Kent State memories rekindled as petition drive begins today

By DAVE CARLSON

It has been a year and a half since the nation stopped itself in horror at the sight of thirteen of its progeny shot down by panicked National Guardsmen at an anti-war rally at Kent State University. Four died and one is paralyzed for life.

Although many persons had died in race riots and other disturbances, it was the first time that White, middle class college students had spilled blood for the cause of ending war in Vietnam.

The incident has not been forgotten at UCSB. This week has been proclaimed Kent State Week by Leg Council in an effort to support a petition drive by groups who would like to see the government re-open the Kent State incident in order to see exactly who or what is responsible for the deaths.

The petitions call for a federal grand jury to re-open the investigation which has been, up to now according to many groups including the FBI, handled inadequately. At Kent State, 10,000 persons have already signed, and organizers hope that 200,000 will eventually be collected.

Efforts at UCSB will take place today through Wednesday between 10 and 2 in the afternoon. Three tables will be set up at the Pardall Road entrance into Isla Vista, in front of the UCen, and in front of the Library.

The drive is being organized by the Board of Christian Social Concerns of the United Methodist Church, one of the most liberal denominations in the nation. Besides members of the University Church of Goleta, members of St. Mark's Parish and the Lutheran Campus Ministry will also be participating in the effort.

Petitions are also available for other groups to help pass around, and can be obtained in the NEXUS office and in the A.S. office on the third floor of UCen.

Reverend Bill Van Ness of the University Church of Goleta, is doing much of the organizing, and is optimistic about the chances of President Nixon calling a federal grand jury in to conduct an official investigation. "It's a big issue," he said, "and Nixon simply can't turn his back on it." Van Ness has been in contact with Bill Slocum, the Student Body President of Kent State, who indicated that some Nixon aides were mostly favorable to efforts by students there to re-open the issue.

So far, the only official investigation relating directly to the May 4 incident was a special Ohio Grand Jury, which indicted 24 youths and one professor for various state riot charges.

The FBI had cast doubts on the report, indicating that some National Guardsmen had deliberately "distorted" (Continued on p. 2, col. 1)

University begins role as policy formulator for public projects

By BOB TEDONE

For the first time the University of California is directly working with a political agency for the formulation of a public policy.

Research is being headed by Economics Assistant Professor James Sullivan on the development and implementation of an environmental economics decision model, which will be applied by Santa Barbara County for the formulation of a County Sea Coast General Plan.

Goal oriented research such as this is rare at the University of California. According to Sullivan, most faculty and administrators view the role of the University as the creation of knowledge.

Sullivan pointed out that the UC is a creation of the people of California and that the University has a problem relating to the community. He sees projects such as this as one way for the University to remove the "ivory tower" image that many people have of the UC. Suggestions that this type of research be applied to Isla Vista have come from many sources.

The question, Sullivan says, is where to put the efforts of the University. "Can the University ignore government and go its own way?" Sullivan asks.

Sullivan's studies will help Santa Barbara County decide how to best use its sea coast.

The studies consists of a number of subprojects to aid in the formulation of the Sea Coast General Plan. The thrust that unifies these subprojects is "what impacts will alternative public policy and existing natural phenomenon have on the onshore line development."

For example, Sullivan did a survey of users of Santa Barbara beaches. He interviewed 850 people at Santa Barbara's beaches to find out who they were, where they were from, and what form of transportation they used to get there.

From this, he hopes to find out if only a certain segment of the population uses the beach while all pay for it and if people use public transportation to get to the beach as well as discovering traffic patterns of beach users.

Another topic of study is the use of the Channel Islands. This is being done by Carter Ray from an idea by student John Justice.

Ray is investigating possible uses on the Islands and their effects of the sea coast. For instance, one suggested use of the Islands is as a National Park. The investigators study such things as the type of parking to be necessary and its impact on the coast. Also they look at what types of businesses will develop along the coast if a park is established.

The Sea Coast Planning Project is funded by the County, the University and the Federal Government. Total funding for Santa Barbara is about $100,000. The Sea Coast Planning project uses information gained from an Economics of Marine Resources Decision Model research project being done concurrently by Sullivan.

Freeways mean progress; but not for little San Ardo

By RICH EBER

It's very quiet now. About every 15 minutes a stray car whizzes by, symbolic of a not so distant past when San Ardo was the mid-way stopping point in the long dreary ride from Santa Barbara to San Francisco.

