, each faculty member would then submit his or her own synopsis of the comments for submission to the respective department and to the dean, respectively.

Survey forms would be destroyed immediately "to protect students' rights to confidentiality," according to Dr. Marvin Michaelson, "The" Vice Chancellor, who announced the program.

"We feel this new approach will better enable our instructors to find their weaknesses and build upon them," Michaelson said, before leaving for another "very important" conference which was expected to last several weeks with no interruptions, especially telephone calls.

As the Academic Senate vote demonstrated, faculty members are quite pleased with the new plan. "It just makes good sense," said History Professor Wayne Wallace, who comes up for tenure next year. "I mean let's face it. The system now is not working.

Far too many good teachers are receiving poor evaluations because the computer is unable to separate opinion from bias."

"The current system is basically in error because it rates instructors almost solely on their work in the classroom," said a disgruntled engineering instructor whose classes nearly mutinied last quarter. "Students just don't realize that being a good teacher has nothing to do with a classroom."

He also said that by allowing professors to synthesize the evaluations, "we will get a greater consensus and agreement as to the instructor's real worth."

Michaelson's office issued a statement saying that any student comments on the program could be issued in writing to the dean's office, where they will be "processed" and forwarded for administrative review.

"Basically, I think this program is setting a trend away from such activities as Profile and other faculty evaluation guides," said Chancellor Huttenback in a telephone interview yesterday. "I believe, and the faculty especially believes, that we will all reap the greatest benefit not through the criticism of others, but from self-criticism...looking inside ourselves."

"We each know best our own weaknesses. I have no doubt but that this knowledge will be of great benefit to this institution, and especially its faculty. And I have every confidence that this new system of self-examination will lead to a higher quality of teaching. I believe that will be evident almost immediately, in the form of better evaluations in the coming quarters.

is a full scale nuclear conflict. We have got to reassert our position as a world power, both to strengthen our economy and stabilize the world."

Dover also claimed that military takeover of Third World countries must preface a solution to the world-wide problems of starvation, unemployment and overpopulation.

"Without all these peasants to worry about we'll have plenty of jobs, and food, to go around. And everyone can have a summer home," he said.

Red Danger spoke on the possibilities of mercenary employment for students wishing to "get involved without waiting for a congressional declaration (of war.)" Danger noted that there are several Third World countries, such as Angola and Afghanistan, where mercenaries "are being hired as fast as we can kill 'em."

"The demand for mercenary soldiers is greater now than it ever has been in the past. Even in the Middle Ages a good knight could be expected to last about three months in the Crusades. We're lucky if we get two weeks out of a soldier before he expires."

Persons interested in pursuing mercenary employment were advised to contact the Kamikaze Employment Agency at 10 Machiavelli Lane, Bogota, Columbia, 80034.

"There are also opportunity's open with any of a number of terrorist groups such as the Red Brigades, the Iranian pseudo-students or the restyled SLA or Weathermen," said Danger.

When asked his reaction to the students position, Capt. Bob Huttenback claimed to have no knowledge of the situation. "I didn't even know there was a rally," he said. "Did they go through the office of student life?"

Opposition

however, that the outset of the mega meeting had been shaky, at best. "Like, I remember when we had to, like, chain this one veggie to her unrefurbished chair to keep her from taking off to her sorority house. But that's all behind us now," Frothman concluded her report by saying, "I would like to conclude my report by saying that I agree with Marty, too."

Vegrep Batty Birdinhan reported that she was unable to give her report because she was "all tied up."

Susan P. Foley, Veg rep and rumoured roomie extraordinaire, announced that she was perhaps the only sane member of Veg Council in the evening's final report.

Council will continue to meet in UCen 2284 today and through the rest of the week, according to prominent vegetable sources.

UCSB Sells Bloebuck UCens

fought to improve poor management, organize the bookstore and keep the UCen from running a deficit.

"Who cares about how the UCen is run," retorted former UCen Director Bobby Lordumb. "It's only a student service, paid for by student monies.

"Besides, I have a big golf match this weekend and need to practice my putting game," Lordumb continued, putter in hand, as he closed the door to his carpeted office.

Current director Doug Ginseng once more claimed that, despite what it looked like, the UCen was not running in the red. "Look," Ginseng said, holding up a large incomprehensible graph. "Now, we loose money here, but we make money there and we break even here and I know it seems like all in all we eat it to the tune of about $200,000 a year but its not that bad since we can always get reg fees to make up for our miscalculations."

