How to: Jump Off a Building Into a Dumpster

1. Preparation
Remember, you're jumping straight down, not out. If you jump away from the building, you will overshoot the dumpster and splat.
Also remember the dumpster may be filled with plywood or something else that is not the soft cardboard boxes the pros use to cushion their fall. Look for fire escapes or wires or anything that may impede your free-like plunge into the dumpster.
Pray to your respective lord, approach the edge and repeat, "There is no spoon."

2. The Jump
Resist the urge to push off, and instead slip off the ledge like a tree monkey. Feel the acceleration.
Try to aim for the center of the dumpster and get ready to tuck and roll.
If you suddenly realize you have overshot the dumpster, pray for forgiveness of any recent sins.

3. The Tuck and Roll
This is the tricky part. You need to rotate 270 degrees so you'll be doing a massive backflip into the dumpster.
Tuck and roll like the sexy star of Dark Angel and when you open up you should be looking at the ledge you just fell off at, with your arms and legs trailing above you.

Madison’s is Downtown Fun at a Good Price

I apologize, dear reader, that my associate and I have been out of your lives for so long. All I can tell you is that Mexican prisons are even less nice than in the movies, and Peruvian prisons are even less nice than Mexican ones (but fear not for us; the physical scars are healing and the psychological ones are easily drowned in oceans of time and carefully prescribed substance abuse). Upon our return stateside, we were met at the airport by one of Professor Down’s minions and handed a manila envelope.

For your sake, I persuaded my associate not to eat the envelope (understandable in light of Peruvian prison food), and our assignment was saved. We were to gain access to a local pub and eatery and assess its value and significance. Madison’s Sports Grill at 525 State St. is a pleasant place, abounding with atmosphere and televisions. For a staff that looks like a retired professional football team, they were friendly and courteous. We were asked to sit at the bar with the unspoken assurance that we were to be treated as family. In our little family, the drinks come from mommy bartender.

And just like mom makes them, the drinks were fast and palatable. But unlike mom, the bartender knows how to make a sidecar, a new favorite (brandy, triple sec, and lemon). The bartender was an amiable sort. He even made up a nickname for me: Sparky. I made up one for him too, but I can’t print that.

Madison’s is a full service kind of a place, with a kitchen dishing out tasty treats, like tiny hamburger appetizers (“sliders”), steaks (marinated in bourbon! Brilliant!), and fresh (the freshest!) salads. But it is the drinks (ah, the drinks) that make Madison’s famous as a downtown watering hole.

Visit Madison’s during one of its wet and wild happy hours (weekdays, 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.), and you will be treated to tasty adult beverages served in colossal goblets (with a name like Schooners, they gotta be good) for unbeatable prices. One of these would satisfy even the thirstiest sailor on shore leave; my associate ordered three.

With food in our bellies and drinks in our hands, my associate and I retired to the patio to indulge in a post-prandial cigarette. The heated outdoor area keeps patrons toasty warm on even the chilliest Santa Barbara evenings and provides an ideal spot for alfresco drinking and dining (and smoking).

In short, Madison’s is the place downtown to meet friends, to have a drink and to enjoy a quick, satisfying bite. Oh, and they have TVs in the men’s room.

Silvergreens is Healthy Food Amid I.V. Grease

For those in college who have yet to experience the joys of a well-balanced meal that isn’t wrapped neatly into a tortilla, Silvergreens’ “food for the active” may be an excellent choice. The cafe, home to the author’s favorite tortilla soup, has made a few changes since most of the undergraduate population at UCSB first ventured into town, including a newly remodeled interior, 24-hour service, and delivery after 5 p.m., seven days a week.

I stopped in on a beautiful afternoon in mid-January with two co-workers — we’ll call them Bill and Mary — also desperate for their first meal of the day. We began the task of racking up a $25 bill on the Nexus, a harder goal than one may imagine. We started the meal munching on a few of Silvergreens’ freshly baked cookies, because that is what 19- and 20-year-old college students do when they are offered dessert before a meal. The homemade cookies — in chocolate chip, peanut butter and oatmeal raisin flavors — were a steal at 69 cents each.

(Bill would recommend the chocolate chip if you have a hankering for a homemade taste.)

One of the more exciting points, at least in Mary’s opinion, was the full service refreshment bar situated on the far wall of the restaurant, which offers a variety of options. One of these is the vanilla or cherry syrup, perfect for those who like their soda’s sugar level to be above and beyond anyone’s recommended daily intake. The beverage bar also offers all-you-can-drink soft drinks, lemonade and iced tea. (In addition, Silvergreens offers juices, hot tea, coffee, water and several smoothie blends.)

The three of us sampled a wide variety of the menu, including two different salads, sandwiches, soup and a baked potato. Mary was pleased with her selection off the “Combo Me Crazy Menu,” a baked potato and El Capitan salad, all for under $6. The salad, which Mary labeled as “bomb,” consisted of mixed greens with grilled chicken, beans, cheese, tortilla strips, tomatoes, ranch dressing and salsa. The baked potato also received high praises, but as Mary pointed out, it’s difficult to screw up a baked potato. Bill also seemed pleased with his selection of the roast beef sandwich, as he grunted when I asked how it was. (I suspect he may have been feeling the repercussions of his pre-meal cookie binge). My meal was excellent: a combo of tortilla soup and a Cobb salad smothered in ranch dressing.

If you’re looking for the best place in town to choke down a salad or just want a quality, healthy sandwich, stop by Silvergreens on the corner of Pardall Road and Embarcadero Del Mar. I promise it’s not bird food.
HOW TO: NOT FEEL BAD ABOUT LOSING YOUR SECURITY DEPOSIT

Note: This "how to" presented by AnarKItty is not meant to be taken seriously. AnarKItty is a horrible role model with little respect for life or property. Do NOT imitate the AnarKItty.

1 When you realize the sign you looked over in the beginning of your lease is less likely to return than Reegar's sanity, borrow a power drill and gut a 5-inch burning tool. Also purchase a couple pounds of rotting meat from your local Supermarket.

2 Drill a few inconspicuous holes a few days before you move out. Fill them with the rotting meat, and any daily products left in the fridge by long gone roommates. Seal the holes with toothpaste or spices.

3 Wait. Patience and stealth are the ways of the AnarKItty and you, true believer, shall learn them in time. Wall came more. Eventually your little stash of goodies to the wall will become a critical mass of, excavate and begin to inundate the yard and possibly the block with a foul stench. Many small mammals may die. Use on only the most irredeemable slumlords. Till Next time. Fight On! —AnarKItty