A week ago last Friday the newly completed freeway section along U.S. 101 eliminated the two-lane 11-mile long daylight test area on which San Ardo was located.

With this event happening less than 10 days ago, San Ardians are not willing to admit their town with its seven gas stations, four restaurants and three grocery stores has fallen a victim of progress.

At Willford (Pee Wee) Taylor's Arco station they are looking at the positive aspects of having less noise, fewer rest room stops and not so many two bit customers.

According to Pee Wee, customers who travel 101 regularly still stop by and "We are getting more fill-ups than we used to."

The consensus among the garage mechanics, who found time to sit around and chat in the midst of the Thanksgiving traffic rush is "It's too early to tell how business is going to turn out. You'll have to wait for the first of the year."

Despite these opinions the Mobil and Shell stations have already closed down, anticipating the economic peril that they think awaits San Ardo.

In Joust's grocery store and lunch counter they joke a lot about San Ardo being a dead place but the owner says "Business is down some but there's enough people coming through for us to survive."

Across the street at the Cable Car Burger Bar the pickle jar is lasting longer than it used to as travelers are already beginning to forget that quaint little place where you could grab a snack before going home.

Irma, who works behind the counter at Joust's takes the freeway's arrival in stride commenting "When you've been in business so long all of a sudden it becomes a shock when no cars come by but after awhile you get used to it."

Willie, a long time resident of San Ardo who is fondly called "the mayor" by his friends flatly states, "To some people the freeway is progress but for us it's bad for business." "Besides, the older road is prettier," added another bystander.

In veiled terms after you've had a couple of beers the people at Joust's loosen up their tongues expressing fear that San Ardo would disintegrate, much like the town of Bradley, a few miles down the road whose economy collapsed after it was bypassed by the freeway.

However, most of the people in town plan to stay on regardless of what happens to San Ardo's economy.

Sonny Bernard, a local rancher who everyone seems to know says "Not having the freeway will hurt but I like to live free, and have my friends...They mean more than money."

Just how much more only time will tell.

some of their testimony. One of the prosecutors for that grand jury, Seabury Ford of Ravenna, resigned from his position after saying the National Guardsmen should have shot all the troublemakers.

U.S. District Judge William K. Thomas found the report "slanted and biased" and ordered it expunged. A clerk in Ravenna, Ohio, then took the eighteen page document behind the Court Building where it was publicly burned to ashes.

After the Ohio report was discredited, Attorney General John Mitchell still declined to convene a federal grand jury, announcing that, in his opinion, the evidence did not warrant such an action. Many, however, including former Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, have since urged that he do so.

Ex-UC president Clark Kerr slams schools' 'survival' tactics

Former UC President Clark Kerr stated last week that universities and colleges must stop worrying about their immediate financial "survival" and begin to take part in solving the "heroic" problems which face this country in the next decade.

Speaking before a meeting of the Berkeley City Commons Club, Kerr said the last century had been one of phenomenal growth for American higher education, but added the 1960's were a decade of "growing doubt and fear" among universities.

Kerr, who now heads the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, said some causes of this fear had been growing political and social unrest on campuses, a changing labor market which has resulted in excess of college graduates seeking jobs, a "loss of consensus" in the society and on the campus as to the purpose of higher education, and a general slowdown in enrollment growth.

On the point of enrollment growth, Kerr said the 1980's may be the first decade in American history in which college enrollment actually drops.

"A university or college that does not grow and cannot add new departments and faculty cannot be a dynamic institution," Kerr asserted.

"All of these factors have caused a great many college administrators to worry more about surviving than making progress," he added.

Kerr, however, argued the future of higher education is tied to the future of society, and the universities' main job lies in helping solve some of this country's problems. The priorities for action listed by Kerr were:

-Carrying out "the dream of equality for all people." Kerr said colleges could do their part by increasing enrollment of lower class and minority students in the next ten years.

-Increasing the number of doctors, nurses and other health care people to meet the growing health needs of America. Kerr estimated a million more such trained personnel would be needed in the next decade.

-Innovation and reform within the universities and colleges to accommodate the changing attitudes and needs of higher education. Kerr reiterated a recommendation made last year by the Carnegie Commission that the time needed for a degree be reduced from four to three years, while encouraging students to take time off during college to work.