Ginseng feels that the sale was unnecessary even though members of the reg fee committee said that if the UCen continued to run a deficit they would be unable to make up for it without cutting other programs. Quaaludeman claimed, "We'll be unable to make up for it without cutting other programs."

He added that at the rate at which construction was preceeding, UCen II would not have been finished "until hell froze over."

"Sure, we had construction problems," Ginseng said, "But given a year or two we may have been able to approximate an exact date for the grand opening."

with a stirring rally, as many incensed radicals arranged themselves around the front door of Isla Vista's Village Market, demanding that beer be served starting at 6:30 every morning instead of the usual 8 a.m. The angry crowd chanted "The people, united, should be intoxicated!"

Hours later, with the morning's toasts completed, and further liquid refreshment clutched in paper bags, the throng repaired to the park to take part in the all-day "Potpourri rally." Rally organizer Ray Damon, delivering the opening invocation, said, "We know that nothing of any importance has gone down in Isla Vista for ten years, and that's fine with us. Hell, current events are dangerous. Let's all live safely and sedately in the past!"

senator. Others are calling the Klaxon amendment, "totally bogus," as Senator Howard Burmashave (D-Disneyland) put it. "I have already enlisted many of the Howards in the state, and quite a few Jarvises in our fight against Klaxon, including such notables as Howard Cosell and Howard Johnson" he added.

John Vasconcellophane (R-Sabado Tarde) after hearing of Klaxon's measure, called for the abolishment of all amendments.

Homecoming Celebration Sucks Eggs

snoring from his precarious perch on a park bench, the pack of wild dogs began to howl, and the weekend-long celebration was underway.

First day events included the weed picking competition in the park, bullfrog watching in the Isla Vista river, and the ever-popular "beach tar" obstacle course.

Highlighting the first day's schedule of events, however, was an impromptu jam session on the Anisq'Oyo stage, featuring dozens of singers, dancers, and guitar pickers, none of whom had the faintest notion of what the others were up to. The esoteric nature of the entertainment caused some less permanent Isla Vista inhabitants to watch from the sidelines.

YOU'RE GRADUATING... WHAT'S NEXT?

Have you thought about your future—We have. Because here at Lawrence Nevermore Laboratory the future is being shaped by people like you.

Lawrence Nevermore is a mission-oriented research laboratory devoted to achievement of specific technical goals related to the death and destruction of the world's population.

An innovator in the field of radioactivity, the laboratory offers you a unique opportunity to continue learning in the challenging career of death management. You too can help improve our nuclear kill ratio.

Lawrence Nevermore Laboratory is located in the scenic Nevermore Valley, a countryside of glowing waterways, glowing vineyards and glowing hills only minutes away from the nation's largest nuclear waste depository.

If you're a recent graduate with a basic degree in nuclear engineering, genetic mutation, chemical warfare or other death related disciplines (or even if you just have a genocidal streak), see us at your campus placement center, the U.C. Regents headquarters or the U.S. Defense Department for more information about our many career opportunities. Or, send your resume to Lawrence Nevermore Laboratory, Attn: Employment Division, P.O. 666, Dept. JCN, Nevermore

The History of the Potato

By JIMMY OLSEN

Send me your tired, your poor; Your helpless masses yearning to breathe free; I lift my lamp beside the golden door...—Inscription on the Statue of Liberty America, the melting pot of the world. Our borders have protected the rights of countless millions of immigrants in our short 200 year history. Throughout our existence, America has been seen by the world as the symbol of prosperity, of opportunity and as a haven for oppressed vegetables everywhere.

America, the beef stew of the world. We have witnessed the migration of cabbage from Britain, of corn from South America and of eggplants from Rumania. But, of all the thousands of groups who have immigrated to our country, none has as poignant a history as the potato, who migrated to America from Ireland after the great potato-chive wars of the 17th century.

The presence of the modern potato stretches far back into the journals of recorded history. Many scholars maintain that the potato was represented at the last supper by the Roman hero, Scallopus. There are even some, such as French vegetable historian Blake P'tot who maintain that potatoes first visited the Earth from outer space before the evolution of modern man.

P'tot points to a series of unexplained inscriptions found in the desert near Barstow, California. The drawings feature two large semi-circular concave columns literally carved into the yellow sands of the Mojave Desert.

"From an altitude of 50,000 feet," claims P'tot in his book Deep Fryers of the Potatoes, "the drawings resemble an unbelievably huge pair of golden arches. What I think we have here is the first interstellar fast food delivery station. After their long journey through space, the potatoes had merely to fix on the coordinates of the arches and fly right in."

In response to claims from his opponents that the molecular and cellular composition of the vegetable rendered it unfit for interstellar travel, P'tot claims "We're not talking about your ordinary potato here. What we are dealing with is a super potato grown in an almost completely sterile environment. I mean, seriously, have you ever heard of a potato bug being shot into outer space?"

At any rate, potatoes have been a part of our environment for as long as modern man has remained on Earth. However, it wasn't until the year 1123 that potatoes first banded together and formed their own society. Before that most authorities agree that the social and physical environment kept potatoes for the most part isolated from each other.

Says plant historian Andy Ficus of MIT, "You have to understand that the life of an adolescent potato is much different from his or her human counterpart. During his development the potato is raised in almost total darkness, being as he is a brown (subsurface) vegetable. For this reason, he will have very little contact with other potatoes, including those in his immediate family."

In 1123 however, an inspired potato, King Leek as he came to be known, called for the assimilation of all the brown vegetables of the world "to make this a better place to raise our spuds in."

With a far reaching and innovative legal code, Leek's followers soon grew and word of his efforts spread to other groups who began their own vegetable preservation campaigns.

Leek's code was based on the simple rule of socialism: to each according to his need, from each according to his ability. In the legal translation, this code took the form of the oft-repeated quotation "An eye for an eye, a tot for a tot."

However, Leek's rule came to a sudden and inglorious end during the harvest of 1124. Potatoes were relatively quiet for the next 500 years until with little warning the infamous potato-chive wars broke out in 1657.

Angered that their brown cousins were getting top billing in the premier restaurants of the world, the Green Brigade launched a series of vicious attacks aimed at undermining the potato's position of world prominence.

In the spring of 1660, Francois Frites, the potatoes ace field commander, was uprooted and executed at Chez Jaques in Paris. One month later the Green Brigade, faced with mounting costs and a great bargain on rat poison at K-mart, became the first terrorist group to use biological warfare against their enemies.

Their ranks decimated by the great potato famine from without and by a lack of organization from within, a few hardy survivors fled to America with a dream of rebuilding their once great civilization.

The potato found the harsh cold of the eastern winter difficult to deal with and so joined the great westward expansion that was carrying America to the Pacific.

Joining the American pioneers who blazed the infamous Oregon Trail, the potato set out in search of a clod of dirt they could call home. Many of their fellows were lost on the way as the trail-weary pathfinders resorted to vegetarianism to restore their vitality.

However, survive they did. On a warm spring day in 1818 a twice boiled potato, Ima Spud, chanced to look out and see the inviting fields of Idaho beckoning him. At last the potatoes had found their niche—it had taken them 200 years from the time they left their native Ireland, but they now had a place to call their own.

In 1911, a splinter group of the original migrants got the urge to continue their westward migration, 93 years after they had settled in Idaho. Braving the rough trails and harsh weather, this hardy band of potatoes was able to reach the Columbia plateau of

Oregon by 1912

Then, 1942. War is sweeping the world and the potato is called to action. Unselfishly giving of themselves and their young, thousands of potatoes volunteer as Army C-rations, second class.

When the war ends, both the Idaho and Oregonian clans are decimated, only the very old and the very young have remained behind.

So, in 1948, the clans banded together forming the powerful OreIda potato conglomerate. Their widespread influence was to culminate in the 1968 presidential election when their candidate, Richard Nixon, was elected President of the United States.

Prior to announcing his candidacy, Nixon had been an unknown potato farmer from Sioux City. With the help of several genetic engineers from CalTech, Tim Tot, the president of the potato league, was grafted to Nixon's head.

With a new-found confidence, albeit a somewhat uglier countenance, Tot-Nixon went on to achieve infamy in the Oval Office.

However, it remained for the potatoes of their homeland to achieve the potatoes crowning glory. Before even man, the potatoes became the first member of the vegetable society to see the Earth from outside her atmosphere.

Then, of course, everyone's heard of the Spudnik.

That's right, think of the memories you never quite got to cherish when The Eagles turned out to be just another vicious rumor. Recall the thrills that never were when the Grateful Dead never came near Santa Barbara.

The Grateful Dead!

The Eagles!

Yes, this thrill-packed book contains hundreds of pages of space where pictures would go if they had been taken. Imagine, if you can (and you'll have to), Jerry Garcia in Storke Plaza. Thrill to the white space that should have been Don Henley crooning his way into your love-starved heart. And there are so many more bands that got to UCSB only in our wildest imaginations.