-Do something to help urban civilization.

-Take part in increasing the general quality of life in America.

SBCC vacancy filled in light voter turnout

Joe W. Dobbs, a member of the Santa Barbara Citizens' Advisory Committee for Continuing Education, was elected to the vacant seat on the Santa Barbara Community College District's governing board last week in a special election marked by the lightest local voter turnout in recent years.

Barely over 10 per cent — an unofficial total of 6,906 voters — of the registered populace turned out for the election, which was held to fill the spot vacated when board member Wilber Fillippini resigned to take a position in Washington, D.C.

In unofficial returns, Dobbs led the field of four candidates with 3,497 votes. John Sullivan, his chief opposition, compiled 2,057 votes. Elmer Kirkwood and Arnold Mangle trailed with 1,007 and 345 votes respectively.

As of press time, official vote totals for Isla Vista precincts were unavailable, although Dobbs, at 38 the youngest candidate, captured 55 of the 57 precincts in the election.

"Encourage programs for the disadvantaged and minority students," stated Dobbs in his program before the election. He also stated his interest in "seeking ways of obtaining state and federal funds for relieving the local tax burden."

Election costs for the election, which included a Hope District board election as well, came to approximately $18,000, or more than $2.50 a voter due to the extremely light turnout.

It is expected that Dobbs will be sworn into office at Tuesday night's meeting of the Community College District board, which will deal with district facilities.

Although few burning issues came to light during the low-key campaign, Dobbs' victory seemed to represent a generally liberal expression of voter sentiment.

If you think that ordination is something like graduation—and the time in between is similar to marking time—then you couldn't be more mistaken.

The Paulists were founded with the belief that each man is a member of the community and he contributes his own thing. Each is an individual with his own talents and he is given the freedom to use them in his own way. But not later. Now.

For instance, during the novitiate, novices work in such diverse areas as hospitals, vocational rehabilitation centers and Universities. They serve as assistant chaplains, co-retreat masters, student teachers and psychiatric aides.

Paulist Seminarians create recreational programs, direct "Days of Recollection" for CCD students, direct film series, experiment with the use of media in the liturgy as a preaching tool, originate and edit the Paulist Free Press, coordinate Lenten lectures and organize Home Masses, to mention just a few.

When you commit yourself to the Paulists, it isn't a someday thing. It's now. Today.

Smokers defended against those who would ban them

Smokers create jobs and solve dog problem

To the Editor:

That "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" article in Tuesday's (Nov. 16) NEXUS makes me think that the writer, (sic) Phil Spector (?), should have stuck to writing muzak arrangements for Paul McCartney.

First off, he complains that janitors are sick of having to clean cigarettes off classroom floors. But is he aware that if people did not smoke in class, there would be far less work for the janitors to do, resulting in numerous firings among their ilk? Or how this high unemployment would affect the world economy?

Second off, in making a play for our sympathy, he speaks touchingly of a dog who had its paw burnt by a cigarette butt. Well, it was silly of the dog to take up smoking in the first place! Besides, there are too many dogs around here anyway.

The question is: How can non-smokers go out of their way to accommodate and convenience smokers even more?

- Have all those offensive, authoritarian "No Smoking" signs removed from the classrooms.

- Put down non-smokers. Tell them they're not "hip," "with it" etc.

- If you are offended by cigarette smoke, stay at home. Lock yourself in the closet.

- Smokers: make a point of flipping ashes on all those who ask you to quit. Burn holes in their clothes and skin, if possible.

Remember, all the evidence the government has gathered against smoking is purely speculative. The last time you believed them we ended up in Vietnam.

Yours in Good Taste,

Consider what smokers have to put up with

To the Editor:

Concerning the article in Tuesday's Nov. 16 paper entitled "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes": I agree entirely that it's a filthy habit. But let us consider for a moment the things that a pack-a-day smoker has to put up with.

I am sick of being evilly eyeballed by some demure young damsel every time I pull out a cigarette in a class. The way they usually cough daintily to hint at their distressed condition does not bring out the chivalry in me. Quite the contrary. I usually light up another one just for spite. Sir Walter Raleigh may have spread his cape to save the queen's pretty little feet, but let us not forget that he also popularized the noxious weed.

So much for history (I knew 4B would come in handy sometime). Sometimes I wish that the people who frantically fan their hands to clear the air would just take off.

As for Spector's suggestions for quitting: I can't smoke outside. I'm allergic to fresh air. I would be careful with my butts if there was a place to dispose of them. The desks with inkwells should be brought back and converted to desks with ashtrays.

The prospect of quitting cold turkey terrifies me. I did it once for two days and don't want to do it again until there is a methadone-like drug for nicotine. I may not be qualified to talk about ecology, but I know damn well when I need a cigarette. I've got my vices and you've got yours. Mine are just more public. I'm having a nicotine fit now, so I'll have to close.

Yours Hackingly,

Nude beach plan

By LEMUEL COLON

It has come to our attention in the autumn of the year when the sun is at its coolest that Devereaux Beach has been used as a naked bathing area by students and visitors. Since Devereaux Beach was primarily frequented by students and University personnel of all natural persuasions, it seems in the interest of campus efficiency that we might consider relocating the nude beach now that it has been officially closed.

It would be more proper and fitting if we moved the nude beach in front of Storke Tower at Storke Plaza. Now this is appropriate in many, many respects, not the least of which being the Freudian symbolism inherent in Storke Tower, an edifice whose shape and description need not be re-printed here.

The advantages of having the nude beach at Storke Plaza would be multiple. Not only would it liven up the naturally flat and arid cement area, but it would also give students a place to congregate after coming out of the UCen. They could leave their clothes at the edge of the Plaza and stroll out to a bucket full of sand dunes, sunning themselves in front of the office of the El Gaucho (now known as the NEXUS) and KCSB, which could conduct live nude radio broadcasts.

People gathering between classes would be provided with live entertainment of a nature for which California has become famous. And, after all, in 1971 it is not common to find free entertainment of the quality and caliber to be presumed on the part of the student body.

While this might present certain difficulties at first, I think that these could all be solved with a little thought and planning on the part of the Administration, with a Student Advisory Committee to oversee and approve the final plans to be submitted to the board of Regents and the Governor.

Keeping in mind the fact that the California school system has slowed down in the last year, it might be argued quietly that it is time to upgrade the image of the UC system in the minds of progressive educators everywhere who are accusing the budget-frozen University of freezing its creative veins as well.

What better way than implementing an environmental beach right between the University Center, always a gathering and watering place for students, and Storke Tower, home of the University Chimes? After all, this kind of social and environmental release would be beneficial not only to the students who participate, but also for students who ordinarily don't get a chance to visit locker rooms because of heavy class schedules—a large number of which attend UCSB from the greater Los Angeles area.

Within a stones throw of the Administration Building, the nude beach could be enjoyed by all levels of the University. And within walking distance to the Student Health Center, it provides a tremendous opportunity for people to inspect one another to make sure that they are disease-free. Like Smokey the Bear says, it's up to each one of us as individuals to keep our campus clean.

Students urged to join Kent Staters petitioning for federal grand jury

To the Editor:

To those of us who were at UCSB in May of 1970 the names "Jackson State" and "Kent State" have the ring of the unbelievable. We recall with a mixture of frustrated rage and deep sorrow the killing of students on those Mississippi and Ohio campuses on the flimsy pretext that policemen and National Guardsmen fired "in self-defense." In both instances local grand juries held blameless those who had fired the lethal shots and spoke vaguely of "snipers."

The FBI investigation of the Kent State shootings provided grounds for misgivings about the Ohio student killings. They in fact suggested that there was evidence that Ohio National Guard members may have lied in order to cover their part in the shootings. The Commission on Campus Disorders also questioned the adequacy of the local grand jury probes at Kent State and Jackson State.

For its part, the U.S. Justice Department has been very quiet about the whole thing. Attorney General Mitchell finally—and with minimal visibility on a Friday afternoon in August—released his own judgement that there was insufficient evidence to warrant the convening of a federal grand jury in the Kent State deaths. This in the face of the FBI report that suggested the possibility of perjury on the part of members of the Ohio National Guard, a crime which could result in severe criminal penalties for the men involved.

However the deaths at Kent State University are not a closed issue. A few weeks ago KSU students gathered over 10,000 signatures on petitions asking President Richard Nixon to override the decision of his attorney general and to order the convening of a federal grand jury to thoroughly investigate the Kent State killings. Student leaders and the KSU president have been encouraged by what seems to be a genuine concern on the part of Nixon's staff. President Nixon has agreed to consider a grand jury and will make such a decision on mid-December.

So now, 18 months after the May 1970, shootings we have a chance to make the weight of our opinions felt. Bill Slocum, AS president at Kent State, urges students throughout the country to join KSU students in massive petitioning of President Richard Nixon requesting him to order the convening of a federal grand jury so that responsibility for the killing of Kent State students may be settled within the due process of federal law.

Let's keep faith with our brothers! UCSB students can in the next few days add several thousand signatures to a national deluge of petitions asking that Richard Nixon keep faith with the nation's students and the public law. Don't wait to be asked to sign. Go find the nearest petition, and take your friends with you.

Open parking on weekends

To the Editor:

On Oct. 22, I left the campus to drive into Santa Barbara for a date and returned about 1:30 am. Upon returning and driving to my designated parking lot, I found it completely full. I drove up and down it two times and could not find any empty space. Knowing that if I parked in any other lot I'd get a ticket, I squeezed into the only space open. The space was next to one of the entrances being 25-30 feet wide. So I parked my car (a VW) as tight as possible into the space, although one of the tires protruded into the entrance (about six inches).

The next I knew, I had a ticket. I had received in the mail a notice informing me that I owed a four dollar bail because I hadn't paid the two dollar fine. This was my first knowledge that I had even gotten a parking ticket. Evidently someone had ripped it off my windshield and thrown it away.

I called the court and asked if I could get an appearance to explain the situation. It was granted and I appeared Tuesday, Nov. 23.

My appearance in court was nothing short of disastrous. After watching various other "quick" trials I was finally called up. I told the judge the above story and he promptly informed me that if my lot was full, that I should have driven into Isla Vista, parked my car and walked back. Is that what we pay $36 a year for? So we can park in I.V. and then walk to the dorms? To top this off, he imposed a ten dollar fine on a first offense. Now I am in the midst of filling out forms to get a public defender and appeal the case all for a two dollar ticket.

How about it fellow students? Think it's fair? You could be the next unsuspecting victim. Maybe something can be done, such as open parking from midnight Friday to midnight Sunday.

Grad study recruiters...

Mr. Thomas Rhue, assistant dean of the graduate division of Stanford University, will be on campus Tuesday, Nov. 30, to recruit Black students for all levels of graduate work, law school and medical school. Mr. Rhue will be in the EOP Office, Bldg. 477, from noon to 4 p.m.

Two campus recruiters from the UCLA Graduate Advancement Program will be in the EOP Office, Bldg. 477, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Dec. 3. They will be interviewing for the Graduate School and have information on the Law, Education and Urban Planning Schools as well. Their major emphasis will be on Black students during this visit.

The opinions expressed are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily represent those of the Regents of the University of California, the Associated Students or the UCSB DAILY NEXUS. Articles labelled "editorial" represent a consensus of the UCSB DAILY NEXUS Senior Editorial Board unless signed by an individual writer. Letters and columns from opposing viewpoints are welcome.

Consider this...

It takes a little extra effort to find the WOODEN HORSE (it's upstairs away from the street). So we take extra effort to make your visit worthwhile... that's only fair.

SEASON OPENS

Basketball

Brimming with optimism and eager for action, UCSB's basketballing Gauchos open the 1971-72 season this Wednesday when the Gauchos travel to San Luis Obispo for an 8 p.m. skirmish with Cal Poly in the Mustangs' Men's Gymnasium.

Coach Ralph Barkey's cagers then round out their first week of play by hosting Stanford University (Birmingham, Ala.) Saturday night at 8:05 p.m. in Robertson Gymnasium.

Blessed with seven returning seniors, including four starters off last year's 20-6 team, the Gauchos will be challenged early by a highly touted Cal Poly squad which compiled a 17-11 record last year.

"I've seen Cal Poly teams over the last 20 years," Barkey said, "and from what I know about this team, it could be the best that they've had in that period."

"They have size, alot of quickness and team speed," Barkey reported, "and they are well coached and are always emotional about playing us."

Coach Neale Stoner's Mustangs will be led into action by All-PCAA forward Billy Jackson (18.0 ppg), center Robert Jennings (11.2), guard Randy Genuny (7.2)—a trio of starters off last year's team—along with front liner Rick Stickelmaier, and a host of newcomers including Olympic high jumper and former NCAA champ, Reynaldo Brown (6-6), who has not played basketball since the 1969-70 season at Los Angeles City College.

Forward John Tschogl (6-6), a two time first team All-PCAA pick, and guard Ron Allen, named to the second All-League team last year, are expected to pace the Gauchos in 1971-72.

"I'm concerned over Allen, who is having some difficulties with the arches of his feet," Barkey said. "They have pained him, but he is being treated and appears to be getting better. I'm sure that the layoff over the Thanksgiving break has helped, too," Barkey said.

Joining Tschogl, a 6-6 senior from Chula Vista, and Allen, a 6-4½" senior from Los Angeles, in the UCSB starting lineup will be guard Bob Schachter (6-1, Los Angeles), forward Earl Frazier (6-9, Compton) and center Steve Rockhold (6-8, Santa Cruz).

Rockhold, who has moved in to fill the void left by the graduation of Doug Rex, has acquired a great deal of confidence and has been working very hard to polish his play both offensively and defensively during the past six weeks of practice drills.

UCSB's key reserves include guard Jim Edmond (6-2, Los Angeles), along with front liners Dennis Rector (6-5½, Redondo Beach) and Jerry Lee (6-4, Los Angeles).

Gauchos massacred 55-10 by bowl hungry Spartans

By RICH EBER

Lacking the suspense and excitement of a poor Doris Day movie, UCSB ended its 1971 football season on a sour note, falling listlessly to San Jose State 55-10.

The Spartans who ended their season with a 5-5-1 record, intended on impressing Pasadena Bowl scouts as to their fitness to be PCAA representative in the newly enshrined Dec. 18 classic.

Judging from the score, they did just that. In no part of the game did the Gauchos, who finished the year 3-8, threaten to defeat San Jose who has played an impressive schedule including games with Stanford, Oregon, California and Houston.

Winning the toss of the coin the Gauchos received

While the NEXUS is at press, athletic directors and faculty representatives from PCAA schools will be voting to decide whether San Jose State or Cal State Long Beach should represent the conference in the Pasadena Bowl Dec. 18. Both schools have only one loss in PCAA play with San Jose holding a 30-28 triumph over the 49ers in their favor. Though Long Beach's 8-4 season record, is better than San Jose's 5-5-1 mark, the Spartans' was earned playing higher caliber competition.

but were unable to make a first down. Tony Ventimiglio's short kick put the Spartans in business on the Santa Barbara 48 yard line.

Without throwing a single pass, San Jose's third string quarterback, Travis McMichael, playing because of an injury to regular signal caller Dave Ellis, directed the Spartans to their first touchdown.

In eight plays they spanned the field with the usually ferocious Gaucho defense offering token resistance as San Jose jumped out to a quick 7-0 lead which they never relinquished.

Later on in the first period the Spartans' much lauded All American middle linebacker Don Chaney picked up a Randy Palamino fumble on the UCSB 25 yard line.

Three plays later McMichael connected with halfback Larry Loyd for a 15 yard scoring pass to put San Jose ahead 14-0 after the first quarter's completion.

Early in the second period McMichael hit wide receiver Eric Dahl on a 40 yard T.D. bomb to take any remote hopes of victory away from the crowd of approximately 4,800 Gaucho football fans.

Following the kick-off, the Gauchos conducted their most sustained drive of the day eating up 15 plays culminated by a Ventimiglio 32 yard field goal.

Gaucho quarterback, Steve Gullotti did a good job mixing up his plays against a hard charging Spartan defensive line which didn't allow him much time to make any decisions.

The key play in the drive was a third down, 18 yard pass to converted defensive back Steve Evangelist.

Not content to sit on their 21-3 margin, San Jose scored their last touchdown of the half on a McMichael to Larry Brice aerial to make the score 28-3 at intermission.

During the second half, the carnage continued as San Jose coach Dewey King ran up the score excessively high by continuing to play his first stringers and pulling off such antics as running from punt formation.

UCSB's lone second of glory came on a 28 yard touchdown pass from Jack White to Evangelist giving Santa Barbara a small sense of glory in a day that belonged to the Spartans.

LAST HURRAH—UCSB's forward wall puts the brakes to San Jose State halfback, Jimmie Lassiter in their last game of the season.
